Parties Settle Damages Amicably

Two minor motor accidents were reported in Belleville yesterday with no serious injury resulting, however. While negotiating a turn southward off West Bridge St. onto James St. a motor car driven by Arthur Lockley, Hamilton, was struck in the rear by an automobile driven by Ernest Matter, Belleville.

Lockley informed police he had indicated his intentions of making a lefthand turn by signalling with his out-stretched arm. Matter added he saw no such signal. The damages were for the greater part dinges to fenders, although the gasoline tank on Mr. Lockley's car was punctured and considerable gasoline spilled. The matter was settled amicably between the parties.

Howard Booth, 36, of this city sustained minor bruises when the motor car he was driving on Catherine St. was struck by another motor car driven by Roblin Dulmage, Halloway, late yesterday afternoon. Following investigations police were convinced that Dulmage had not observed the "stop sign" as he proceeded out of Ridley Ave. into Catherine St. Here again the damages were settled between the parties.

PARKING ENTRANCES CLEARLY SHOWN

Entrance to free parking spaces on the east bank of the Moira River and off upper Front Street on the west side will be more clearly marked in future with the installation of broad white, clearly visible arrows fastened over the entrance to each lot by workers of the public work department under the direction of Alderman Burton Jennings, chairman of the Regional Planning Committee.

DON'T STOP ME
—if you've heard this before!

Here IS the best picture I've seen this year! Did I say that before? Sure! I said the same thing about "Boys Town" and "Goodbye Mr. Chips"—and what's more I meant every word of it! And in all sincerity I mean every word when I tell you "ON BORROWED TIME" gave me the biggest thrill of any picture I've seen all year. It's grand fun, great entertainment, and when you find out about mysterious Mr. Brink and the apple tree you'll be jarred by one of the most surprising climaxes ever screened.

Lionel Barrymore as the salty old reprobate Gramps Northrup has the most wonderful role of his career (he'll remind you of Gramps in "You Can't Take It With You") and Bobs Watson, Mickey Rooney's little candy-mooching pal in "Boys Town," gives an outstanding performance. The stage play ran 40 weeks on Broadway and was a smash hit. Take my word for it—if you liked "Boys Town" and "You Can't Take It With You" you'll rave about MGM's "ON BORROWED TIME."

At midnight, after lunch the gathering was called to order, and the young couple were invited to the living room, where many beautiful and costly gifts were presented and the following address was read by Miss Bessie King.

Shannonville, Ont., Sept. 21

Dear Anneita and Bill:

A few evenings ago we entered your home with discordant music and you greeted everyone in the spirit in which they went.

Tonight we are visiting you in a more orderly fashion.

We are here to extend to you our heartiest congratulations and best wishes on your recent marriage.

Anneita you have grown up among us and we have always found you a cheery and willing helper in our community affairs. Life will not always be pleasant and easy, but we feel sure that with your sunny disposition and cheery way you will easily get over the rough places and find the happiness you expect.

Bill, although we have not known you as long as your wife, we have seen your car going down the old 2nd line quite often and feel that we know you well. In the time we have known you we have found a good neighbor and friend.

We are glad that you are going to make your home here in our community. We regard you both as true friends and none of us can have any too many friends.

Their are no friends like the old friends,
Who have shared our morning days
No greeting like their welcome,
No homage like their praise.
Tame is the scentless sunflower
With gaudy crown of gold
But friendship is the breathing rose
With sweets in every fold.

Now to show you just how we feel about you both, we ask you to accept these gifts, not for their monetary value but as a slight token of the esteem in which you are both held. We trust that you may have every happiness in your married life.

Signed on behalf of friends and neighbors—Douglas Marshall, Arthur Whiteman, Alex Leitch, Leslie Seeley.

Marmora—Marmora's opportunity to view the new series of motion pictures "The Royal Visit to Canada of King George VI and Queen Elizabeth" as presented by Fred L. Roy of Peterborough was accepted by a large number of residents of the village, Deloro and Cordova, on Monday evening. The showing in the Town Hall was sponsored by St. Andrew's Women's Association. Rev. Dr. W. P. Fletcher, in a pleasing speech introduced Mr. Roy who prior to the showing of the pictures asked the audience to rise and join in "O Canada." The scenes showed the departure of Their Majesties from Buckingham Palace and their arrival at Quebec and the reception given Royalty on visits to Quebec, Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto, Hamilton and Niagara Falls. Lovers of flowers well represented in the audience had the alternating thrill betweene scenes of pageantry of viewing those blooms in city parks or gardens for which Mr. Roy has ever a vigilant eye. The singing of the National Anthem at the close seemed to be that expression which all in the audience were ready for at any juncture in the program. Included in the audience and enjoying the program to the full were Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Norrie who were celebrating their golden wedding that day.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Hickey spent the weekend in Ottawa.

Mr. George Young is a patient in Belleville General Hospital.

A BLOCKADE WAR

The general objective of the Ministry of Economic Warfare is to "disorganize Germany's economic structure to such an extent as to make it impossible for her to carry on the war," Prime Minister Chamberlain declared in his fourth week report to the British Commons on Tuesday as to the progress of the war. He warned at the same time against hopes of an early collapse of the German economic structure and said that as Germany already possesses supplies of raw material she requires to import, quick results cannot therefore be expected from the Ministry of Economic Warfare. What Britain had so far done in seizure of contraband he told the House.

It was a cheering note to have the Prime Minister declare that materials were pouring in ever increasing volume from the Dominions to the United Kingdom for the common cause against the German Government.

The Right Honorable Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, presented facts which are striking:

The convoy system is already at work, guaranteeing safety.

Ships are leaving Britain defensively armed.

67,000 tons more of German merchandise has been seized by British vessels than Britain lost by sinking from the torpedoes of German U-boats. Britain has this added tonnage which is not at the bottom of the sea, whereas the British merchandise which was torpedoed and lost is at the bottom of the sea, and of no use to the Germans.

The merchant marine of the whole Empire will be protected against air and submarine attack shortly.

The number of vessels engaged on the hunt for submarines of the foe will be trebled by the end of October.

Torpedoed shipping is being replaced as rapidly as shipyards can turn it out in emergency.

The losses to the German submarine fleet were emphasized by the First Lord of the Admiralty—one tenth of all the U-boat fleet has been destroyed in little over three weeks, and possibly one-third of the raiders have been sent to the bottom. These figures count greatly in the estimate of accomplishments of Britain to date.

British loss in tonnage has been dwindling week by week.

Mr. Churchill referred to the fact that "the U-boats now seem to prefer neutral shipping to our own." Results of this are seen in the past few days, when Sweden and other neutrals have been raising loud protests and taking measures to protect their cargoes. Sweden has considered the step of sending merchandise overland to a Norwegian port to overcome the disadvantage of the lurking dangers in the Baltic. Sweden has been so outspoken as to rouse the German army commander-in-chief, Hermann Goering, who, it is said has spoken bluntly to the German naval chief on actions which are shutting the door on shipping to Germany which the latter country needs. The Prime Minister charged breaches of international law by Germany in sinking neutral vessels.

Prime Minister Chamberlain referred to the fine coordination of all forces of the French and British, to the advantage which Britain enjoys by the freedom of the seas, and to the economic situation.

EARLY SNOWFALL

The year 1939 has set the earliest record for snowfall. The turn in the weather on Monday evening which came with a thunderstorm closed with a snowfall of some proportions. It was not confined to any area but was spread over a large part of the North American Continent.

The first snow is often looked upon as a herald of colder weather but that is when the season is far advanced. Autumn has now only begun. Usually the first storms are in quite brisk weather with a touch of frost and the snow very frequently is often only a matter of a few flurries. Then after the first flurries often considerable time elapses before the real winter sets in, sometimes far in November.

The snowfall yesterday morning was quite unexpected and unusual, to say the least, because it was more than mere flurry of the flakes which are usually greeted with joy by children, waiting for winter sports to begin.

But autumn has just started. In the country and on the city streets the trees stand mantled in green, for leaves are everywhere green except in a very few places where there is a tree with the foliage partly on its way to the brown stage or to the red or golden. There was a very severe drought during the month of August when grass had lost all its color and became brittle and dry as to create a menace in many parts. Yet even scarcely a tree shows any sign of lack of moisture. Three more days left in September and then begins October, the month of the rich tapestry of colors which nature makes. The fall of the leaves is peculiar to this month and sometimes it is far on towards the end before the trees are bare. This gorgeous stage ushers in the approach of winter with trees stripped of their foliage and the leaves scudding down city streets, or blowing across lawns and roadways.

THE HUMMING BIRD

Hushed and silent is the bird-song
In these mellow days of autumn,
Wren and robin, swift and swallow to the summer land have flown;
Orioles so sweetly calling,
And the blue-bird's song enthralling—
Oh! that we might hear their music in these days so still and lone!

And the king-bird's nest in shadow
Tells no tale of crowded nestlings now that summer days are o'er;
But though bereft of singing
See! a humming bird is winging
With its airy vibrant spirit keeping summer at our door.

NOW THE PIGSKIN CHASERS ARE OFF WITH THE WHISTLE, and many memorable battles will be fought on the gridiron, where young men learn to control their tempers and develop self-confidence, courage and stability. It has always been the Englishman's boast that England's battles were won on the playing field of Eton—and it can be Canada's boast that much of Canada's greatness has been developed on the football fields.

COCHRANE, IN NORTHERN ONTARIO, HAS PRODUCED THE HERO OF THE WEEK in Jim Junko, a modest, self-effacing individual to whom the world had dealt little else than hard luck. Jim Junko saw a burning automobile and promptly kicked the door in and rescued four children from death. This was all in the day's work for Jim Junko, apparently, for he went on his way without waiting to be thanked or otherwise rewarded. He would have continued in obscurity had not severe burns incurred in the rescue necessitated hospital treatment. Then he was discovered as the hero who saved four young lives at the almost expense of his own. All honor to Jim Junko and the hope that fortune will deal him a better hand hereafter for this world needs all the Jim Junkos it can produce and retain.

GREY OWL'S ESTATE IS TO BE INVESTIGATED IN THE COURTS. "Grey Owl" obtained fame and fortune as an author and lecturer and was a staunch advocate of game conservation, and posed as the friend of all the little people. He served as Government Game Conservator and certainly was well acquainted with the wild life of Canada. He was claimed to be a Sioux Indian, but since his death, which occurred within the past year or so, claims have been made that he was a native of England who came out to this country and adopted the life of an Indian very successfully. Angele Belaney, claiming to be the widow of Grey Owl, claims a share in the $14,000 estate left by Grey Owl. Opposing her are Yvonne Perrier, of Tweedsmuir, Saskatchewan, and Shirley Dawn, who were named beneficiaries. Evidence will be taken at North Bay. Grey Owl certainly made good as an Indian and from all reports was a reasonably good Indian, and while he has passed to the Happing Hunting Grounds where good Indians are supposed to go to he has left behind him in his books and lectures a pleasant taste and an influence for good whether his original color was white or red.

The Ladies' Auxiliary to the Y.M.C.A. has decided to continue a Star Course of entertainments this coming season and several first class attractions have been arranged for.

At the Belleville Cheese Board 469 boxes of colored cheese and 40 boxes of white cheese were offered for sale. The colored sold at 26 3-16 cents and the white for 26 11-16 cents.

The price for live hogs is now $16.50 per hundred weight. Messrs. R. Empson and Son made a shipment to Montreal yesterday.

Night classes will be opened at the Belleville High School on the evening of Oct. 2nd.

30 YEARS AGO

SEPT. 27TH, 1909

Autos on the Trent Road yesterday did not raise as much dust as they did on Sunday last, but it was not because they were going slowly.

Mr. C. E. Cameron of Toronto spent yesterday here with friends.

The steam barge Aberdeen collided with the bay bridge this morning when attempting to pass through the swing span and the bridge was considerably damaged. One end of the span was moved from off the pier about fifteen inches making it impossible for the swing part to come back and lock properly. The barge received slight damage.

Mr. and Mrs. Bidwell Burgess of Fenelon Falls are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. Colling.

Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Henry have returned to the city.

40 YEARS AGO

SEPT. 27TH, 1899

If all the necessaries of life keep going up in price, there won't be any necessity for Thanksgiving Day in Belleville.

Mrs. K. Langman has returned home from Rochester, N. Y., where she visited friends.

Mr. Archie Chisholm, son of the late Murchison Chisholm of Sidney Township, is visiting friends in the city and vicinity. He now resides in Bay City, Mich.

Mr. George H. Allen of the Winnipeg Post Office staff, is spending a few days renewing acquaintances in the city. Many of our citizens will remember him as a courteous, obliging and reliable clerk in the post office here in the early eighties, when he won not only the esteem but the friendliness of the then postmaster, the late Mr. J. H. Meacham and of many of our citizens. Mr. Allen is now on his way back to Winnipeg after a trip to England and Scotland.

50 YEARS AGO

It is expected that the northern cut on the excavations for the embankment across the marsh in connection with the construction of the bay bridge will be completed tomorrow. Mr. Munson has made excellent progress in this part of the work. The pier which was damaged by accident some days ago has been repaired and the work of filling in with stone is being performed by Capt. Waters, who has the contract for that part of the job.

On Monday the children at the schools will be presented with handsome pictures of Little Lord Fauntleroy.

The Rev. J. B. Clarkson has left Napanee to reside in Montreal. The Rev. O. C. Johnson of Hamilton will be Mr. Carkson's successor in the Methodist Church at Napanee.

Early Submarine Warfare

In 1914, the war value of the submarine was little known. One day, early in the World War, a small German submarine, the U-9, under the command of Otto Weddingen, startled the world by sinking in quick succession three British cruisers—the Aboukir, Cressy, and Hogue. The destruction was accomplished with much the same ease as shooting tame ducks on a pond. The victims had been steaming along unmindful of danger. After the first ship had been sunk, the other two had stopped and were also torpedoed.

At that time, ships knew nothing of defence against submarines—much less about offence. The cruiser losses, however, taught the allies a valuable lesson which they were quick to profit by.

Thereafter, ships did not steer straight courses, but changed at odd times, commencing what was later termed zigzagging. When a ship was sunk, the destroyers stopped and recovered the survivors while the large ships fled in different directions.

But no offensive weapon had been developed for use against the submarine. The first zigzag tactics adopted were too simple. The U-boat commanders, becoming more skilled through experience, were able to get in many successful attacks. More and more tonnage was lost by the allies.

Then the curve of U-boat success took a very decided drop. This was brought about through several means.

First, a bomb—known later as the depth charge — that exploded under water and exerted a crushing blow to the submarine's hull was invented.

Secondly, the convoy system was adopted. Groups of ships, carefully guarded by escorting destroyers and cruisers, were taken by zigzagging courses over irregular routes.

Thirdly, every time a U-boat was lost (about 175 were destroyed during the war) a valuable, experienced skipper was lost with it. The result was that the new U-boat commanders could never keep their experience abreast or ahead of the allied anti-submarine tactics.

During the last stages of the war, very few successful submarine attacks were made—and those few generally by the experienced submarine captains who still survive. Convoy after convoy sailed the seas without the loss of a single boat.

It should be noted that there is no record of a submarine taking part in a major sea battle. The reason is fairly obvious. The modern battle covers too large an area for a submarine to keep in contact.

On the surface, where it can run at good speeds on its engines, a "sub" is very vulnerable, can be sunk with ease by other men-of-war. Submerged it is slow and can never keep up with a fast-moving field of battle.

After the last war, it was quite plain that, unless means were found to prevent the submarine from dealing its attacks, it was the most deadly weapon in the world. The allies had found the antidote for submarine poison in use of the convoys and depth charges.

Now the question was one of overcoming some of the "sub's" inherent weaknesses so it could again become the menace it was in 1914-16. All navies undoubtedly made valiant efforts in that direction.

The first step would be to train the submarine commanders to make attacks on high speed, zigzagging targets, well protected by screening destroyers and cruisers. Over a period of years it is only natural to assume that this has been accomplished by the warring nations, and that a large number of replacement officers are available against inevitable losses.

The modern submarine is a more seaworthy boat, has a longer cruising radius, possesses better periscopes, engines, storage batteries and listening gear than those of the last war. But every submarine has weaknesses which have been impossible to overcome.

Once a submerged submarine is sighted by a surface craft or aeroplane, it can almost be stricken from the books, for the large depth charges of today would crush in its hull in less time than it takes to tell it.

A submarine could be built with enough potential speed to remain in the field of battle, but it would destroy itself by making its presence known long before it could reach its destination. Its long, feathery, tell-tale mark, stirred up at high speed, would be noted by every aeroplane and surface craft within miles of it. Operators of the listening devices on destroyers would have it centred on their phones before it could even get close to the shooting range of the fighting ships.

This still leaves the submarine out of big sea battles unless some crippled warship wanders by it while it is running submerged at a low speed.

So it all boils down to this. The modern submarine skippers can get successful attacks in on zigzagging, screened convoys, provided they are able to evade the watchful eyes of the aeroplanes and destroyers and can still keep their hearts in the game with huge depth charges jarring their eye teeth loose.

The submarine remains a weapon of opportunity. It presents a deadly menace to the unwary. Without adequate convoy it will take a great toll of enemy merchant men, and is, of all naval vessels, the most difficult to locate and to destroy. By Lieutenant-Commander Harley F. Copes U.S. Navy.

Wide Powers

Wide and drastic are the powers of censorship as announced from the office of Director Walter Thompson at Ottawa. It is regarded as ironical that the Chief Censor now occupies the office formerly occupied by the German Consul-General to Canada. Might it not be said, having regard for the strictness of the censorship, that the occupancy is as appropriate as it is ironical.

There is no doubt that Walter Thompson will exercise his power with judgment and finesse, but one is forced to enquire if it will mean jail for an editor to deliver sound criticism of the administration of the day. Will it be possible without penalty to be able to expose say, for instance, a shell shortage, as was done by Northcliffe in England during the Great War? One regulatory clause reads: "Any report or statement likely to prejudice the recruiting, training, discipline or administration of the forces" will involve prosecution. The Prime Minister has intimated that he will not have the life of Parliament prolonged, which means an election next year. With war in progress, does it mean that critics of the administration will be muzzled under the rules of censorship? It would be impossible to conduct a fair election without the freest of speech and criticism for all that the government has and has not done.

It is true that in time of war it is highly necessary to forego individual rights for the common good. We doubt if there is a newspaper in Canada which will deliberately give offence, but it has to be admitted that the censorship regulations are stiff, particularly so for a country in which there is such a large circulation of United States newspapers which can say anything at any time. Has the thought occurred to the Chief Censor that it will prove salutory to put the ban on some American issues?—St. Catharines, Standard.

HITLER'S BRAVERY

Commenting upon Hitler's speech to the Reichstag in which he dramatically declared that "I again put on the uniform which once was most sacred and dearest to me" and "I will take it off only after victory," a writer in the New York Post recalls that Hitler uttered almost identical sentiments 16 years ago when he urged a group of party associates to join him in the famous Bierbrauhaus putsch.

"You must fight with me," he cried at that time. "You must win with me or die with me. If this goes wrong, there are four bullets in my pistol—three for my associates if they desert me, the last for myself.' And speaking, he held his revolver to his head.

The putsch was carried out and failed. Ludendorff, who had been tricked into the affair, walked calmly through the crowds into the hands of the police.

Adolf Hitler threw himself to the ground when the first shot was fired. In falling he bruised his arm, but that did not keep him from running. He found his car and drove it to the home of his friend, Hanfetaengel (Ptuzi), thence to Effing in the mountains where he hid until the police discovered him.

Rudolph Olden tells this story in his famous Hitler biography. Is it prophetic?— Brockville Recorder and Times.

FATHER'S PLACE

Here is one which is worth while adding to your collection:

A Sault-man was explaining that King George is the official head of the British army and that President Roosevelt is the official head of the U.S. army, but that the actual work was done by the chief of staff and the generals and so on.

"Now," he asked, "do you understand?"

"Yes, dad," said his ten-year-old daughter, "King George is the head of the army just the same as you are the head of this house."—Sault Ste. Marie Star.

The Factor of Geology

In his day, William Smith, the centenary of whose death fell on August 28, was well known as a mineral surveyor and civil engineer, but he is now remembered almost solely as one of the founders of the science of geology. Like his famous contemporaries, Telford and Macadam, he travelled throughout the length and breadth of the land, but while his business was the construction of canals, embankments, drainage works and the like, his main interest was always the study of the various geological strata, the sequence in which they occurred, and the fossils they contained, and his observations of these things have made every civil engineer his debtor. As a boy, like many others, he had collected fossils, but mere collecting could not satisfy his inquiring mind. The fossils raised questions which he saw could only be answered by long and exhaustive research, and to this he deliberately devoted himself. His name has long been honored among geologists and the eminent German professor, Karl von Zittel, wrote of him: "Without much intellectual cultivation, without any introductory teaching, without any means at his disposal, and at first even without the encouragement and sympathy of his colleagues in the study which he loved, his own unflinching determination, noble enthusiasm and remarkable insight enabled him to elucidate the structure of his native land and with such clearness and accuracy that no important alteration has had to be made in his work. Smith confined himself to the empirical investigation of his country and was never tempted into general speculations about the history of formation of the earth. His greatness is based upon this wise restraint and the steady adherence to his definite purpose; to these qualities, the modest, self-sacrificing and open-hearted student of nature owes his well-deserved reputation as the 'Father of English Geology'."

Smith was born in the Oxfordshire village of Churchill on March 23, 1769, and died at Northampton on August 28, 1839. He was buried in the ancient church of St. Peter's in that town, and a memorial tablet therein recalls his labours. His father, a farmer in a small way, died when Smith was eight years old, and it was an uncle who looked after him. He had little schooling, but managed to learn something of geometry and surveying, and at eighteen became assistant to a surveyor at Stow-in-the-Wold, Gloucestershire. No occupation could have been more suitable and more likely to further his interest in his fossils. By the age of twenty-four he had progressed far enough to be employed on the surveys and construction of the Somerset Coal Canal. Starting from the Avon and Kennet Canal at Bradford, Wilts, this canal ran by one branch to Dunkerton, Camerton and High Littleton, about eight miles, and by another past Radstock to the collieries at Welton, about seven and one-half miles with a rise of 138 feet. The canal was built for the conveyance of coal to Bath, Bristol and other towns and villages. In 1794, in connection with the canal, two of the committee took their surveyor a 900-mile tour to Newcastle and back to inspect similar works. The party went by chaise and of the trip Smith wrote: "No journey, purposely contrived, could have better answered my purpose. To sit forward on the chaise was a favor readily granted; my eager eyes were never idle a moment; and post-haste travelling only put me upon new resources.... My friends being both concerned in working coal, were interested in two objects; but I had three, and the most important one to me I pursued unknown to them; though I was continually talking about the rocks and other strata, they seemed not desirous of knowing the guiding principles or objects of these remarks...." In later years Smith travelled as much as 10,000 miles a year, but this was his start in geological exploration.

His work on the canal finished, Smith easily found other employment in Suffolk, Norfolk, Yorkshire, the Forest of Dean, and elsewhere, his headquarters for fourteen years, 1805-19, being a house in Buckingham street, Strand, London. It was here, in 1815, that he completed his great geological map of England and Wales, with a part of Scotland "exhibiting the collieries, mines and canals, the marshes and fen lands originally overflowed by the sea; and the varieties of soil, according to the variation of the substrata, etc." "What the most distinguished mineralogists," said a French geologist, "during a period of half a century had done for a little part of Germany, had been undertaken and accomplished for the whole of England by one man." From the time that his map appeared, Smith's fame was secure.

The vast additions to geological science in the last century tend to obscure the labours of the pioneers, such as Smith but it is only fit and proper that, on suitable occasions, due homage should be paid to those who so truly laid the foundations of a most important science.

In connection with the centenary of Smith's death, the Geologists' Association are holding a Field Meeting at Bath on September 23 and 24, when excursions will be made in the district associated with his discoveries. The arrangements have been made by Dr. W. R. Cox, of the Natural History Museum, South Kensington, where Smith's fossils are preserved.—From Engineering, London.

Hold High the Torch

The die is cast.

Because of Hitler's insane greed for power, September third found the world plunged into what may be the world's worst conflict. When the German army entered Danzig and the Corridor, a feeble but long-treasured hope underwent a blackout.

Now the tension of uncertainty is over.

The Empire entered the struggle "calm, firm and united" against Germany's challenge to civilized order in the world.

Another Apollyon straddled the path of civilization. He, too had to be encountered and will be slain. The challenge of overweening power was accepted and once more the march of justice is irresistibly begun. Whither its banners are unfurled, the democracies will resolutely follow until Nemesis comes.

On the home front we must hold the fort of national unity, being strong in action as we were in voice last May when we loyally shouted, "Long live Your Majesties." The day is now past for petty politics, economic strife and social differences. The national emergency which confronts the country now will enable us to unite as no pressing economic and financial problems did in the last nine years. Our British customs have shown us the way to a united parliament, a united social order (as the workers on the Clyde so patriotically demonstrated in late August) and a united business front. Politically, commercially and martially, in whatever part of Canada, we shall conduct ourselves as citizens of a united Dominion.

We shall watch and ward over industry, commerce and finance, so that their mobilization will not only be effective now but that their full enlistment will not be allowed to undermine unwisely the foundations of the Dominion in the future. In the complete alignment of our economy on a war-time basis, we shall not be forgetful of the peace which is to come.

We shall justify the tradition that Canada is a major link in the defence of the Empire. Our sacrifices to the nth degree are England's and Democracy's. No [illegible] on this score is necessary. Our determination to work steadily against the rule of force will [illegible] our efforts all along the line.

This realistic job is now in full sight and neither irrational fears nor unfounded hopes will deter us from our duty. We have the right kind of statesmen and executives to direct the work. Our citizenry will respond to the proper leadership. We shall be firm in our faith. Truly, "There is a divinity that shapes our ends, rough hew them how we will."

Let us catch the torch and hold it high!

French Artillery Wipes Out Portions German Westwall Near Merzig, Saarbruecken

Entire Western Front Blazes With Heavy Cannonading as Germans Try to Rebuild Shattered Blockhouses

25-MILE FRONT

French Military Men Believe This Sector Erected Too Hurriedly to Stand Up Under Heavy Bombardment

By JOHN MARTIN
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Paris, Sept. 27 (AP)—French artillery was reported today to have wiped out portions of the German Westwall between Merzig and Saarbruecken as the entire Western Front blazed with heavy cannonading.

Dispatches said the Germans had answered the bombardment with an intense counterfire on French advance positions in the Saar and Palatinate areas to protect German troops working feverishly to rebuild shattered blockhouses.

A communique issued this morning by the General Staff made no reference to this reported success, and said the night had been quiet. The communique made mention however, of "enemy artillery fire on our rear lines in the region of Wissembourg."

A 25-Mile Front

The Merzig-Saarbruecken sector extends along a 25-mile front at the northern end of the French-German frontier, where, French sources said, there were 30 to 40 German pill boxes to the square mile.

French military men were said to have held long the belief that these works were constructed too hurriedly to stand up under heavy bombardment.

Reports from the front said the French Air Force was proving a large factor in enabling the artilleery to score direct hits on the German fortified line.

French Infantry activity, these reports declared, was confined to patrol skirmishes.

Characterized as "Duel"

Long range German guns were reported to have dropped "several shells" on unidentified villages which previously had gone untouched. The artillery action, the French said, could be characterized as a "duel."

They declared they had been unable to verify reports of the bombing of the German airplane works at Friederischafen early in the week but revised upward their estimates of the number of German planes shot down during an air battle over the Western Front Monday.

New information, they said, showed "almost certainly" that four German planes were brought down. French losses were still estimated at two planes.

Massing Behind Lines

German troops, meanwhile, were said to be massing behind the lines as fast as they could be transferred from the Polish front. The French professed to see German uneasiness regarding the Eastern Front in reports Puehrer Hitler had ordered his army high command to expedite mopping-up operations in Poland.

At the same time, the French apparently were concerned lest Germany strike through neutral Belgium, the Netherlands, or Switzerland. (Germany officially has disavowed any such plan.)

The French asserted the war was "robbed" of the possibility of surprise because only three courses were open to the Germans. These, they declared, were:

Only Three Courses

1. An attempted crossing of the Rhine.
2. An attack through neutral countries.
3. A counter-blockade effort, which the French said also would necessitate invasion of neutral lowland countries on the north to seize French channel ports.

The French argued the first course would be practically impossible in the face of heavy Maginot line guns sweeping the Rhine.

They said the General Staff was ready to meet any threat through neutral countries with fast tanks and mobile units of combined French-British forces.

On the diplomatic front, France and Great Britain kept close watch on negotiations between Germany and Soviet Rusisa, marked by the expected arrival of the German Foreign Minister, Joachim Von Ribbentrop, in Moscow today. French observers characterized Germany as the "weak sister" in the present Nazi-Soviet set-up because of pressure being exerted on Germany in the west by France and Britain.

Only One Disagrees

In France, only one person publicly expressed disagreement with the government's decision yesterday to dissolve the French Communist party. Former Premier Leon Blum declared that while a majority of the Socialists agreed with the move, he personally believed the Communists would have died a quicker death without a government decree.

Violation of the issolution decree is punishable by jail terms of one to five years and fines of 100 to 5,000 francs (about $2 to $100).

EMPLOYMENT

The official report describes this phenomenon as "especially interesting" in view of the fact that employment there has declined in 13 of the last 18 Augusts.

First Market Reflection

This increase is interpreted here as the first marked reflection in the records of munitions manufacture. Generally, however, no great upswing is expected for many months. Production has not been started on much of the orders already placed by the Dominion and British governments since considerable time is required to adapt mills to the new production.

The flow of huge munitions orders has scarcely started, though. The War Supply Board is just getting on its feet. When the Board does get into full swing, it will take three or four months for that action to be translated into industrial employment, it is expected.

Staffs of 5,184 business establishments in Ontario were increased to 461,854 persons from 453,840 on August 1 while on Sept. 1, 1938, 449,147 workers were employed by 4,745 firms. Manufacturing recorded a substantial advance in Ontario, marked improvement being shown in the vegetable food and iron and steel divisions together with smaller gains in textile, leather, chemical, electric light and power and other classes.

OBSERVERS FEAR

Statement Cheers Nation

The statement of the First Lord of the Admiralty, Winston Churchill, in the House of Commons yesterday that the U-boat menace to British shipping was diminishing steadily cheered the nation.

Mr. Churchill said losses from submarine attacks the first week of the war amounted to 65,000 tons; the second week, 46,000 tons; third week, 21,000 tons, and in the next six days, only 9,000 tons .The Navy, he said, seized 67,000 tons more of German merchandise than was sunk in British ships.

Other heartening points in Mr. Churchill's statement:—

Britain has more supplies than she would have if no war had been declared.

British merchant vessels and fast liners are being armed and anti-submarine forces are becoming stronger daily with trebling of the hunting force expected by the end of October.

The press speculated guardedly over implications of the visit to Moscow of the German Foreign Minister, Joachim Von Ribbentrop. Some observers feared another diplomatic surprise is being hatched.

May Hammer Out Peace Plan

The Daily Mail said that "In some quarters it is believed the real purpose of the visit is to hammer out a peace plan that would satisfy Britain and France while saving the face of Hitler."

"The fortunes of all the Balkan countries may be bound up in these new plottings at the Kremlin", The Mail added.

The Daily Express predicted that "Hitler's peace barrage is about to descend on us at any moment now."

"Hitler and his key ministers all rushed back yesterday by airplane and car from wherever they were to Berlin and they are having an important cabinet meeting there in the Chancellery today," The Daily Express said.

"The idea behind this is to frighten the French and ourselves into acceptance of the German proposals.

"The real bluff is in Von Ribbentrop's Moscow visit, for it has been cleverly timed to coincide with that of the Turkish Foreign Minister to Moscow. What they are trying to scare us into believing is that Russia, Germany and Turkey mean to come to a secret agreement for partitioning the Balkan States and the near east."

Causes Uneasiness

The diplomatic correspondent of The News Chronicle said it is likely that "Russia's growing economic domination of the Balkans is causing Hitler so much uneasiness that he has decided to send Von Robbentrop to Moscow in the hope that this inevitable process may be halted."

The Daily Herald's diplomatic correspondent said the Soviet and Turkish Foreign Ministers would discuss "the policies to be pursued with regard to all the smaller states which lie more or less between them."

"Foreign observers now believe that the Soviet-Turkish agreement already is 'in the bag' and that it will be announced tomorow," he wrote. "I may be over pessimistic but I am now apprehensive it will be of such a nature to bar Turkey from signing the Anglo-Turkish and Franco-Turkish treaties in their present form. I expect the Russians to insist very strongly indeed that in no circumstances shall Turkey permit any 'outside' fleet or army passing the Dardanelles or operating anywhere in the Balkans."

By J. F. SANDERSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Sept. 27 (CP Cable)—Two conflicting views are held in London on the reason behind Joachim Von Ribbentrop's flying visit to Moscow for the second time in five weeks.

The optimistic view is that the Nazi Foreign Minister wants to find out what Joseph Stalin thinks should be done in Poland and particularly his views on the establishment of a buffer state between the German and Russian spheres of influence carved out of conquered Poland.

Stalin's views on the Baltic countries, especially in view of Russia's protests to Estonia over Polsh submarine movements in her waters, also may be sought.

Pessimistic View

The pessimistic view, held in many diplomatic quarters, is that Von Ribbentrop, the architect of the Russia-German Non-Aggression Agreement has a plan to draw Turkey into its operations. It is admitted that if Turkey deserted Great Britain and France at this moment it would throw the Balkan countries into the Russia-German orbit in self defence.

The presence in Moscow of the Turkish Foreign Minister, Sukru Saracoglu, has been taken as supporting the view that Germany and Russia may be hatching a plan to split up the Balkans just as they did Poland. There is little doubt that Fuehrer Hitler and Stalin covet the oil fields and farm lands of the Danube Basin.

There is no evidence in London that Turkey, which is regarded as the key to the whole Balkan puzzle, intends to desert Britain and France, with whom she has unsigned mutual assistance pacts to operate in the event of war in the Mediterranean. Official circles say that the "London-Nakara Axis" still is strong and unaffected by diplomatic and martial strokes in Berlin and Moscow.

BALKANS SEEK NEUTRALITY BLOC

Negotiations Reported Under Way for Russian and Italian Guarantees

By LLOYD LEHRBAS
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Bucharest, Sept. 27 (AP)—With eyes on Moscow for some sign of sponsorship of a strong neutrality bloc in the Balkans, Europe's southeastern capitals — especially Bucharest—worked apprehensively today to ease all possible causes of conflict.

Diplomatic circles in this Rumanian capital reported negotiations were under way at Moscow upon the initiative of Turkey, for Russian and Italian guarantees of the Balkan status quo.

Apprehensiveness over Russia's intentions however, persisted among Rumanians— an uneasiness fed by rumors of Soviet troops massed along the Dniester River and prepared to seize Bessarabia at the opportune moment. The Foreign Office sought to allay these fears with denials.

No Change In Recent Days

Neutral foreign sources said there were no authentic reports to indicate any significant change in the last few days along the Rumanian-Russian frontier, now greatly expanded by the Red Army's sweep into Poland.

(Bessarabia, formerly part of the Russian Empire, was joined to Rumania in 1918. Its area is 17.140 square miles and its population 2,350,000.)

Observers estimated 50,000 Rumanian soldiers were in position along Bessarabia's river boundary.

Rumanians feared any Soviet seizure of Bessarabia might be followed by Hungarian attempts to occupy Transylvania and Bulgarian attempts to occupy Dobruja.

Rumania was reported willing to make a token of rectification of the Rumanian-Bulgarian boundary to win Bulgaria's participation in the proposed neutrality plan. Hungary was understood to be willing to waive her claim to Transylvania provided she obtained a guarantee of her present territorial integrity.

Old Fashioned Girl

By HERBERT L. McNARY

Bruce Gordon was treated to the surprise of his young life when he actually found out what sort of a girl Naomi Fairchild was. Of course he knew she was pretty—that was one of the things his eyes were supposed to find out.

He had heard his mother and sister and his sister's girl chums say she was pretty, and usually they qualified such an opinion with a "Isn't it too bad—"

He had never attempted to find out what was too bad. All he knew was that nearly two years ago a rather pretty girl had moved into the old Marston estate. He also knew that the only other person to accompany her was her mother and that this mother's name was Fairchild, which most likely meant that the daughter's name was also Fairchild.

Another fact he vaguely comprehended was that moving into the Marston estate was just about as far as the Fairchilds went in becoming a part of rather exclusive Portchester.

And then Bruce Gordon met Naomi Fairchild at a church social. The social was a small charity affair and not a society festivity, so most of Portchester bought tickets and most of Portchester remained away and did not use these tickets.

But Bruse Gordon was a town selectman and secretly entertained visions of some day sitting in congress, so he not only had to purchase tickets but was forced to put in appearance at the function.

He compromised by coming late, and then immediately sought out Mrs. Withrow, the minister's wife, to offer her his apology. He had spoken to her before he realized that she was with Mrs. Fairchild and her daughter. Gordon murmured something that the minister's wife scarcely heard for her eyes had brightened with pleasure at the approach of the popular young selectman. Plainly here was an opportunity for the minister's wife to be of service to the neglected Fairchilds.

"Oh, Mr. Gordon," she beamed, "are you acquainted with Mrs. Fairchild and her daughter Naomi?"

"I have not had that pleasure," smiled Gordon and bowed to Mrs. Fairchild, an elderly lady with massed white hair. She seemed a character that might have stepped from the pages of some romantic novel, so precise and courtly did she appear. Gordon bowed and turned to the daughter.

Soft blue eyes were looking upon him demurely from beneath long curling lashes—and then the girl curtsied. Gordon was startled and for a moment his face tingled warmly, and then he bowed from the waist, after the fashion of men in Continental portraits.

The music was sounding the strains of a waltz and Gordon offered the girl his arm. He was a good dancer, but there was a moment's awkwardness before he sensed that she expected him to dance an old fashioned waltz. He drifted into the almost forgotten steps and was surprised to find how he enjoyed it. There was a soothing dreaminess to this number that was actually fascinating and he had waltzed to that number on many occasions without experiencing a similar sensation.

"I think a waltz delightful, don't you?" asked the girl in a soft musical tone that seemed in harmony with the dance.

"This number certainly is delightful," agreed Gordon.

"I enjoy a waltz even more than I do a polka or schottisch, don't you?"

"Er—yes," Gordon gulped. For a moment he thought she had meant to be amusing, but a quick glance convinced him of her seriousness. Those dark blue eyes were soft with the music of the dance; there was a mistiness about them and a delicacy in the long curving lashes that was alluring.

Gordon looked closely at her as he waltzed. The most discerning eye could find no evidence of a cosmetic and yet the creamy velvetness of her complexion seemed incredible while her full red lips might have been dileneated by an artist, so finely were they drawn.

It seemed an outrage that such a beautiful and sweet a girl should be unrecognized by Portchester society and Gordon felt indignant. For the first time he wondered what short-coming or scandal concerning this girl or her mother placed them beyond the pale of absurd social requirements. He had a warm outraged feeling that the crime was trivial and unjust.

Gordon danced several times with Naomi Fairchild in the short hour or so there was left of the evening's entertainment, and never had a similar brief space of time afforded him so much enjoyment.

This girl was so sweet, so like a character of a novel or play; there was even the delicate scent of lavender about her and he could almost vision her in crinoline. How different she was from his sister's pals.

Now Bruce Godorn was in no sense a prude. He was seldom shocked by the modern girl, at least as typified by his sister Dot's friends. It was true, of course, that they did unconventional things according to the standards of other generations and occasionally made one gasp with their frankness; but there was nothing in Dot's chums. They were wonderful pals, but something was missing. Bruce Gordon wondered if he had found that missing something in the sharp contrast between this girl and the girls of his sister's crowd. Certainly this girl had touched a tender sympathetic chord never found by any other girl in Portchester.

When it was time to go Gordon offered to take the Fairchilds home in his car.

"Thank you," smiled Mrs. Fairchild, "but our carriage is calling for us."

"Oh," was all that Gordon could say, and coloring a bit he added: "Now that we are acquainted I hope you will let me call sometime."

"You may call Thursday for tea," smiled Mrs. Fairchild.

When Bruce Gordon reached home he had the firm intention of bluntly asking his sister on what grounds the Fairchilds were barred from Portchester society; but for once he found that his sister had reached home before he had and was tucked away in bed. In the morning Gordon's purpose to quiz his sister was not firm. It might lead to quizzing in return and arouse a suspicion that he was interested in the girl; and with so many available girls of Dot's choosing in Portchester this would mean that he would be put on the defensive. Then again he was not sure of the extent of his interest in Naomi Fairchild. It might merely be that his sympathy had been aroused.

But it only required a few visits to the quaint Fairchild home to convince Gordon that his interest in Naomi was both genuine and considerable; but by no word or suggestion had he found any hint of the cause that kept her from being invited to Portchester's most exclusive affairs. Finally he was constrained delicately to cross question his sister.

"And what do you think of her?" he asked after putting many leading questions to Dot.

"I think she is wonderful, just about the sweetest looking girl I have ever seen. And her mother must be a darling."

"Do they—er—come from a good family?"

"I'll say they do, Bruce. They are Virginia Fairchilds."

"Then," exclaimed the puzzled Bruce, "why isn't the girl invited to any affairs?"

His sister Dot laughed gayly.

"You're funny, Bruce, you'd know if you met the girl. I suppose it's the mother's fault for she has the girl steeped in the period of the Nineteenth century. She couldn't mix with our crowd and she'd be hopelessly out of place."

"Is that the only reason she isn't invited?" insisted Gordon, with a bewilderment that carried a sense of relief.

"Of course, you goose. Don't you see no boy would be interested in her or look after her at parties. She's too old fashioned."

"Oh," said Gordon enigmatically. And men were suppose to be open books to these modern girls.

Portraits of Two Ladies Working With the Painter

"I thought I would like to paint this room blue. . . . you know, a sort of light blue . . . or maybe just a bit darker. What do you think? . . . . Or do you think I'd like a dusty pink better? . . . .Or would a medium shade of green be nice to live with? . . . . I wonder if I'd like wallpaper these days, aren't there? But I'm sure I'd never be able to tell which one I'd like best. Don't you think its hard to imagine how wallpaper would look like on the walls? You have to look through so many books of designs . . . and then you never really know how the paper will look on the walls . .. But this room is rather dark . . . perhaps after all I'd better just have cream walls. You know the shade I mean . . . a sort of light cream. Don't you really think that cream would be safest?"

This is a candid camera shot of Mrs. Timid consulting with the painter at eight or nine o'clock of the morning on which he has planned to begin the painting job. If he is clever—and painters are, because of their experience, apt to be excellent psychologists in their required line—he will wait until her last question. Then he will wax eloquent on the charms, artistic and functional, of cream . . and she will get what she deserves . . .. cream!

Mrs. Timid has probably known for weeks, perhaps for months, that she would at about this time have to choose her paint-colors. But has she done anything about it? No! She is afraid of bcolor, doubtful about her own color-preferences. And, instead of spending her time and effort doing her "home work" in preparation for this important conference with her painter, she has spent her time and effort complaining about the "devastating task" of choosing colors. For weeks she has floundered, in the uncertain and vague way in which she flounders when she talks to the painter. She has done nothing to make herself aware of what beauty color could contribute to her life, to her family life, to the charm of her home.

Most of us have an instinct for color. Mrs. Timid has . . . her choice of clothes definitely reveals the happy truth. But when it comes to home decoration, Mrs. Timid retreats before the hurdle of developing her sense of color. She is a color-coward, and is unwilling to take steps to defeat her cowardice.

Now let's look at Mrs. Courageous. Mrs. C. hasn't had much experience in home decoration, but, quite rightly, she didn't consider this a reason why she couldn't find out how much she really knew about color and, starting from that point, develop an awareness of color.

So Mrs. C. did lots of sensible home work. She went to the library and read books on color. She read illuminating articles on decoration in magazines and newspapers. She studied the colors in her garden, and in the gardens of her friends.

But most important of all, Mrs. C. went on what she called "snipping tours". If, when she was shopping, a color caught her eye, she asked for a sample of it, a "snip" of it. It might be a sample of dress material, or a piece of silk or satin or velvet in the upholstery department. She saved cosmetic boxes and gift boxes and gift wrapping papers. She even bought a box of face cloths in various lovely pastel shades. Everything she saw was grist to her color-mill. She studied exhibit rooms in the furniture departments of her local stores.

Samples of wallpapers were gold mines to Mrs. C. Their beauty of color and design intrigued her to use wallpapers in some of her rooms. And for the walls of her living room . . . . probably the most important color in the house . . . .she had found exactly the shade in the background color in a wallpaper.

With these sample colors she found out her likes and dislikes, which ones continued to delight her, which lost their interest after companionship with them for a while. They were the key that opened the door of the world of colors, that she had chosen for her own.

So Mrs. C. was ready to work intelligently with the painter. She was armed with samples of exactly the shades she wanted. The painter respected the fact that she knew what she wanted, worked with her to match the shades, put samples of the shade on various parts of the room. These samples were allowed to dry overnight, to determine what the changes in shade would be.

I hope the Mrs. T's among us will take a leaf from the book of the Mrs. C's among us!

DR. DAFOE'S COLUMN on the Quintuplets and the Care of Your Children

Care of a Baby in its First Year

Very, very often I receive in the mail a letter from some mother who in effect tells me that it is all very well for us to have done what we have for the Quintuplets, but that mothers without our hospital and our nurses haven't the same opportunity to bring their babies successfully through the first year or so.

I always take time to write these people and impress on them that it is quite within their powers to do almost everything we did for the Quints—and right in their own homes. Of course it is nice to have a hospital all equipped. But remember when the Quints were born we didn't have a hospital or anything like it. We had just a little house away out in the country, without running water or electric lights, or any of the facilities most houses have today.

So I think in the next few columns we will go over in detail the actual mechanics of taking care of a new born baby. We will begin right at the beginning. The child has just been born and the doctor in attendance has cut the cord and handed the child to his nurse, or his assistant. ( My nurses when the Quints were born were two neighbor women).

The nurse will wrap the child in a warm blanket until the doctor has finished making the mother comfortable, and can then examine the baby to make sure there isn't anything wrong with him. When the physician has finished this inspection and given the little fellow his approval, the job of caring for him then becomes the duty of the mother and the nurse.

Naturally, one of the first articles of furnture your baby will need is a bed, or a crib, or a cot, or a basinette, or whatever you may choose to call it. The Quintuplets had a basket for a bed, and many, many other children I have attended have lived their early days in a clothes basket, lined to keep it warm and free from draughts.

The mattress on which the child is to lie should be firm and even, and ought to be covered with a rubber sheet, which in turn will be covered with a cotton sheet or pillow slip. When the new arrival is placed in this bed, he will be covered with a light wool blanket or a cotton sheet, depending upon the temperature.

One thing I always advise mothers —and I find it rather hard to convince them—is that babies are better without pillows. So many mother have gone to great pains to embroider a special pillow for the expected child, and when I tell them they shouldn't use it, they often take it just a little to heart. I have even found them slipping the pillow under the child when I was leaving.

The bed should be kept away from drafts, and where light doesn't fall directly on the child's face. Keep mosquito netting over the bed too, especially if there are any insects around. If the weather is cold warm the bed with hot water bottles, always being sure that the stoppers are in tight. If you don't the child may get burned, or the bed be flooded.

One important thing—give your baby plenty of fresh air to breathe. Always keep a window open a little. Breathing cold air won't hurt him a bit if he is warmly covered. Remember the Quintuplets have slept with their windows open every night since they were born, and it sometimes gets as cold as forty below zero.

C. G. I. T. Girls Enjoy Outing

The C.G.I.T. of Holloway Street United Church opened their fall activities with a "hike" and outdoor supper on Monday evening at Lazier's Bridge. The evening was ideal and many and varied were the menus as each girl prepared her own supper around the small camp fires they help to build. After supper a sing-song was enjoyed around a large camp fire. As the fire became low and night approached, Taps were sounded. The girls returned to their homes tired but happy resolved to make this year the best in the history of the organization.

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage.

How Much Bad Treatment Should a Wife Stand?

Whenever I get a letter—and believe me I get a good many of this type . . . which says: "My husband beats me whenever he is angry, but I love him dearly", I wonder what such women are made of. Certain dogs will stand a good deal of beating and apparently retain affections for their masters, but you wouldn't think a human being could be like that, would you?

A recent letter contains a curious family problem. The wife-beater in this case had an official job of sorts. It was several degrees below that of governor, and several degrees above that of dog-catcher. And the wife in the case, always bearing in mind Mr.——'s position, took her beatings out in tears ,and accepted gratefully the dole or little gift he would hand out when he realized how brutal he'd been.

There was a daughter in the family, a girl of 16, and whether the ugly scenes that went on at home grew dim, during the two years she was in boarding school, or her mother escaped the usual lamming during vacation, I don't know. But she had not seen her mother beaten until one day when something happened to peeve papa and he started in.

The young lady did not interfere or plead or attempt to defend her mother; she went to the telephone and called the police, not saying "Papa is beating mama", but "There's a brutal attack going on in our home, and murder may result."

Naturally, several bluecoats arrived at the residence of the gentleman who had taken great pride in his official job. Such a nice residence as it was too, with a clipped privet hedge and salmon-pink cannas blooming back of it. When the police pounded on the door, the modern young lady opened it and directed them to the dining-room, where the last rounds of the one-sided fight were slowing up. Mother in tears and father finishing off the job.

The daughter stated the case tersely, and requested the arrest of her father saying she would appear and make the necessary charges. Father did not pass out from heart trouble, but the shock to his dignity was almost fatal. The poor blubbering little mother said it was a misunderstanding, and mopping her red nose and eyelids declined to make any charges. The bluecoats, went away.

Now you'd think father would have turned around and thrashed his daughter. But he didn't dare. He knew he was no match for the young lady. The pain he suffered was the deadly fear that all the world would know that a man of his position had had the police called by his daughter to prevent him from beating his wife. It's likeely now that he will lose his job in which he took such pride and the daughter will probably not be able to finish at the excellent school she had been attending. But she tells me she was not only defending her mother but a principle.

The one to blame in this family tragedy is the wife, the woman who for nearly eighteen years had filled the role of domestic punching bag and hadn't done anything about it. No woman in this country is obliged to put up with treatment of this sort.

If home life becomes a perennial boxing match, a woman in such case should get a job and in spite of all the wails over unemployment it is still possible to get jobs. But some sort of training is necessary. If a woman has never done anything but keep house, she could probably be trained for work in a boarding house, tea-room, or even a hotel if she is intelligent. But you can't imagine a woman of intelligence allowing herself to be beaten.

Persistence or Return of Goitre Symptoms After Operation

I have spoken before of a physician friend who, three weeks after a thyroid operation—removal of a goitre— walked a few block to my office and, after sitting a minute or two, asked me to take his pulse. His pulse was just 72, whereas before the operation the rate was between 100 and 110. You can thus see that the surgeon who had operated had removed just the right amount of the thyroid gland. And surgeons will tell you that in the majority of cases the amount of the thyroid gland removed by operation is usually the right amount.

However, as in all operations, it is not only the immediate result that must be considered but the condition of the patient months and years after operation. There are cases where the goitre condition— rapid heart beat, nervousness, sleeplessness and indigestion — "persist" after the operation showing that not enough of the thyroid gland was removed. There are also cases where the improvement occurs after the operation but the symptoms return some months or even years after the operation.

Drs. R. B. Cattel and H. J. Perkin, Laney Clinic, Boston, report their findings over a ten year period (1927 to 1936) in Western Journal Surgery, Obstetrics, and Gynecology, Portland, Oregon.

Removal of part of the thyroid gland in one or two stages was performed on 4,956 patients. Of these, 119 were later operated on for "persistent' hyperthyoridism (goitre), and 187 for a "return" of the goitre symptoms months or even years after the operation. The average interval between the first and second operation for "persistent" goitre was two years and four months; for cases in which the goitre "returned", it was seven years and eleven months. Drs. Cattel and Perkin believe that following the first operation the return of the goitre symptoms can often be prevented if the patient is watched carefully. Their patients are advised to refrain from work for from six to twelve weeks. Daily rests, avoidance of stimulants and excitement are necessary.

To prevent a "return" of thyroid symptoms after operation, careful estimation of the amount of iodine in the blood is made and if found to be normal, more of the thyroid gland should be removed than where the iodine content is above normal.

LORD TWEEDSMUIR TO VISIT PLOWMEN

Governor-General to Attend Plowing Match at Brockville in October

Lord Tweedsmuir, Governor-General of Canada, will visit the famous International Plowing Match and Farm Machinery Demonstration at Brockville on October 12th, James R. Henderson, President of the International announced today.

The plowing match, the largest of its kind in the British Empire, will be held at Brockville, Oct. 10 to 13 inclusive. The cream of Canadian plowmen in addition to competitors from other countries will compete for over $6000 in prizes.

The outstanding importance of this event to Canadian Agriculture and to Great Britain is seen in the attendance of the King's Representative at the International. Good plowing is the basis of good crops, and good crops must be the rule if Canada is to do her agricultural duty to the Motherland during the war.

100,000 Expected

It is expected that the attendance at the four day match will exceed 100,000.

The largest exhibit in the history of the Match will be housed in the "tented city" over a mile long. With impetus being given to agriculture, farmers will be more than keenly interested in the modern equipment on display.

The horseshoeing competition is unique as no other similar contest is held in Canada. Over 40 entries are expected.

At such large matches, it is sometimes difficult to have access to sufficient land to concentrate activities in a small area. The Ontario Hospital Farm and adjoining properties at Brockville comprise compact and otherwise ideal site. All competitive classes and other features may be seen with a minimum of walking.

The Horse Show, Friday, Oct. 13th, will be larger than formerly, as 30 prizes are being offered totalling $500. There has also been a marked increase in the number and value of prizes for plow classes.

Many Demonstrations

Special features this year include an increased number of educational demonstrations and exhibits; a new Inter-County Tractor Competition for young men; the Champion Plowmen from the British Isles; and the Trans-Atlantic Class.

The Plowing Match is but a short distance off No. 2 Highway. Adequate parking arrangements have been made.

Every farmer owes himself a visit to this greatest of outdoor farming competitions.

No Addresses From Political Meetings To be Aired in Elections

Montreal, Sept. 27—(CP)—Radio stations throughout Quebec have been advised "that during the war period the broadcasting of political addresses must be confined to the studio," and that no station will have the "right to broadcast a political speech made at a political meeting."

The instructions were received yesterday and were written over the name of H. N. Stovin, Superintendent of relations between the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation and privately owned stations. The circular also said that political speeches to be made from the studio must be submitted in advance to Stovin and speeches must not be delivered over the air until authorization is received from the Department.

"This decision," said the brief announcement," was taken by the censorship authorities Friday, Sept. 22."

Two days later, Quebec announced its plans for a general Provincial election.

To Hold Motor Show

Toronto, Sept. 27 (CP)—Reversing a previous decision, Mayor Ralph Day announces that the National Motor Show will be held from Oct. 14 to the 21st.

Two weeks ago the mayor said that owing to the requirements of the army and the air force the buildings of the Canadian National Exhibition would be used for military purposes. This meant, he said, cancellation of the motor show.

Later, however, it was decided that since so much preparatory work had been done for the motor show, it would be best to go ahead with the plans. The new dates for the show make it a week earlier than originally planned.

PICTON MAN ADMITS FALSE PRETENCES

Hamilton, Ont., Sept. 27—(CP)—Roy Williams, Picton, Ont., pleaded guilty in police court here today to a charge of false pretences and was remanded a week for sentence.

The charge was laid in connection with purchase of an automobile in Napanee, Ont. Williams paid $50 as a down payment and promised to pay the $200 remaining in installments. The court was told that on Sept. 20 he turned it in on another car here without telling the dealer it had not been fully paid for.

Communiques Issued By Belligerent Nations

Paris, Sept. 27—(AP)—The French General Staff issued the following communique today:—

"The night was quiet. There was enemy artillery fire on our rear lines in the region of Wissembourg."

CALLED UPON TO SURRENDER

Budapest, Sept. 27—(AP)—Warsaw's dogged defenders were called upon again today to surrender to "save the lives of your women and children."

The call went out at 7 a.m. (1 a.m. EST) from a German radio station broadcasting on the wave length of the now-silent Warsaw station—on the 20th day of Warsaw's siege.

The command of the Polish capital's defence was condemned in this broadcast for "permitting the city to be destroyed and its citizens killed."

The German announcer added:—

"The German staff deeply regrets the needless destruction of so many people, but it is entirely due to the obstinacy of the resistance."

TROOPS NEAR DEMARCATION LINES

Berlin, Sept. 27—(AP)—The High Command today issued the following communique:—

"In the east German troops are nearing the demarcation line agreed upon between the German and Soviet governments. Of scattered units of the Polish army still to be found between the German and advancing Russian troops, the 41st Polish division and one cavalry brigade were captured yesterday east of Bilgoraj.

"The Polish metropolis (Warsaw), which at the beginning of hostilities was regarded as an open (unfortified) town and therefore was respected accordingly, through measures of the Polish command, by restoration of old fortresses and supplying the civilian population with arms, was turned into a fortified area.

"Attacks yesterday brought the first line of fortresses in the north and the second line of fortresses in the south into our possession. Under the thrust of these attacks the Polish commander this forenoon offered surrender of the city and the military force. The chief of the army commissioned General von Blaskowitz to conduct negotations for the surrender.

"The air force attacked military important objects at Modlin.

"In the west there were only minor skirmishes. The enemy is doing trench digging along the entire front. Two French airplanes were shot down in an air fight over Frieburg and Sigmaringen.

"German air force units yesterday successfully attacked English naval units—battleships, airplane carriers, cruisers, destroyers—in the middle part of the North Sea. Besides one airplane carrier which has been destroyed, several severe hits were scored on one battleship. Our airplanes sustained no losses."

Press Observer Says Siegfried Line a Maze of Obstructions

(Editor's note: Louis Lochner, Chief of the Associated Press Berlin Bureau, is being conducted through sections of Germany's Westwall fortifications. This is the censored account of what he saw.)

By Louis Lochner

With the Germany Army of the west, Sept. 27—(AP)—In the Westwall Germany has developed a system of fortifications which differs essentially from the French Maginot Line in their depth.

The defences go back as far as 35 miles from the frontier and consist of a maze of criss-crossed concrete and steel obstructions, pill boxes or bunkers camouflaged into the landscape and fortress-like battlements invisible to the eye.

Roughly speaking, the Westwall is a system of four lines of defence. The first two are for infantry and artillery. The third and fourth are for anti-aircraft defences. The first line is thickly studded with concrete blocks and bunkers. In one area a half mile wide and 1 1-2 miles long we counted 70 pill boxes, each connected underground with the others.

Fire Criss-Crosses

Each of these bunkers is so arranged that firing from one criss-crosses the fire from another. Hence, if one were silenced, others might prevent the enemy from entering the breach.

Germans claim they have improved on the Maginot Line by spreading out the units, with each capable of functioning independently, yet communicating with the others for synchronized action.

Surrounding the fortifications are steel-plated fortresses at danger points. In these we saw turrets seemingly calculated to spit liquid fire. We saw other turrets with heavy machine guns. We saw periscopes, electric kitchens, shower baths, radio sets, telephone plants, air purification machinery, bunks for officers and men—all deep in the earth.

Each compartment of these subterranean fortifications was usually walled off from the next by steel doors like bulkheads of ocean ships. From each end of long corridors, machine guns peered ominously at us. It was explained that if by chance an enemy should come in through some door, machine guns would finish him.

MURDERER TELLS HOW GIRL SLAIN

Charles Jefferson Says He Beat Miss Dunn on Head and Then Shot Her

West Palm Beach, Fla., Sep. 27—(AP)—Charles Jefferson, 29, taking the witness stand at his murder trial today, testified that he beat Frances Dunn, Miami High School girl, to death in a secluded spot near Boca Raton.

He told the court that Jean Bolton Frances' school mate, watched as he struck the 17-year-old girl on the head with hammer, then fired a shot from a pistol into her body.

Jefferson's testimony was in direct conflict with the story told by Miss Bolton yesterday. She said she first learned of the Dunn girl's death when her battered body was found two days later.

Jefferson said he hit Frances several times with a hammer when she refused to join in a scheme to fake a kidnapping and win publicity to further Jean's desire for a movie career.

"I went back to the car and got the gun", he continued. "I came back and fired it. Frances fell back just sitting, leaning on her hands. She started jerking. I'd never seen anybody die before."

Jean testified yesterday she and Frances were lured from their Miami homes on the promise that Jefferson, posing as a movie scout, would win them fame and fortune.

FATE OF POLAND MAY BE DECIDED

One German Group Would Eliminate Poland, Other Prefers Buffer State

By JOSEPH SCHILDBACH
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Berlin, Sept. 27 (AP)—The question of whether Poland should survive as an independent state or disappear from the European map occupied diplomatic quarters today as Germany's foreign minister, Joachim von Ribbentrop, departed for Moscow.

Accompanied by the Soviet Russian Ambassador to Germany, Alexander Schkvarzeff, and a group of foreign office experts, von Ribbentrop took off from Tempelhof airport at 9:15 a.m. (3:15 a.m. EST) in a four-motored plane.

The German policy toward final partition of Poland was decided, observers believed, at a conference last night of Fuehrer Hitler, von Ribbentrop and Field Marshal Hermann Goering. No official comment was forthcoming on the conference.

Differences of Opinion.

Informed quarters said sharp differences of opinion had prevailed in Germany regarding the Polish situation. A strong group of Nazis close to Goering, it was said, favored complete elimination of Poland and establishment of a Russian-German frontier. A more moderate group was reported to favor creation of a Polish buffer state between the Reich and the Soviet.

Hitler summoned von Ribbentrop and Goering into conference immediately upon his return to Berlin last night. He had been absent from the chancellery since he went to the eastern front Sept. 3, the day that France and Great Britain declared war on Germany.

Berlin newspapers gave considerable attention to von Ribbentrop's visit to Moscow, which, they said, was for the purpose of discussing political questions resulting from German and Soviet occupation of Poland.

Accompanying von Ribbentrop were Dr. Friederich Gauss, chief legal adviser of the foreign office; the deputy chief of protocol Herr von Halem, members of von Ribbentrop's personal staff, and the Soviet ambassador.

Supporters of Bill Claim Quick Victory

Washington, Sept. 27 (AP)—Supporters of the administration's neutrality bill to repeal the arms embargo and bar United States ships from carrying any cargos to oversea belligerents claimed 56 Senate votes today and began talking of a quick victory.

One member of the group said the revised bill, to be considered by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee tomorrow, had stolen much of the opposition's thunder by its "cash, credit and carry" provision.

Opponents prepared to confine their fight primarily to the embargo issue. Senator Hiram Johnson (Rep-California) said it was going to be a "long scrap" and "we expect to win." The opposition leaders claimed at least 35 votes, and said they hoped to swing more to their side during the debate. A Senate majority is 49.

'SOMEWHERE IN SUSSEX'

A London newspaper provided a laugh in publishing the menu for a luncheon held Sept. 22 when the Anglo - French Supreme War Council met "somewhere in Sussex." The first item was a prawn (large shrimp) cocktail, which ordinarily would have been prefaced by the name of the place where the prawn was caught. This name was obliterated in the reproduction of the menu and a footnote at the bottom said "deleted by censor."

WARPLANES FLY OVER ROOFTOPS

People of Capital City of Estonia Believe They Are Russian Craft

Tallinn, Estonia, Sept. 27 (AP)—Residents of the Estonian capital, already worried by developments from the German-Russian conquest of Poland, were startled today by the appearance of warplanes which they believed were Russian.

It was the second such occurrence in 24 hours.

Three fighting planes flew over Tallinn yesterday and two more appeared today, this time flying scarcely 1,000 feet above the rooftops.

Sever Partnership, Saw Counter in Two Partition Straw Hat

New York, Sept. 27—(AP) — There was nothing halfway about the manner in which Herbert L. Bruce dissolved his nine-year partnership with Miles Duncan, co-owner of a popular Harlem restaurant.

Angry after a political disagreement with his Republican partner, Bruce, Tammany Hall's only Negro district leader, called in 10 men to help him remove his share of the restaurant property.

They divided the tables and chairs equally, then sawed a counter in half and similarly partitioned a mirror, a straw hat—even a roast chicken on a platter waiting to be served.

SOLDIER IS ORDAINED PRIEST WHILE GUNS RUMBLE ON FRONT

Paris, Sept. 27 —(AP)— News reached here today of an ordination ceremony conducted by the Bishop of Metz Sunday in an abandoned village in advance of the Maginot Line.

The rumble of the organ was accompanied by the deeper rumble of western front guns as a young soldier was ordained a priest in a church deserted except for a few officers and men of his regiment.

He bestowed his first blessing upon them. After lunch in a neighboring abbey, the young priest went back to war with his regiment.

FOOTBALL POOL BETTING RULED OUT DURING WARTIME

London, Sept. 27—(CJ Cable) — The British Government has decided that football pool betting in wartime cannot be justified, the Ministry of Information announced today. It was stated Postmaster General G. C. Tryon had informed the Football Pools Promoters Association of the Government's view of the matter.

Having in mind the strain already thrown on the post office by the war, the Government thinks the further burden of pools transactions cannot be justified in the present circumstances, the announcement said.

The decision comes as a severe blow to an enterprise that provides jobs for thousands of men and women and in which it is estimated approximately $7,000,000 is wagered weekly by millions of soccer fans.

RUSSIAN STEAMER IS REPORTED SUNK IN GULF OF FINLAND

Moscow, Sept. 27 (CP-Havas) — The 4,000-ton Soviet steamship Metallist was torpedoed and sunk by an unidentified submarine in the Narva Bay region of the Gulf of Finland, Tass, the official Russian news agency, reported tonight.

EMBARGO ON SCRAP IRON

Ottawa, Sept .27.— (CP) —An embargo has been placed on the export of scrap iron and steel from Canada to all countries except Canada's wartime allies.

In the case of export to the latter, permits must be sought by the shippers but will not necessarily be granted, depending on Canada's own needs at the time.

THREE CANADIAN FIGHTERS WIN IN NEW YORK

Maxie Berger Wins Grudge Fight Over Del Genio in Eight Rounds

MARSH BEATS LOWRY

Baby Yack Stops Lou Ttrnsparenti in Second Round

By FOSTER BARCLAY

Canadian Press Staff Writer

New York, Sept. 27 —(CP) — Three ranking Canadian scrappers Doug Marsh and Maxie Berger, Montreal Welterweights, and Baby Yack, Toronto Bantamweight — viewed the fistic field today for further foe to conquer.

Berger and Yack erased old scores here last night when they won grudge battles that had been bothering them longer than they cared to remember.

Maxie left-jabbed his way to an eight-round decision over Harlem's Leonard Del Genio before a crowd of more than 11,000 in the Bronx Coliseum. Berger admitted afterward that the result was "close" but the victory wiped out a licking he took 3 1-2 years ago.

Del shook Berger in the fifth round with a hard right to the jaw, but the Montrealer weathered it and retaliated in the seventh with a looping left that staggered his lean limbed opponent.

Berger weighed 141 pounds, five less than Del Genio.

Billed as the feature match on the same card, Marsh, at 142 pounds, overran Jack Lowry, a 137-pound New Yorker, in six rounds. Marsh, who broke into professional ranks nearly three years ago, went to work in the opening round with a barrage of lefts and rights. He floored Lowry for the count of one twice and just before the bell rang had him down for nine.

Just Coasted Along

He coasted along to a handy triumph, never over exerting himself. Lowry tired after his first-round battering and a nose bleed started in the third caused more bother. The only sign of battle inflicted on Marsh was a gash under the left eye, caused when a right hook scraped his face in the fourth.

In another section of the city Baby Yack stopped Lou Transparenti of Baltimore at the Broadway Arena in two rounds of their scheduled eight-round revenge battle.

After feeling out the Baltimore battler, Yack danced in to drop Transparenti for a count of two in the second round and then carved up the Italian's left eye. At the end of the round Referee Johnny McAvoy stopped the fight. Yack scaled 123 1-2 and Transparenti 122.

FIGHTS LAST NIGHT

Houston, Tex.: Elby Pettaway, 158, Houston, knocked out Jimmy Clark, 155, Memphis (2).

White Plains, N.Y.: Vinnie Vines, 142 3-4, Schenectady, N.Y., outpointed Dennis Deegan, 150 1-2, Brooklyn (8).

New York: Baby Yack, 123 1-2, Toronto, stopped Lou Transparenti, 122, Baltimore (2).

New York: Maxie Berger, 141 3-4, Montreal, outpointed Leonard Del Genio, 146 3-4, New York (8); Doug Marsh, 142, Montreal, outpointed Jack Lowery, 137, New York (6).

Hartford, Conn.: Bat Battalino, 145, Hartford, outpointed Frankie Young, 149, New Haven, Conn. (8); Carl (Red) Guggino, 136 1-2, Hartford stopped Al Gauthier, 137 1-2, Holyoke, Mass. (8).

New Haven, Conn.: Georgie Pitch, 182, New Haven, technically knocked out Henry Cooper, 186, Brooklyn (7).

PRESSING NEED OF BALMY BEACH IS GOOD KICKER

Plenty of Youth and Spirit Seen in Team of Youngsters

DIAMONDS IN ROUGH

Bus Young, a Pass Thrower of Rare Accuracy, Will be Heard From

By SYDNEY GRUSON

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Toronto, Sept. 27 —(CP)— If youth and spirit are what Toronto Balmy Beach lacked to produce a winner when they had the veterans experienced players in past years, then count the 1939 edition of the Gold and Blue a formidable crew in the Senior Ontario Rugby Football Union.

Stripped of all but 10 of his 1938 team, with such standouts as Ab Box and Syd Reynolds retired and others in new fields, coach Alex Ponton will begin an experiment with youth in this season's struggle. He is confident of the result and pleased with the preliminary work despite two exhibition pastings.

No Disgrace to Be Beaten

It was no disgrace for the youthful Beachers, with a dozen youngsters fresh from high school in the lineup, to lose to Toronto Argonauts and Ottawa Rough Riders. These games showed Ponton he has some diamonds in the rough, notably Bus Young, a pass thrower of rare accuracy.

The retirement of Box removed one of the east's finest kickers and passers but he remains with the club as president and assistant coach. Reynolds was a 10-year man, a brilliant tackler and defensive player. Besides these two, Beaches have lost such good men as Sammy Sward and Teddy Manorek, plunging backs, centre Jack Taylor and linemen Charley Box, Jack Casson, Bert Harris and Paul McGarry.

Pressing Need Kicker

The club's pressing need is for a kicker and a centre. Big Bob Reid has been filling in as snap and will remain there if Herb Hendrie, with Peterborough last season, can't get permission to play from the Toronto Police Department. Ed Thompson, a star in the making, will kick.

"The only serious trouble with the gang is that they're so young and inexperienced," said President Box. "They'll make a lot of mistakes and they get the jitters easily. But with two exhibition games to learn from and with another two weeks' practice they'll be ready for the O.R.F.U. campaign."

Opportunity to Display Talent

The circumstances present Ponton with an unequalled opportunity to display his known talents for coaching youngsters. The best of the new crop, all making their start in senior ranks, include Young, Johnny Manson, plunging half, Pete Jacob, inside, Hugh Tinnicliffe, a good plunger and secondary defence player, Cecil Pederingham, equally adept at flying wing or on the line, and Ed Lackie, an outside.

These newcomers are being built around the 10 holdovers—linemen Bruce Barron, Bert Haigh, George Shields, Gord Downward, Reid and Stew Holden and the backs, Thompson, Shelley Lush, Jack Frizelle and Frank Seymour. There is enough speed and power there for a creditable showing and if the Beach get reinforcements for the centre of the line and average kicking, they'll be heard from.

"NO MORE WHOOPEE"

Toronto, Sept 27 (CP)—The war, said E. A. Macdonald yesterday, means "no more whoopee" in the social activities of University of Toronto students.

Macdonald, secretary-treasurer of the Students' Administrative Council, said curtailments could be expected in the special football trips to Montreal, Kingston and London. Dances and parties will be less elaborate.

PAUL DERRINGER, BUCKY WALTERS MUST STOP YANKS

McKechnie Has Only These Two Against Array of Ruffing, Gomez, Pearson

YOUNGSTERS TO HELP

Reds Have Thompson and Grisson While Yanks Have Sundra, Donald and Russo

(By Sid Feder Associated Press Sports Writer).

New York, Sept. 27 (AP)—The big World Series question at this time is not can New York Yankees win their fourth straight world championship but can the National League champions take a game from the leaders of the American League?

By National League champions, it is the general feeling that Cincinnati Reds will be in that spot when the Yanks go after the world title.

The big question is, can pitchers Bucky Walters and Paul Derringer stop one of the greatest ball clubs of all time for just one afternoon? And the Yankee answer to this pitching pair seems to be Red Ruffing, Monte Pearson, maybe Lefty Gomez, Steve Sundra, Atley Donald, Bump Hadley and Marius Russo.

Invaluable to Reds

Bucky and Paul have been invaluable to Cincinnati but the way the Reds have had to fight right down to the wire has done neither of them any good. They've won more than 50 games between them so far but they've seen plenty of work these last couple of weeks.

Against that setup, Ruffing, Gomez, Pearson & Co. have been having the life of Riley, the Yanks clinched the American League flag in mid-September.

True, Ruffing has lost his last three starts, but the chips weren't down in those outings. Put the money on the line and old Rufus the red is still about the No. 1 "clutch" man in the business. He produces.

Good "Clutch" Hurler

Gomez is the same way, too, in the "money" games. El Goofo strained his side muscles a couple of days ago, but the doctors say he'll be ready for the series. Gomez, pitching in six series games hasn't lot one of them.

No. 3 on the Yankee list is the California curve-baller, Monte Pearson, who needs only his control to win ball games. He, too, has yet to taste defeat in a series, winning three games in three years.

Back of him is Bump Hadley, a good "spot" pitcher, wise in the ways of the game, after 13 years up there.

On the other hand, when you get past Bucky and Derringer, for the Reds, you find a lot of nice bright youngsters, who may yet develop. Notable among these fellows are Gene Thompson and Lefty Lee Grissom.

The Yankees, too, have some promising youngsters, particularly Atley Donald, who won 12 in a row, and Steve Sundra, undefeated with 11 victories, but if they unwrap their soupbones at all, it will be only for relief chores.

So, it's up to Bucky and Paul against Red and Lefty or Monte.

Little Benny's Note Book

Me and Shorty Judge and Glasses Magee and Sam Cross were on our way to school talking and arguing about different subjects such as everything coming to a end, even the world if you have time to wait, and meaning especially vacations, Sam Cross saying, Good night I wouldn't care if school shut down today and stayed down.

Sure, it's just a excuse to get a free education, and what good's a education? I said, and Shorty Judge said, G wizz you oughtn't to say that, if we didn't have any education we'd be savages.

Well what of it, what's a matter with savages? Sam Cross said.

Being the start of a debate about whether it would be good luck or bad luck to be a savage, Glasses Magee saying, Good night if we were nothing but savages we wouldn't have any movies to go to or radios to listen to.

Well what of it, we wouldn't know the difference, would we? I said, and Sam Cross said, And anyways, if there wasn't any movies why then nobody could refuse to leave us go and see them when we asked, and if there wasn't any radios why then nobody could make us go to bed just when we were waiting to hear a episode of The Specktor of Famine Gulich or something.

Being a good answer, and Shorty Judge said, Well G wizz if we were savages we wouldn't know how to tell time, so we'd never know when meals were ready, and I said, Well we wouldn't have to, because they'd always be ready, because all we'd have to do would be to stop and reach up for bannanas and coconuts and what's more we wouldn't have to get dressed first or even wash our hands and face.

Wich just then the next to the last bell rang for school and we ran the rest of the ways with the savages still away ahead in the debate.

Reds Need Only One Victory To Cinch National Loop Flag After Dividing With Cardinals

Billy Meyers Hits Homer in First Game to Defeat Cards 3-1

CARDS WIN SECOND

McKechnie Has Walters and Derringer to Throw Back at Opposition

By BILL WHITE

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Cincinnati Reds were so close to the National Baseball League championship today that they could almost touch the pennant.

The Reds gained that position yesterday by dividing the opening doubleheader of their crucial four-game series with St. Louis Cardinals, taking the play away from six other games that were played in the major leagues.

Billy Myers' homer made him the hero of the Reds' 3-1 victory and, strangely, Manager Bill McKechnie, while his team lost in the second game, gained status by the use of second—and third—string pitchers as the Cardinals' Mort Cooper hurled the Redbirds to a 6-0 decision.

McKechnie Saves Aces

For McKechnie thus saved his aces, Bucky Walters and Paul Derringer for today and tomorrow's contests, and a victory in either will give the Reds the title they've been seeking since 1919.

There also was cheering in Flatbush when the Dodgers wound up their intra-city rivalry with the Giants holding a 12-10 margin in the year's series. The Giants won the first game 9-5 due largely to Carl Hubbell's fine hurling and sensational hitting (he got a homer!) after spotting the Dodgers five runs. The Dodgers came back in the afterpiece, with Luke Hamlin pitching four-hit ball to win 3-2.

Kirby Higbe tamed the Bees by allowing them only 10 hits, good enough to end a six-game losing streak on the part of the Phils. Homers by Marty and Letchas helped him win 5-3.

In the American League, the Athletics clubbed four Washington pitchers for 16 hits while Bill Beckman was holding the Nats, to win 15-4.

Detroit Tigers helped St. Louis Browns reach an all time low by handing the St. Louis Club its 108th and 109th defeats. The Tigers won the opener 5-4 and then took the seven inning handicap 7-5 in spite of Joe Gallagher's homer in the first game and two more in the second.

The Yankees and the Red Sox were rained out at Boston while cold postponed the Cubs-Pirates game in Pittsburgh.

McGILL GIVEN STIFF DRILL

Montreal, Sept 27 (CP)—Preparing for their annual exhibition game with Royal Military College, McGill's senior inter-collegiate football team went through a stiff drill last night, working on new plays and sharpening up their downfield tackling.

The Reds and Cadets will meet here next Saturday and McGill's coach, Doug Kerr, hopes to have half a dozen new plays working smoothly by then. In their first exhibition game last Saturday against Montreal Royals, McGill used only a few plays.

RUDY EPPS

The rugged Columbus heavyweight wrestler who meets Joe Maich, Canadian light-heavyweight grappling champion, at the Hume Arena on Friday night. Two supporting bouts are included on the card.

60 Hockey Players Report in Detroit

Detroit, Sept. 27 —(CP)— Sixty hockey players will report here Oct. 9 for the training camp operated by the Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League and for their farm teams in Indianapolis, Pittsburgh, Omaha and Detroit. Scores of amateurs will get try-outs.

The Wings operated the Detroit Pontiacs in the Michigan-Ontario Amateur Hockey League last year and the team's star line, Joe Carveth, Lester Douglas and Archie Wilder, is expected to remain intact in a bid for a major league berth.

Last season only 51 rookies and veterans were on hand when limbering up exercises started. Last year Detroit finished fifth in the seven-team league, but made a brilliant showing in the Stanley Cup playoffs.

Aiming at Two Squads Of Equal Ability

Detroit, Sept. 27 (CP)—Sixty-minute players aren't worth a hoot in professional football, according to Gus Henderson, coach of the Detroit Lions in the national professional football league. Henderson said professional football now is so fast and exacting that no man can play a full game at top speed.

Henderson now is aiming at two 11-man squads of equal ability, so that neither team will be known as the second team "being known as substtiutes or second stringers has a poor psychological effect on players," Henderson said.

"Known as scrubs, they play that way. They often are transformed when shifted to the first team."

Senior Hockey in For Banner Season in West

Winnipeg, Sept. 25 —(CP) — Henry Hood, President of the Manitoba Senior Hockey League, said today he expects senior hockey to return to popularity in Manitoba this year as a direct result of the war.

"The calibre and amount of material available for senior company this year because the Overseas Leagues will not operate is the highest since Winnipeg won the Allan Cup (in 1931)," Mr. Hood said.

(No official announcement that the leagues would not operate has come from English and Scottish hockey executives but players who returned to Winnipeg last spring have not received return transportation so far and at the outbreak of war an official of the English League said operation was "not likely.")

Alberta Loop Intact.

Calgary, Sept. 25—(CP) — The executive of the Alberta senior hockey league announced last night the same seven teams that formed the circuit last season will operate again.

Hockey leaders from Edmonton, Calgary, Lethbridge, Coleman, Drumheller, Olds and Turner Valley, attending a preseason meeting yesterday, assured President D. P. McDonald they would be ready for opening of the 112-game schedule, expected to start Nov. 18.

The Edmonton Booster Club franchise for the Edmonton team has been turned over to Ira Stuart and Lowell (Lefty) Grove. Stuart said Edmonton would be represented by a strong team.

WESTMOUNTS TRIM ROYALS BY 21-1 IN GRUDGE GAME

Squad Roars to Victory on Strength of 17-Point Outburst in Last Quarter

TOUCH ON "BREAK"

Team Bands Together and Fixes Up Old Store for Dressing-Room

By the Canadian Press

A woman scorned isn't in it compared to a team of footballers scorned.

Montreal's Big Four Royals found that out last night when they absorbed a 21-1 trimming in an exhibition contest with another Montreal senior squad, Westmounts of the Ontario Rugby Football Union. The Westmounts roared to victory on the strength of a 17-point outburst in the final quarter.

But the loss isn't the only thing that hurt as far as the Royals are concerned. It was only a few weeks ago that Westmounts almost were forced to disband when their dressing quarters were taken over for military purposes. At that time many of the Westmounts took in Royals drills from the sidelines in the hope they might be asked out with the team. But Royals officials announced then that they were interested only in a couple of the Westmount players.

Built Own Dressing-Room

This "slight" irked many of the Westmounters. They banded together and decided to transform an old store into a dressing room and all thoughts of dropping from the O.R.F.U. were forgotten.

The players even did their own painting and carpentry and fixed up the place generally.

This was the spirit which saw the Westmounts swarm through for two converted touchdowns, a field goal and two singles in the last quarter. Prior to that they had scored two points on a safety touch at the start of the third quarter; and had counted singles in the first and third quarters. The only Royals score came in the first session when Herbie Westman booted a single from about 15 yards out.

One Westmount touchdown unquestionably came on a "break", for Dave Ryan scored it when Joe Cicero fumbled a goal-line catch on kick. But the other touch came from a beautiful 30 yard pass to Johnny Ferraro by Jimmy Riddell. Ferraro galloped another 26 yards for the score.

Ray Mullins, who shaded both Gordie Noseworthy and Westman in kicking, kicked a field goal from placement and was responsible for the safety touch. His kick-off to start the second half was so long it forced Cicero back to the goal-line and the Royals backfielder was caught for a two-point score.

CALLING 'EM

Between the Lines

with Ken J. Colling

Canada's athletes have been among the first to answer the call to arms. Chris Lockyer and Dick Sergeant, of last year's Picton junior hockey team are in the Air Force, while three members of the 1937 Kingston champion junior O. H. A. squad are also Flyers today. Recently Joe McNulty, who was born in Belleville, but more recently played football and defence for the Peterboro seniors, affiliated himself with the Cobourg Tank units. Gerald "Wiggy" Riggs who cavorted about at centre field for the Belleville 'Orfuns' has also applied to join the Air Force and the latest to leave Belleville for flying srvice is Steve Hook, who pitched for the Belleville junior softball team. Incidentally Hook originally came to Belleville to play defence for the Belleville "Hi-Speed" juniors this winter, and can still play for Belleville if he so desires, that is according to the new C.A.H. regulations.

Actually the "Hi-Speeds" have been hit quite hard by migrations. Coach Holway was depending on Hook's services to bolster his Hi-Speed defence this season. However, if Hook is accepted into the Air Force he may yet be seen in a Belleville junior puck livery. Recently Leo Goyer left for Guelph and according to reports is more than satisfied with his lot to date, but Goyer also shook the dust of Belleville from his heels earlier in the season and migrated to Simcoe, but here the far away green field didn't turn out to be quite so green, so history may repeat itself. The latest rumors along the main stem are to the effect that Arnold "Stub" Ethier, classy right-winger of the Hi-Speeds, is also being sought by the Guelph hockey moguls, but this is still in the rumor stage. However, we hear there are a couple of good pucksters at Albert College, who are of junior age, while another junior player of note may yet show up in Belleville. Milton "Dutch" Speidleberg has taken up permanent residence in Belleville and likes it as well as his native Waterloo, which would indicate Belleville's junior hockey set-up sems quite secure at the time of writing.

Baseball diamond conferences mean little and are bringing many complaints about delaying games, but if they must be continued, William McG. Keefe of the New Orleans Times-Picayune suggests that the umpire call time for that purpose.

"Most of the times the conferences, if you could listen in on them, would prove of little interest," reveals Keefe.

"Most of them would go like this: Stortstop to Pitcher —'Jimminy crickets, you're slipping fast; don't pitch to this guy until we see what the boss says.' The Pitcher —'Cripes, you guys couldn't stop a bus; I'm tired, I am, and you'd better get somebody warmed up.' The manager (entering the scene) —'Don't worry, you're coming out o' there. But stall around and give Joe a chance to get in a few more warm-up heaves.'

"Then the second baseman will take the ball and roll it around in his hand; they all look at the batsman, whom they have been playing against no less than ten years, as if to make sure who it is; the umpire brushes off the plate to make believe the delay is because of a dirty plate; the third baseman walks over and gets a drink of water; the batsman leans impatiently on his bat and talks to the umpire; the catcher walks out to join the conference and he, too looks around at the batsman, at the men on bases and at the next man coming up, just as if all of them were strangers to him.

"And so it goes. How much better would it be for the manager to call the pitcher in and then have the umpire announce: 'Five minutes' delay until the new pitcher gets warmed up': There would be no stalling—no faking. And the fans would be saved the trouble of trying to guess what the players are saying."

Tiger Daniels, the Regina-born terror, who meets Young Griffins in the semi-final bout of Friday night's professional wrestling show at the Hume Arena, comes to Belleville highly recommended as a pugnacious type of grappler, the calibre of which will stoop to any level to win. Daniels boasts he hasn't lost a bout in his last 30 starts, although he has been disqualified twice for rough tactics. Griffins, on the other hand, resembles Frankie Hart, the Dutch lad who was always a favorite in Belleville and no doubt Griffins will find the Belleville wrestling patrons behind his efforts. Incidentally Joe Maich, who meets Rudy Epps, the Columbus heavy in the main bout, hails from an athletic family and was born and raised in Brantford, Ont. Epps carries a weight advantage of 21 pounds, but Maich's speed and agility is expected to counteract this, the promoters say.

A Brooklyn baseball fan recently collected 2,500 pennies to pay a fine imposed against Manager Leo Durocher. The fan placed them all in a sack, labelled them "pennies from heaven" and presented them to the manager while the crowd cheered.

Bill McKechnie's Cincinnati Reds came within one game of winning the National League pennant yesterday when the Reds split a doubleheader with the Cardinals. McKechnie crossed the experts by starting two near-rookies, Gene Thompson being the winning pitcher in the first game. The Reds and Cards have two more games, one today and one tomorrow. In case of rain today a twin bill will be slated Thursday, no doubt. Now McKechnie has his two ace moundsmen, Bucky Walters and Paul Derringer left to throw in against the Cardinals in succession. The Reds must win one more of their five games, but at the same time the Cardinals must lose a decision, so the National League race is still in the balance. Incidentally Ray Blades started his ace pitcher, Curt Davis, but all the pitching he did won't hurt him from starting again in the present series.

Sport Spice: It begins to look as though the Toronto Goodyears, senior O.H.A. champions of 1938-39 will have to return to the provincial hockey wars this season.... The Michigan-Ontario hockey loop rejected the Goodies' application for affiliation......There is talk of the Toronto club affiliating with the Quebec Association, but those long jumps would prove quite costly .... The Peterboro senior football squad will not take part in any pre-season games, it won't be that the Liftlock City squad is a little jittery regarding their potential strength on the field, by any chance?.....Lester Patrick says he must have a pair of proven forwards to bolster his Ranger's front line this season.... Most any N.H.L. club could do with a pair of star forwards, we'd imagine.

For Thursday, September 28
By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

THE LUNAR aspects bearing rule on this day indicate a particularly lively, enterprising and productive day, with much stirring to aid in attaining very important objectives of high ambitions. It may take much skill, initiative, sound judgment and well-directed efforts to realize these goals, since there are auguries of opposition from high places. Such opposition should be met with sagacity or appeasement. There may be surprising developments of a romantic, public or social nature that may be gratifying and welcome.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of important, pleasant and gratifying developments in private life as well as in business relations. Progress, prosperity and attainment of lofty ambitions are forecast. These rewards come from hard work, cleverness, splendid abilities and the support of those in high places who may have to be placated or impressed. Joy may also crown romantic adventure or a desirable friendship.

A child born on this day may be enterprising, industrious, ambitious and aspiring, with excellent talents and qualities for success,

CLAIMS ESTONIA

Significance also was attached to reports that Albert Forster, Danzig Nazi leader, would accompany Von Ribbentrop, who was expected to arrive at the Moscow Civil Airport at about 6 p.m. (10 a.m. E.S.T.) today.

Von Ribbentrop was scheduled to dine with the German Ambassador tonight and it was believed unlikely his talks with Soviet officials would start before tomorrow.

While Von Ribbentrop's impending visit occupied the centre of the stage, there was speculation on the possibility that Russia may have made strong demands for maritime rights upon her Baltic neighbor, Estonia.

A Government communique last night accused Estonia of harboring unidentified submarines in her waters and declared that an Estonian explanation of the escape of the interned Polish submarine Orzel from the harbor of Tallinn was "unsatisfactory."

Security of Russian Waters

Citing reports from Leningrad that "periscopes of unknown submarines" had been sighted near Luga Bay in the Gulf of Finland, the communique declared "one can arrive at the conclusion that some unknown submarines have a secret base somewhere near the Estonian coast."

"In view of these circumstances," it added, "the question of ensuring the security of Soviet waters against diversionist acts on the part of hiding submarines acquires great importance."

The presence in Moscow of the Turkish Foreign Minister led some quarters to believe Russia might be seeking an important agreement concerning the Turkish-controlled Dardanelles, the entrance to the Black Sea. Passage through the Dardanelles is vital to France and Great Britain should they have to go to the assistance of Rumania.

Dispatches from the Red Army in Poland said the advance toward the demarcation line agreed upon by Soviet and German military leaders was proceeding rapidly. The dispatches reported 30 trainloads of Polish troops, numbering about 25,000, had been seized between Brest-Litovsk and Voldava.

INSTALMENT 25

"I shall be delighted."

Mrs. Selby made one last appeal to Kim.

"Don't let Roy drive too quickly, will you?"

Lawless laughed.

"I'll take him in tow behind my own car," he promised.

The vivid sunset had given place to moonlight as they drove away from the house, and Elizabeth glanced back as they turned out of the drive and shivered a little as she looked at the dark outline of High Chimneys against the pale sky.

"If I were a ghost," she said flippantly, "this would be the night I should choose to do a little jaxx-walking up and down the old baronial hall."

"You'd be a darling ghost," Roy answered. "But if you're thinking of our dog ghost Bingo, dogs hate the moonlight, and I expect he's skulking somewhere in a dark cellar." He glanced over his shoulder at the following car "Lawless can get more speed out of his engine than I can," he said, in a disgruntled voice. "But if he thinks he's going to pass us, he's mistaken."

"Don't drive too quickly," Elizabeth pleaded.

He glanced down at her.

"Nervous?" he asked.

She nodded.

"Yes, I think I am a little. I don't like driving after dark very much."

Roy said grimly: "Well, you once drove a good many miles at midnight with Lawless."

"That couldn't be helped," she answered, but she turned her face away as she spoke and looked out over the deserted fields.

"Peace in our Camp!" How could Kim have said such a thing when all the time he knew....

She suddenly roused herself.

"Very well, drive as fast as you like," she said, in a queer, excited voice. "Let's leave the others miles and miles behind—just to annoy them."

Roy laughed.

"What a vixenish voice!" he protested.

Elizabeth relaxed.

"I didn't mean it. It's much too lovely a night to go racing like lunatics through the country and there's no hurry to get there, is there?"

"Not when I'm with you," he answered, and then, encouraged by her silence: "Can't you, Elizabeth? I'd be so good to you—I'd do everything in the wide world to make you happy."

There was infinite gentleness in her voice as she answered him.

"But I shouldn't make you happy."

"That wouldn't matter," he protested. eagerly. "And besides I should be happy—just to know you were there—just to know that you belonged to me. You should do just as you wanted. I'd let you be quite free."

"I shouldn't want to be quite free if I loved you," she said.

He gave a quick sigh of impatience.

"I can't understand you," he said at last. "Sometimes it seems all right. I mean—I think that I do understand you, and then you say something or do something—and it's all gone again."

"But you wouldn't like me to be always the same, would you?" she asked. "Think how flat, stale and unprofitable life would be."

Roy's old reply was to increase his speed, and presently they swept into the drive of the Beaseley's house.

A dark drive, with thick laurel bushes on each side and old trees bending above them through which even the bright moonlight hardly penetrated.

"It's not such a nice house as yours," Elizabeth said.

They drew up at the open door, and a swarm of young people came rushing out to greet them.

"Why are you so late? We thought you weren't coming? Oh, what a duck of a frock, Elizabeth! Where's Barbara? Haven't you brought her?"

"She's following with Mr. Lawless," Elizabeth explained.

Dora Beaseley drew her into the house.

"Mr. Lawless!" She lowered her voice. "Isn't that the man your sister was engaged to?"

"Yes."

"I hear he's frightfully good-looking," Dora giggled. She was rather a foolish young woman with the kindest heart in the world.

"It seems to be a party," Roy said, following them into the hall.

"It was such fun last night," Dora told him, "that we thought we'd go one better. Do you know everyone?" She waved an introductory hand. "You'll all soon know each other if you don't now. Give me your wrap, Elizabeth. Hullo, Barbara!"

Elizabeth glanced at Barbara and away again. "She looks happy" she thought, and there was a sudden coldness around her heart, for she, too, had once driven through a summer night with Kim Lawless.

It was a very noisy party.

"The parents have gone out," Dora announced. "Said they couldn't stand the racket — so we've got the place to ourselves. Of course, it's not such a romantic spot as High Chimneys, but it has its points."

They danced to radio music in the high-ceilinged drawing-room, and although Elizabeth kept as far away from Lawless as possible, she soon realized that her fears were needless; he never glanced her way.

He danced with Barbara most of the time and, when at eleven o'clock refreshments were brought in, he sat on the arm of Barbara's chair.

It was a quarter to twelve when Dora announced that it was time they played "Ghosts."

"It's a new game we've invented ourselves," she announced. "You can go anywhere you like in the house. You can go up in the attic or down in the coal cellar, but you must go alone and not in pairs, and if you see the ghost you must scream at the top of your lungs and rush back to the drawing-room, and the first home gets the prize."

There was an awed silence, till Lawless asked dryly: "And if the ghost refuses to oblige?"

"Oh, we've arranged for him," Dora answered. "Someone will see him all right, and there's no need to be scared, because he's real flesh and blood—not like your old Bingo, Roy."

She crossed the big room and switched out the lights.

"But we can't see in the dark," Elizabeth said nervously.

"It's a moonlight night," someone reminded her. "And all the blinds and curtains are drawn back, so it won't really be dark at all. Ough! It's a bit eerie, isn't it?"

"I think it's a silly game," Barbara protested faintly, but she was ignored, and someone else said:

"Now then. One, two, three—go! And you're not to talk or make a single sound unless you see it!"

There was a breathless silence save for the cautious shuffling of feet over the polished floor, and Elizabeth standing at the far end of the room was suddenly conscious of her thudding heart-beats.

Against the high window she could see the dark silhouette of figures passing and repassing against the moonlight, and beyond them the garden with its sloping lawns and belts of tall trees. Everywhere was complete silence.

Some one tugged at her frock and she almost screamed, and then there was a subdued laugh and Roy was saying in an encouraging whisper:

"Come on, darling. It's no end of a lark."

"I'm not afraid," she whispered back, and she moved very slowly away from him and towards the open door.

The silence was worst of all, she thought, as she crept up the old-fashioned staircase, her long frock making a little sound like rustling leaves at every step.

"Barbara was right, and it is a silly game," she told herself and then smiled, for what was there to be afraid of? And when she reached the landing, she tossed her head with defiance and pushed open a door.

INSTALMENT 26

The door yielded easily to Elizabeth's touch and swung to again behind her without a sound. No carpet under her feet now, only boards over which her high heels tap-tapped softly.

Only one window though which a long shaft of moonlight fell like a bright spear.

And then, when her eyes grew more accustomed to the dimness, she saw another staircase, and for a moment she stood still, afraid again, until close by she heard a muffled laugh.

That spurred her on. It was only a game, after all—a silly game perhaps—but still—Resolutely she climbed the second staircase—very steep it was—and found herself in a kind of raftered loft, and here there were no windows at all, only a square of glass high in the roof, with the moonlight behind it.

There seemed to be stacks of lumber everywhere, made mysterious by the darkness and by that single patch of light, but Elizabeth groped her way around by the wall, saying over and over again to herself, as a child might have done: "I'm not afraid. I'm not afraid. It's only a game."

But there was no sign of Dora's flesh and blood ghost, and though once, when her groping hand came into contact with something soft and yielding, she almost cried aloud—the object proved to be nothing more alarming than an old fur rug which had evidently been discarded as too shabby for further use.

"I'll go back," she decided, and she turned to find the door. But the walls all looked alike and it was some moments before she could discover the handle, and then she was surprised to find that she was trembling. "Silly!" she told herself with scorn. "There's nothing to be afraid of." And then she did give a little smothered cry

ESTONIA TRUSTS RUSSIA'S PLEDGE

Premier is 'Quoted as Certain Russia Will Respect Declaration of Neutrality

Tallinn, Estonia, Sept. 27 (By telephone to Copenhagen)—(AL)—Premier Kaarel Eenpalu declared today through his secretary that he was confident Soviet Russia would respect Estonia's declaration of neutrality.

"Certainly Russia will do that—we are quite sure," the secretary quoted the premier.

The spokesman declined to discuss reports that conversations with Russia over possible trade and non-aggression pacts were not going well. Nor would he discuss the reasons for the sudden return of the Estonian Foreign Minister, Karl Selter, from Moscow yesterday.

Meagre reports reaching Copenhagen from Estonia, Russian-ruled before the Bolshevik Revolution of 1917, indicated friendship and commercial negotiations between Tallinn and Moscow were not going well.

Reports, not officially confirmed, said the root of the trouble was the escape of a Polish submarine from Tallinn last week. The Polish craft had been interned there.

Foreign Minister Selter, who had gone to Moscow ostensibly to negotiate a commercial accord, rushed home yesterday on what was reported reliably in Moscow as urgent business. He had been in the Russian capital less than 15 hours.

Informed sources at Riga indicated Russia had made far-reaching demands on Estonia which necessitated Selter's return for conferences with his superiors.

FOUR ESCAPEES SOON CAPTURED

Car Used in Escape With Prison Officials as Hostages Overturns on Curve

Marquette, Mich., Sept. 27 (AP)—Recaptured after a desperate bid for freedom in which they abducted and held as hostages the Warden and three other officials of the Northern Michigan branch prison, four long-term convicts faced solitary confinement today.

Less than five hours after they had walked into a meeting of the State Parole Board and forced the officials to accompany them, their wild flight ended when their 10-year-old car overturned at high speed on a curve near Menominee, Mich. State police and Sheriff's Deputies surrounded them before they could recover from the shock of the crash.

Bruised and shaken, but otherwise unharmed were Warden Marvin Coon and Gerald Bush, Parole Board members. Ross Pascoe, chairman of the Board, leaped from the speeding car before it overturned and escaped injury, while Deputy Warden William Newcome was released earlier by his captors in a vain effort to stall off pursuit.

BODY FOUND IN RIVER

Cornwall, Ont., Sept. 27 (CP)—Body of an unidentified man, believed to have been 55 to 60 years of age, was found floating in the St. Lawrence River here today.

Two Indian boys crossing from Cornwall Island to the main land found the body and notified private Jack Newell of the Stormont Dundas and Glengary Highlanders, on guard duty on Cornwall canal. Police said they believed the man had been a laborer. A five-cent piece was the only article found in his pockets.

Attack on Canada Predicted by Pastor

Washington, Sept. 27 (CP)—An attack on Canada is predicted by Rev. Maurice Sheehy, head of the Department of Religious Education at Catholic University.

Interviewed on his return from Europe by the Washington Post, Dr. Sheehy said: "Of one thing I am certain, after talking with people who represent both sides of the present conflict. Canada will be attacked before this war is over".

Dr. Sheehy declared failure to repeal the arms embargo would be "the most tragic bit of stupidity in our history".

CLEAN HIGHWAYS

One argument used by the advocates of reforestation is that a beautiful landscape will attract tourists, yet we cannot recall hearing it sail that sow thistle, wild carrot, oxeye daisy, orange hawkweed, teazel and blue devil along the roadside and in the fields will give any special delight to those who travel the King's highway. A large percentage of the people of Ontario apparently see beauty rather than decreased production and loss in this fauna of weeds for many roadsides are dirty and fields are over-run.

The provincial highways should be models of cleanliness regardless of the standards of farm practice in the communities through which they pass. — The Farmers' Advocate.

HONEY CANNING

To the Editor: I have been quite interested in the following over the air and in the newspapers. The cry has gone out that peaches were rotting on the gronud and it was impossible to sell them because of the sugar situation. This is entirely unnecessary. I have canned peaches without sugar for some years, and find them when opened just like fresh fruit. When opening for use put on the amount of sugar to your taste. Let stand for a while when canning, peel peaches, cut in half, take out pit; have ready kettle with boiling water, enough to cover a layer of peaches; place peaches in kettle, let simmer until clear or until you can put a fork through, then place in sterilized sealer, fill up with juice, seal tight. Be sure to have airtight jars and new rubber rings. Put in kettle just one layer at a time, so that fruit will keep whole. You can do pears or other fruits the same.—An interested reader — in Hamilton Spectator.

Toronto, Sept. 27.—(CP)— Gold shares featured Toronto Exchange today. In the second hour prices were marked up, Lake Shore and Dome firming about 1 1-2. Industrials had a similar gain.

Steels, Senior Oils, Utilities and Foods were the strongest of the Industrials. Canadian Industrial Alcohol A advanced about 3-4 in heavy trading and all the Implement shares ruled higher.

Declines of 5 to 10 cents were boarded by the secondary oils, including Calgary and Edmonton, Home, Okalta and Anglo-Canadian.

WALL STREET CLOSE

New York, Sept. 27.— (AP) — Rails and Utilities took the speculative play away from war shares in the stock market today, making a spotty picture of ups and down.

Starting higher, the market ran into larger offerings and backed down a bit. Tansactions approximated 2,500,000 shares.

Rails and Utilities felt the main weight of buying in the stock market today.

Profitt-takers seemed to be active in Steels, Motors, Coppers, Aircrafts, chemicals and miscellaneous shares prominent in the "war baby" drives to higher prices. Some dropped back to losses of a point or more.

Higher most of the time were North American, Public Service of N.J., Santa Fe., Great Northern Pfd., Pullman, Westinghouse, Pennsylvania and Goodyear Tire.

Dome and McIntyre Porcupine dropped more than a point in the Canadian section and Lake Shore lost around 1-2. C.P.R. inched forward. Dominion 4s moved narrowly in the Bond market.

Gold shares ran into more selling, apparently prompted by the thought mining costs may increase in war-time.

St. Andrew's Ladies Red Cross Unit

Eighty Members Meet and Lay Plans for Patriotic Work

Enthusiasm exemplified in the fact that during the meeting many members were noted knitting socks while proceedings went on, marked the special session of lady members of the congregation of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church last night, when they unanimously decided to form a Red Cross unit to aid the operations of the local branch of the patriotic organization.

Upwards of eighty members convened in the ladies' room of the church under the temporary chairmanship of Mrs. Kenneth S. Hill, president of the Women's Guild of the church. Mrs. Alfred Gillen was chosen president of the new organization with Mrs. Charles A. Cameron elected vice-president. Due to the fact that a number of potential officers were absent from the meeting, complete organization was deferred until a later date. This will likely take place at the first meeting of the new unit to be held in the church on Monday afternoon next when supplies for knitting and the making of garments will be available.

Mr. Irvine Hefkey, president of the Belleville branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society addressed members of the congregation, outlining the aims and activities of his organization and giving much valuable information pertaining to the work now being done in Belleville.

REGISTRATION OF YOUTH POWER

Registration of the youth of both sexes in various communities of the southern part of the county is now going on under the supervision of officials of the local Employment Bureau.

The registration is being conducted with a view to obtaining a census of the youthpower of the district, which will be forwarded to officials of the Dominion-Provincial Youth Training Project.

Employment officials will visit Stirling tonight where registration of the youth of that village will take place.

A. B. CHARLTON APPOINTED CHIEF OF POINT ANNE

A. B. Charlton, resident of Point Anne village, has been appointed chief constable of that place by the Township Council of Thurlow, it was announced today. Chief Charlton fills the vacancy caused by the enlistment in the Royal Canadian Air Force of former Chief of Police Bernard J. Bennett.

NO SAUSAGE SKINS FOR GERMANY

Many Germans are going to have to eat their sausage without skins. Ten hog's ehads of sausage skins from China destined for the Reich, were seized as contrabrand by Britain. It is estimated the seizure amounts to 170 miles of skin.

MISSED SAILING ON THE ATHENIA

Mayor of Picton Says His Star Shone Over Him on Journey Home

Picton's youthful bachelor mayor, Nesbitt McKibbon, is back in his native town after a thrilling three months' holiday in Scotland and England.

He smiled yesterday as he recounted his adventures and attempts to secure passage back to his native Canada. "My personal star shone brightly over me during the entire holiday", he grinned.

"I missed sailing on the ill-fated Athenia by a couple of days, the ship I sailed on missed being struck by a torpedo by a couple of hundred yards, I missed bringing home a bride, but most of all I missed Main Street."

Mayor McKibbon was refused passage on the Athenia due to lack of accommodation. He sailed on a vessel which was accompanied by another and escorted by a convoy. "The convoying destroyers were forced to deal with a submarine by means of depth charges", the mayor related ."We didn't see the sub but heard tremendous explosions. Whether a submarine was after us or not, none of the passengers knew at the time, but later it was reported that some saw huge oil patches on the surface of the sea while the chief officer confided that the U-boat had been sunk".

Censorship is very strict in England, the Mayor pointed out. "We learned more about what was going on in Europe when we arrived home than we learned in England," he said.

Americans, he talked to in England, preferred returning home on convoyed British ships rather than the unprotected American boats, he said. "They do not trust the Germans, even if the flags of neutral nations are painted on the sides of the ships".

Mayor McKibbon brought his "respirator" or gas mask home with him where it is being eagerly inspected by many of his friends.

An inscribed gold watch was presented the veteran.

DELEGATES RETURN FROM CONVENTION

Enthusiastic regarding the hospitality of Ottawans and the success of the function, delegates and other members of the Belleville Kiwanis Club returned today from the Capital City where they attended the three-day convention for the Ontario-Quebec-Maritimes district of Kiwanis International.

Election of officers, addresses and a ball given in the Chateau Laurier where the convention was held, featured the function. Included in those who went from Belleville are: delegates Bruce Lattimer, Herbert Muir, Ross Stiver and Mrs. Stiver, president Dr. and Mrs. R. A. Flynn, Mr. and Mrs. James Cowan, Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Scott, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Imlah and Fred Rawson.

PORT WINE FOR CHEESE STOLEN AT HASTINGS

After breaking two locks from the doors of the Ormandie Dairy at Hastings, thieves broke into the factory and stole a gallon jug of seven year old port wine. This theft seemed to be the only object of the break-in as about twelve dollars in cash was left on the shelf in the curing room. The wine was being used for the manufacture of wine-cured cheddar cheese.

ADVERSE WEATHER ON LAST HOLIDAY

This afternoon marked the final Wednesday afternoon mid-week half holiday as enjoyed by the merchants and clerks throughout Belleville's business section throughout the summer months. Unfortunately rain, damp weather and a sudden cold snap mitigated the intentions of many who had planned an extensive outing on the final Wednesday half holiday. The legal and banking profession, as well as the barbering trade, will continue to observe the mid-week half holiday for another two months, however. Other shops will remain open for business on future Wednesday afternoons for the rest of the year.

HEAVIEST TAXES

The rates are to be seven shillings in the pound (1.54 in $4.47) until March 31 and seven shillings sixpence ($1.64) thereafter. (These rates are levied on income in excess of exemptions ranging from 125 pounds a year—about$558—for single persons to 400 pounds about $1,788—for married men with three children.)

The scale of surtax was increased on every category of income over 2,000 pounds to produce 8,000,000 in a full year.

After today estates valued between 10,000,000 pounds and 50,000,000 pounds will pay an extra 1 per cent in death duties, and estates over 50,000 pounds will pay an additional 20 per cent. It will mean estates of more than 50,000 pounds will pay 60 per cent to the Exchequer. This tax will yield 6,000,000 pounds in a full year.

Penny on Pint of Beer

An extra penny on the pint was imposed on the workman's beer with spirits and wines also assessed additional imposts. The beer tax will produce 27,000,000 pounds additional, spirits 3,500,000 pounds and wines 2,000,000 pounds.

The tobacco duty was increased from 11 shillings sixpence a pound to 13 shillings sixpence to yield 16,000,000 pounds.

A penny on the pound of assessed refined sugar will net the treasury 18,000,000 pounds annually.

Leaning his elbows on the big red dispatch box, Sir John announced an excess profits tax on all industries to guard against war profiteering. It will mean the treasury will expropriate 60 per cent of all profits in excess of the pre-war average which places all companies and industries in the same taxation category as armament manufacturers.

Post-War Capital Levy Considered

Treasury officials, he announced are considering a wartime capital levy as another protection against profiteering but it will not be applied until after peace is declared.

Spacing his remarks by draughts of a throat tonic brewed by his wife, the Chancellor warned that 500,000,000 pounds war credit already approved by Parliament might not be sufficient to cover expenditures until the end of the fiscal year next March.

The Chancellor emphasized that Britain must adopt a "pay as we go" policy as far as practicable but also announced that there would be big borrowings. He promised to do all in his power to avoid inflation with attendant price increases, disparities and inequalities.

The terms of new defence loans were not announced today but Sir John appealed to citizens and institutions to put aside their savings "for the benefit of the nation and themselves."

The new taxes were imposed to meet an estimated minimum of 2,000,000,000 pounds outlay in the present financial year for the nation's war effort.

Taxes on alcoholic liquor were increased effective tomorrow. Beer will go up a penny (about two cents) a pint, as it did in 1914.

"The tax on spirits was increased to 10 shillings ($2.20) per proof gallon.

The tobacco tax went up by two shillings (44 cents) a pound.

Death Duties Up

Death duties were increased by 10 per cent on estates of from £10,000 to £50,000 and by 20 per cent on larger estates.

New rates for the surtax, levied in an ascending scale. On incomes of more than £2,000 ($8,940), will range from one shilling threepence (about 25 cents) on the first £500 above £2,000 to nine shillings sixpence (about $1.98) in the pound on the portion of an income exceeding £30,000 ($134,000).

These rates are in addition to the basic seven shillings. (It means that income over £30,000 will pay 82.5 per cent).

Sir John estimated the new beer taxes would produce £11,000,000 ($49,170,000) this year and £27,000,000 ($120,000,000) in the next full year.

The new surtax, he estimated, would produce £5,000,000 ($22,350,000) this year and £8,000,000 in the full 1940-41 year.

Sugar Tax Penny a Pound

Sugar taxes were increased a penny a pound on fully refined products.

Taxes on imported light wines will go up two shillings (44 cents) a gallon and on heavy wines four shillings (88 cents).

Other estimates of increased revenue included:

Tobacco, £8,000,000 this year and £16,000,000 in a full year. Spirits £2,000,000 this year and £3,500,000 in a full year. Wines, £1,000,000 this year and £2,000,000 in a full year.

Based on Plans of 3-Year War

Basing his budget on plans for a three-year war, Sir John proclaimed "increasing contributions from direct taxation all along the line."

(The new income tax rates are assessed on income in excess of exemptions varying from 125 pounds (about $595) yearly for single persons to 400 pounds (about $1,900) for a married man with three children.

Simon said the income tax assessment due Jan. 1 "will be made out at a seven shilling rate."

"I put forward that in a full year the standard rate of income tax shall be seven shillings and six pence," he said.

The new income taxes would produce an extra 70,000,000 pounds ($302,000,000) this year and 146,000,000 pounds in the next full year, he asserted.

Special Provisions for Lowered Income

There would be special provisions to "mitigate the severity of the increase where individuals this year experience a substantial drop of earned income."

Where a man earned 1,000 pounds ($4,470) last year and would normally be assessed on that figure this year, but only received 700 pounds this year, Sir John explained, he will be assessed on the latter figure.

Sir John's new tax rates are the highest in history. The rate during the last war was six shillings in the pound, or 30 per cent.

At the same time Sir John announced direct tax increases "all d' ... the line" on beer, whisky, tobacco, sugar, wines ,death duties, income surtaxes and excess profits.

The tea tax was untouched, however.

Contribution by All to War Expenses

"These severe sacrifices — the heaviest which the direct taxpayer in this country has ever had to bear" were declared by the Chancellor to be vital in the scheme which called for a contribution to the war expenses "from citizens of every kind and fortune."

Sir John added:—

"However serious our financial problems may be, the financial problems which confront Germany are infinitely greater."

Increased taxes would produce 107,000,000 pounds this year and 226,500,000 pounds in the full fiscal year, Sir John estimated.

One of the heaviest levies was a 60-per cent tax on excess profit.

TRANSIENTS GONE DECLARES SUPT.

Farm Labor Shortage Acute in District Says W. D. Ross

Strange aftermath of the declaration of war by Canada is reported in the mysterious disappearance of the transients that formerly roamed the broad highways of the province and Dominion.

Gone from their familiar haunts are the knights of the road. Gone from the employment offices of the province where they were wont to congregate in the forlorn hope of obtaining employment, are the happy go lucky jetsam and flotsam of the tides of humanity that previous to war, swept the country from coast to coast.

The situation that is common all over the province, is similar in Belleville. "Where they have gone to, I do not know", Employment Office Superintendent W. D. Ross stated today "but suffice it to say, that we have not had a single transient apply for work during the past two weeks. Formerly they hung around this office in groups and singly, applying for work or assistance, but now—well—they are not apparent."

Ask For Labor

By the same token, there is an acute shortage of farm labor in the district, Supt. Ross said. "We have plenty of applications for help from farmers of the district, but we have not a single man to send to them. If this condition prevails there will be a dangerous situation develop next Spring", was his opinion.

"Firms that formerly secured their help, and private citizens who get their labor, from private sources, are now asking us to supply labor to them. Casual workers have almost entirely disappeared, and day labor is also hard to get," he added.

Registrations of carpenters and other skilled artisans are pouring in the office from all parts of the country especially from the northern extremities, the superintendent stated. "This is a result, no doubt, of the fact that these men are, and have been wanted for construction work in the various military camps of the district and province."

Rossmore Resident Is Held for Theft

John Thompson, Rossmore, was arrested on Front St. last evening on a charge of the theft of an automobile. City police today held Thompson was under the influence of liquor at the time, but he was remanded to the custody of the Belleville jail pending trial on the motor car theft on Friday.

Shortly before 6.00 p.m. last evening Bruce May, of this city, informed police his roadster motor car had been taken from its parking position off Front St. Later May saw the vehicle being driven on Front St. and managed to board the car and remove the ignition keys. Constables Isard and Arnott arrived on the scene in time to arrest a man they say is John Thompson, Rossmore. The motor car was then restored to May and Thompson was held in custody.

MORE LAND NEEDED NEXT YEAR'S CROPS

More land is being prepared just now by district farmers for next year's crops, it is suggested by a survey of local agricultural officials. In many cases even scrub and swale land will be utilized by the farmers in the growing of the various crops in the belief that demand next year for hay and other forage crops will be a heavy one. Large acreages will also be devoted during the coming year to the growing of the heavier vegetables and in some cases former grain fields will be turned over to the production of garden produce.

REPORT RUSSIA

from Moscow, said there was considerable speculation there on the possibility that Russia may have made strong demands for maritime rights. A Russian communique accused Estonia of harboring unidentified submarines and giving an "unsatisfactory" explanation for the recent escape of an interned Polish submarine.

Conference in Tallinn.

Selter went to Moscow Sunday and returned home suddenly after only 15 hours in the Soviet capital. Back in Tallinn he conferred with President Konstantin Paets and Johann Laidoner, commander-in-chief of the army.

(Already in Moscow was the Turkish Foreign Minister, Sukru Saracoglu. Joachim von Ribbentrop, German foreign minister, has arrived in Moscow.)

John Laidoner, commander-in-chief of the Estonian army, told the country that "if we are attacked, we shall defend ourselves as we did twenty years ago in the war of independence".

SQUADRON

(A German communique issued in Berlin said "German Air Force units yesterday successfully attacked English naval units" in the North Sea. The communique said that "besides one airplane carrier which has been destroyed, several severe hits were scored on one battleship")

Mr. Churchill told members he had received information about the engagement "about three-quarters of an hour ago" and "I thought the House would like to know."

A later announcement disclosed the engagement occurred about 150 miles off the Norwegian Coast.

DESIGN ATTACK

The French forces were reported to have withdrawn to the Hill of Pigeons, just west of the city, and the fort, leaving their patrols in precarious possession of St. Paul Castle at the head of the salient north of Wissembourg.

Strike on French Side

The Germans, said to be installed firmly in advanced fortifications hugging the border at the German side of Alternstaat, a town of double nationality which sprawls across the frontier, apparently struck through the French side between Fort Wissembourg and the town of Wissembourg.

Along the remainder of the front, the French reportedly consolidated newly-won positions save at Zweibruecken and Pirmasens, where constant attacks and counterattacks made Walshausen creek positions, parallel with two lanes, a shifting No-Man's-Land.

Just southwest of Blieskastel on the Saarbruecken - Zweibruecken road French patrols held stubbornly to advance posts recognized as almost untenable.

The German attacks south of Zweibruecken and Pirmasens and on the extreme eastern wing were considered by military observers of a limited scope designed only to prevent the French from completing their apparent plan of drawing a solid line against the main Westfall Forts.

POLISH CAPITAL

Hundreds of horses killed each day were said by the announcer to have been butchered immediately to feed the besieged populace.

Desperate Savage Attacks

Troops defending the city were holding their positions "against savage and desperate Nazi attacks" and in some places had bettered their positions with bayonet charges, said the announcer, adding that Polish losses were "exceedingly small."

"Tell the British and French Governments we are holding out," said a special message broadcast to the Polish ambassadors in London and Paris. "We expect aid will be forthcoming from our allies. The city is razed but we live on.

"The Nazi invaders, enraged by our resistance, are systematically burning, shelling and bombing every living human being or animal.

"They are making this an inferno on earth apparently intending to wipe us out to the last man, woman and child."

More to Come

The announcer said Warsaw's last 24 hours had been the most tragic of all "and still there seems more to come."

At 2:45 p.m. the announcer shouted: "Here come more than 200 planes, blackening the sky. They are dropping heavy bombs on to already ruined buildings in the centre of the city.

"Attacks such as you outside cannot possibly imagine in your wildest thoughts are going on against us," he said.

"An appalling loss of civilian life" was the result, with every church and every hospital razed by shells and bomb explosions.

"Warsaw by night is a sea of flames which illuminate the ruins of one of the most beautiful cities in Europe," said the announcer. "The bombed and burning city fights ceaselessly on and will continue to fight showing the entire world that Germans are unable to destroy Polish honor."

He said the Germans could not capture the city and "therefore the Nazis systematically are ruining it, one district after another, so that the Polish soldier will have nothing more to defend, no reason for wanting to live."

He asserted that the Modlin Ports, 18 miles northwest of the capital, were still holding out.

As the broadcast neared an end, dull roars shook the microphone and the speaker stammered from time to time as though the radio station were being shaken violently.

Capitulation Reported

Washington, Sept. 27 (AP)—The German Embassy said today "it had a report from the Trans-Ocean News Agency that Warsaw surrendered today at 4.30 a.m. E.S.T.

The Embassy said it regarded the report as "very reliable."

(The Trans-Ocean News Agency is a German service with headquarters at Berlin.)

Offer to Surrender?

Berlin, Sept. 27 (AP)—The commander of Warsaw's defences offered this morning to surrender the Polish capital, it was officially announced. General Von Blaskowitz was commissioned by the German High Command to negotiate.

An intensified bombardment designed to wipe out Poland's defences was launched yesterday.

Today's regular morning communique of the German High Command, said:—

"The attack yesterday brought the first line of fortresses in the south into our possession.

CARNIVAL REPORT GIVEN KIWANIANS

Profit of Nearly $700 Realized on Two Nights of Entertainment

The Kiwanis Club will have $700 to assist projects tending to help war needs, the result of the Street Carnival held last week in this city, the members were told by Secretary George Griffin in giving a report at the luncheon of the club held on Tuesday at the Queen's Hotel.

Adopting as their motto during the war "in peace or war Kiwanis Serves" the Kiwanians went to work with a will in the recent carnival and put the project over "with a bang" and they were congratulated by the President, the Secretary and the general chairman of the committee, Albert Boynton. Many of the members came in for personal mention especially Jack Trudeau, who worked hard on the construction committee and donated trucks and men of his own without expense to the club. Ivan Scott was another mentioned for his assistance, while the general chairman praised his assistant, Bruce Lattimer and the chairman of games, Frank Domenico. The ladies of the club were praised most highly for their work on the Hope Chest draw and everyone was given credit for one hundred percent. co-operation on the two nights.

Press is Thanked

Morley Weyman, chairman of publicity, thanked most cordially the co-operation of the local press in giving so many readers and in other ways assisting in making the carnival the complete success it was. Many of the members, who were against holding a street carnival, congratulated the general chairman and admitted he had the right idea but that the Carnival next year should be held from four to six weeks earlier. George Griffin spoke against going down to the market as had been suggested, while Jack McVeigh asked that Ross Stiver again be given the job of purchasing the prizes, due to his fine work of this year. Jack was also thanked for the use of the rooms over his store.

Especially marked for praise were the merchants of this city, who co-operated in every particular, leaving their lights on for two nights and helping with the shopping tour contest. It was suggested that a rebate be made to those contracting for the dance and this was unanimously passed. The Citizen's Band, the Kinsmen Club and all others assisting in any way were thanked for their services.

First Canadian Czech Baby Born At Frankford, Ont.

The first Canadian Czech baby to make its appearance in this section of Canada arrived this week when a bouncing baby boy was born to Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Navotny at Frankford.

Mr. Navotny is one of the Czech keymen brought here from his native country to assist in the construction and operation of the Bata Shoe Company's Canadian plant. Both mother and son are said to be doing well.

'LITTLE OLD HITLER' IN PARODY WAR SONG

The rousing songs of the first Great War are popular again, but they are being given a close race by parodies on current hits. A favorite is sung to the tune of "Little Sir Echo" and runs:

"Little old Hitler we're sorry for you; boohoo, boohoo.
"The Siegfried Line we'll soon be through at you; at you; at you."

The meter may be a bit awry but "there nowt wrong wi the sentiment", to quote one Lancashire lad.

COMMITTEE APPROVES U. S. NEUTRALITY BILL

Bill Would Repeal Embargo on Sale To Belligerents

Senate Debate is Scheduled to Start on Monday on 'Cash and Carry' Provision

GOVERNMENT BILL

Controversy at One Time Threatens Delay Approval Until Tomorrow But Bill is Approved After Three Hours' Session

Washington, Sept. 28 (AP)—The Senate Foreign Relations Committee approved today the Government's Neutrality Bill to permit the sale of armaments to belligerent nations.

Senate debate on the measure is scheduled to start Monday.

The bill was approved after a three-hour session, it would repeal the existing embargo on arms to belligerent countries.

Belligerents would be required to take title to all armaments and other goods purchased in the United States before they were shipped, however, and would have to carry the purchases home in their own vessels.

Sponsors of the measure claim these provisions would serve to put all sales to warring countries on a virtual "cash and carry" basis.

The committee's final action on the measure came after development of a controversy which threatened for a time to delay approval until tomorrow.

Senator William Borah of Idaho, ranking Republican member of the committee, announced the vote as 16 to 7.

Senate majority leader Barkley of Kentucky said the committee had agreed to an amendment to permit United States airplanes to land and refuel at their bases in the Western Hemisphere, even if the bases were situated on belligerent territory.

Sunday Oct. 8 Set Apart as Day Of Humble Prayer

Ottawa, Sept. 28.— (CP)— The Prime Minister's office announced today that a proclamation is to be issued setting apart Sunday, Oct. 8, to be observed throughout the Dominion "as a day of humble prayer and intercession to God".

The proclamation sets forth that Canada has been forced "to take up arms in defence or rights and liberties unjustly attacked and to prevent unprovoked aggression."

It continues:

"We therefore, believing it to be fitting that our people of Canada should be enabled to make a public and solemn avowal of Duty to Almighty God and of need of guidance, have thought fit, by and with the advice of our Privy Council for Canada, to appoint and we do hereby appoint Sunday, the eighth day of October next to be throughout our Dominion of Canada a day of humble prayer and intercession to Almighty God on behalf of the cause undertaken by Canada, by the United Kingdom and other Dominions of the British Commonwealth of Nations, and by Allied and Associated powers and all those who are offering their lives for our cause, and for a speedy and favorable peace that shall be founded on understanding and not hatred, to the end that peace shall endure:

"And we do hereby invite all our loving subjects throughout Canada to set apart this appointed day as a day of humble prayer and intercession.

"Of all which our loving subjects and all others whom these presents may concern are hereby required to take notice and to govern themselves accordingly."

SUCCESSFUL FLIGHTS

Paris, Sept. 28 (AP)—Military dispatches today reported French scouting planes had carried out successful reconnaissance flights far into the interior of Germany.

The French airmen went "as far as possible" eastward, flying over railroads and highways to observe German troop movements behind the western front, these dispatches said. French and British aircraft, operating in unison, were reported to have shot down "several" enemy aircraft yesterday.

TRIPLE ALLIANCE OF JAPAN, RUSSIA, GERMANY MOOTED

German Paper Sees no Reason Why War Should Continue After Poland's Fall

JAPS VISIT FRONT

Berlin, Sept. 28 (CP)—Das Schwarze Korps, organ of Adolf Hitler's Elite Guard, today spoke of a possible military alliance among Germany, Russia and later, Japan, as Nazi quarters continued to profess to see no reason why the war should go on now Poland has fallen.

The newspaper, closely connected with the high Nazi quarters, published a cartoon showing Prime Minister Chamberlain kneeling on the British Isles in prayer, umbrella in hand. Surrounding him were three huge military figures labelled Japan, U.S.S.R. and "Greater Germany."

"The encirclement," said the caption, "a masterpiece of English diplomacy."

FIFTEEN KILLED BY EXPLOSION

London, Sept. 28—(CP)— The Ministry of Supply announced that 15 persons were killed today by an explosion in a munitions factory somewhere in the north of Great Britain.

The location of the factory was not disclosed beyond the fact that it was in the north.

Four other persons were injured.

A communique issued by the Ministry of Information said:—"The Ministry of Supply regrets to announce that at one of the northern explosive factories an explosion took place this afternoon involving the loss as far as can be ascertained of 15 lives.

"Four persons were also injupred.

"The material damage will not seriously interfere with production."

Berlin's Claim "All Poppycock" Says Admiralty

Berlin, Sept. 28—(AP)— The German High Command claimed today that "a heavy British cruiser was successfully attacked off the Isle of May by one air force fighting unit." The Isle of May is at the entrance of the Firth of Forth Eastern Scottish coast.

The High Commands' communique claimed a 550-pound bomb hit the prow of the British ship, which was not identified beyond the statement it was a heavy cruiser.

No Truth Whatever

The Press Association added that it "understands there is no truth to report of the attack.

"The story issued today by the German radio is a repetition of a false claim made yesterday in connection with the North Sea episode" the association said. The latter reference was to the German command's assertion that on Tuesday Nazi airplanes "destroyed" a British aircraft carrier and severely bombed a British battleship.

The Asociation said that German "suggestions of damage" to the aircraft carrier Ark Royal in the Royal Sea battle "are untrue."

"The Ark Royal is safe and sound at her allotted station," the Association said it was informed.

PARLEY MAY TRY TO SHIFT BALANCE OFEUROPE'SPOWER

Von Ribbentrop Has Lengthy Talk With Stalin and Molotoff in Moscow

GREAT ACTIVITY

By WITT HANCOCK
Associated Press Staff Writer

Moscow, Sept. 28—(AP)— The official Soviet agency, Tass, today reported the second attack in two days by an unidentified submarine on Soviet shipping near Estonia.

The agency said the captain of the 967-ton Soviet steamship Pioner radioed that an unkown submarine had forced him to run onto the rocks of Virgrund Bank while trying to enter Narva Bay. The Bay is on Estonia's northern coast.

A salvage expedition was dispatched to aid the Pioner, whose crew was reported in no danger.

Coincides With Reports

Russia said yesterday that a mysterious submarine had sunk the Soviet steamship Metallist in the same general region. The announcement coincided with Soviet press attacks on Estonia accusing her of harboring foreign warships.

Estonian relations received attention while Soviet negotiations were under way with Germany and Turkey.

In the presence of Joseph Stalin, Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop of Germany consulted meanwhile with Commissar Vyacheslaff Molotoff, Soviet Premier and Foreign Commissar, and diplomats wondered about the possibility of another move to shift Europ'es balance of power.

With two other Foreign Ministers here, representing Turkey and Estonia, Moscow was the centre of intense diplomatic activity.

FIRE DAMAGES FRONT ST. BLOCK, LOSS IS $10,000

Kroch Brothers' Ready-to-Wear Store Bears Brunt of Damage

For the second time this week fire raced through the premises of a Front Street business establishment causing damage estimated at thousands of dollars. And for the second time only the fine work of the Belleville Fire Department prevented what might have been a general conflagration in the main business thoroughfare of the city.

Scarcely had the smouldering embers of what was formerly "Nick's Lunch" Front Street restaurant, gutted by fire on Monday morning, cooled off, than fire again launched an attack in the vicinity, flames racing yesterday afternoon through the store rented by Kroch Brothers in the building owned by M. R. Doyle, causing damage to stocks estimated at $8,000 while heavy smoke clouds that seeped through the entire three-storey building and adjacent stores inflicted additioanl damage said to be in the vicinity of $2,000.

HON. H. B. BENNETT TO HEAD SOCIETY

Red Cross Efforts of Canadians Living in Great Britain to be Coordinated

By GUY RHOADES
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Sept. 28—(CP Cable)—A group of Canadians meeting in London today appointed a committee of nine under the chairmanship of Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett to coordinate the Red Cross effort of Canadians resident in Great Britain.

Viscount and Lady Astor have offered their country home "Cliveden" as a Canadian hospital, Mr. Bennett told the meeting. He said he had accepted the offer tentatively and had asked confirmation from the Red Cross headquarters in Toronto.

It was estimated it would cost $150,000 to equip a 300-bed hospital at Cliveden which served as a Canadian hospital in the last war.

Some Observers Believe Hitler May Seek Peace

View Gains Ground Fuehrer May Aim to End War With Colonial Concessions to Germany or May Threaten Aerial War Against British and French Cities

London, Sept. 28 (CP)—Conviction that Adolf Hitler is working toward a spectacular "end the war" move grew in diplomatic circles here today.

The Government kept guarded silence on German-Soviet negotiations at Moscow but many informed observers expressed belief Hitler would make the talks a springboard for a "peace offensive."

Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax had another interview with Russian Ambassador Ivan Maisky yesterday, apparently seeking light on enigmatic Russian policy. Talking with Maisky last Saturday night, the Foreign Secretary requested the Russian Government to provide information on its future aims in Eastern Europe.

Definite Statement Unlikely

How Maisky replied to Lord Halifax was not officially disclosed. It was understood in diplomatic quarters, however, that the Russian view was that a definite statement of policy could not be expected at this stage.

Some observers declared Hitler's immediate goal was to have Britain and France recognize a "fait accompli" in Poland and conclude hostilities in the West with a promise of colonial concessions to Germany.

Aerial Warfare Threat Possible

Failing this, Hitler would threaten to launch fierce aerial warfare against Britain and France, with the aim of destroying civilian morale, these observers predicted.

Alert against this possibility, the Government warned that the

BRITISH FLEET ATTACKED WHILE SHIELDING SUB

Even With Advantage in Weather Enemy Bombers Not Able to Reach Objectives

HIGH-ANGLE GUNS USED

Reconnaissance Flights Are Carried Out Successfully And All Planes Return

London, Sept. 28 — (CP) — An authoritative account of the North Sea battle Tuesday between 20 German warplanes and ships off the Home Fleet disclosed today that the warships were attacked while they were shielding a damaged British submarine.

"Enemy bombers were able to take advantage of low-lying clouds to dive over the battleships," the account related. "Other airplanes flew at a height of about 12,000 feet to take advantage of a break in the clouds to deliver an attack on our cruisers.

"So effective, however, was the defence put up by the British squadron, that the German planes found it impossible to find a target."

The first attack, this account said, was a dive-bombing aimed at a British aircraft carrier, one of the vessels escorting the crippled submarine home.

FRENCH EXPECT HITLER TO OFFER PEACE PROPOSALS

Fuehrer Will Back Proposals With Threat of German-Soviet Alliance

MAY COME EARLY

If Proposals Not Accepted Hitler May Commence "Complete War"

(By John Martin Associated Press Staff Writer).

Paris, Sept. 28 (AP)—Informed French quarters expressed belief today that Fuehrer Hitler is preparing to advance peace proposals, backed by the threat of a possible German-Soviet military alliance and new troop concentrations in the west.

These sources said they would not be surprised if Hitler made representations to France and Great Britain before the week-end. Such representations, it was expected, would ask the Allies to recognize the German-Soviet partition of Poland and raise consideration of Germany's colonial demands.

Refusal to consider peace on this basis, observers declared, might be taken by Hitler as justifying a "complete war" upon France and Britain—even to the extent, they said, of a dash through neutral countries in an effort to combat the British blockade. (Berlin officially has disavowed any such plan of attack).

Daily War Survey

By The Canadian Press

Soviet Russia is back in the news today as Joachim von Ribbentrop, Nazi Foreign Minister, again visits Moscow. Whatever may be the nature of the Russo-German deal completed or under negotiation, it is clear Russia is not going to be a silent partner in any arrangement.

The Nazi Government now treats the Soviet Government with a degree of consideration and respect that is entirely new. The mere fact that one of the key Nazi ministers makes two trips to the Soviet capital within a few weeks is itself significant.

Nazi Germany has been in the habit of talking business with other nations on German soil or not at all. In the past this has been possible because the Nazis held the trump cards.

Chamberlain Went

A year ago Prime Minister Chamberlain travelled to Germany in order to confer with Hitler and his aides and the Munich Pact settling the fate of the Sudeten areas of Czecho-Slovakia was made on German soil with Mr. Chamberlain, Prime Minister Daladier of France and Prime Minister Mussolini of Italy travelling to Germany for the settlement.

In other discussions with other nations, less pleasant for the visitors, Hitler has insisted on delegates coming to Germany. Such were the discussions with Kurt von Schuschnigg of Austria, prior to the annexation of that country, with President Hacha of Czecho-Slovakia, prior to the final destruction of that nation. On the eve of the Polish invasion Germany's last peremptory offer was a demand that a Polish representative come to Berlin.

German Newspaper Service Hints Negotiations in Moscow Will 'Strengthen Germany's Hand in Dealing With Great Britain and France'

POLITICAL DISCUSSIONS

Report Says Several Conversations at Moscow Support 'Satisfactory Atmosphere of the First Visit' of Von Ribbentrop to Moscow

Berlin, Sept. 28 (AP)—The News Service Dienst Aus Deutschland hinted today that the results of German-Russian negotiations in Moscow would strengthen Germany's hand in dealing with Great Britain or France.

"The military risk of the war already has been emphatically demonstrated to the English," the Service said. "The political risk embodies itself in the Foreign Minister's second visit to Moscow. (Foreign Minister Von Ribbentrop opetned talks with Russian leaders Wednesday night.

"Several conversations already have taken place between Von Ribbentrop and Molotoff which it is said fully support the satisfactory atmosphere of the first visit (Ribbentrop's trip to Moscow to sign the Non-Aggression Pact) and permit the weight of German-Russian agreement to be put to account in coming developments in the most far-reaching form."

BUDGET IS SIGN OF DETERMINATION OF GREAT BRITAIN

Britain Mobilizing for Long War Most Significant Point in Address

REALITIES FACED

London, Sept. 28—The Bank of England reduced its rediscount rate today from four to three per cent to assist borrowing—loans of nearly £1,000,000,000 are in prospect—to finance the war this year. The indicated minimum budget requirement of £2,000,000,000 will be met roughly half by borrowing and half by taxation.

One effect of the new discount rate, financial circles predicted, would be to enable the government to borrow soon on bills at between three and four per cent and lay the ground work for cheap government borrowing generally. There has been agitation in many quarters for low interest rates on the belief they were too high in the last war and inordinately increased the hardship of footing the bill for that conflict.

Some sources said the bank rate reduction would be accompanied by a government "suggestion" tantamount to an order to commercial banks not to lend money to individual or business organizations for non-essential purposes. This, they said, would be another precaution to assure the government of aid in borrowing at low rates to the fullest possible extent.

YOUNG HUSBAND GETS HELP WHILE HIS WIFE WAITS ON BALCONY

Kitchener, Ont., Sept. 28—(CP)—A strange balcony scene was enacted here today.

Mr. and Mrs. Tony Fenninger awakened in their home to find it ablaze and the usual means of egress blocked by flames. In night attire they went out on their second-storey balcony. There, Fenninger took leave of his wife, leaped to the ground and ran to the fire station. While his wife waited on the balcony, the young husband returned with the firefighters and Mrs. Fenninger was rescued from the second-storey perch.

Damage to the home will amount to several thousand dollars. Cause was not determined.

Warsaw Gave Up Only After It Had Become City of Ruin, Tragedy

By ROBERT ST. JOHN
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Budapest, Sept. 28 (AP)—Except for strange, sputtered signals, the wavelength of the Warsaw radio was silent today.

Apparently the station's epic tale was told, ended on the same note it struck during the 20 days it told the outside world of the German siege.

Its last message, broadcast at 3 p.m. (9 a.m. E.S.T.) yesterday, was a new challenge to the besiegers:—

"We will never give in while one of us is alive."

But last night the Polish Telegraph Agency carried a dispatch, dated Warsaw, which indicated the defence of the Polish capital had been abandoned.

German announements said the city had capitulated unconditionally and would surrender formally tomorrow.

From the picture painted by the radio announcers and by a Polish army flier who escaped through a barrage of German shells, Warsaw gave up only after it had become a city of ruin and tragedy.

Crews 'Congratulated' by Fuehrer at Wilhelmshaven, North Sea Naval Base

Wilhelmshaven, Germany, Sept. 28—(AP)—Adolf Hitler visited this North Sea naval base today to "congratulate" submarine crews returning from cruises in "enemy waters".

Announcement of the Fuehrer's visit said he came to laud the submarine flotilla for "successful trips" abroad.

Grand Admiral Erich Raeder, commander-in-chief of the German navy, accompanied Hitler.

The Fuehrer thanked officers and men personally and later at an informal gathering had members of submarine crews tell him of their experiences, the announcement said.

ANOTHER REPORT ON LINER BREMEN

Swedish Crew Say They Saw Liner at Murmansk in Russia

Copenhagen, Sept. 28.— (AP) — Another report that the missing German liner Bremen was tied up at a Soviet Russian Arctic port was received here today.

The newspaper Ekstrabaldet in a dispatch from Malmo, Sweden, said the crew of the Estonian Steamship Kuressar reported seeing the Bremen at Murmansk when their ship stopped there for cargo. The captain of the Kuressar declined to comment.

(Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, told the House of Commons yesterday the $20,000,000 liner, which left New York August 30, "is believed to be in a North Russian port.")

Vatican Prelates Deny Reports Pope Has Proposed Peace Conference

Vatican City, Sept. 28.—(CP-Havas)— The Vatican newspaper L'Osservatore Romano today denounced the Soviet Union's invasion of Poland and its alleged threats against the Baltic States.

L'Osservatore Romano dismissed the Soviet Union's concern over the escape of a Polish submarine from the Estonian port of Tallinn as a manoeuvre to intervene in Baltic affairs. It warned that the Soviet threats are aimed at all Baltic States and also at Rumania.

"The truth is," L'Osservatore Romano said, "That Russia, signatory of non-aggression pacts with all States bordering it, simply figures as a aggressor in the present conflict."

Vatican Prelates' Statement

Vatican City, Sept. 28—(CP) — Vatican City news source said today that Pope Pius had initiated no special efforts to end the war "other than those of a general character and already known, directed toward pacifying and limiting the conflict."

Vatican prelates denied reports the Pope had proposed that the belligerent and neutral nations of Europe call a peace conference.

They said reports to this effect published aboard appeared to have originated not at the Vatican but at Berlin.

Reports were circulated in Rome today that Papal Nuncios had urged a conference which might settle the conflict on the basis of the reconstitution of Poland on a reduced scale but autonomous and independent and capable of fulfilling its historic role of a Catholic bulwark.

Diplomats discounted such reports pointing out that while they were in line with Italian appeals to Great Britain and France to settle the conflict, the Vatican thus far had shown no indications its peace efforts were along this line.

Attorney-General Orders Dismissal Of Local Guard

Strick observance of the guarding against sabotage in Canada must be carried out to the letter by those employed by the governments and there can be no deviation in the efforts of the guards, government officials announced here yesterday.

Accompanied by Hydro officials and Inspector Hammond of the Ontario Provincial Police, Attorney General Gordon A. Conant K.C., visited Belleville and inspected the various guards, who have been placed to guard public buildings, canals and Hydro buildings. During his tour of inspection in Belleville however, Attorney General Conant found one guard not at his post and immediately ordered the guard dismissed.

The incident occurred at the Reid Street Hydro sub station, where a local armed guard had been placed by the Provincial Police immediately upon the issuance of orders pertaining to guarding such places. Mr. Conant and his party arrived at the Reid Street sub station to find the guard's rifle leaning against an outer building, but the guard was not to be found, Provincial Police revealed today. Later the guard was found in a house on the property. He was immediately dismissed from duty by Mr. Conant.

Herbert "Buck" Leal Views Destruction of a Submarine

Student Visiting France Has Thrilling Experience on Voyage Home

MISSED ATHENIA

Tweed, Sept 28 (Special)—The first snow of the season fell on Monday night as the mercury dropped to freezing point.

Mr. Herbert "Buck" Leal, fourth-year student at McMaster University, Hamilton, arrived at his home in Tweed on Wednesday from the British Isles. Winner of a $750 scholarship last May, Herbert was entitled to the European tour with several weeks' study at Sarbonne University in France. He had booked passage on the ill-fated Athenia but shortly before she sailed, cancelled his reservation for a later boat. The sinking of the Athenia delayed his departure for Canada until the convoy system was established.

The ship on which he sailed was one of several passenger liners and freighters, convoyed by two destroyers for several days from Glasgow. The voyage was not without its thrills as a German U-boat on its mission of destruction, was sighted by the destroyers which veered from their course to drop several depth charges. They were successful in destroying the submarine as great quantities of oil came to the surface following a terrific explosion which shook the liner from stem to stern.

The British people are going about their occupations as usual, fully prepared for a lengthy war but undismayed and confident of ultimate victory.

A number of men from Tweed and district have been taken on at Trenton Airport in various capacities. Others following successfully passing the tests and medical examinations are only waiting final instructions advising them when to report for duty.

A resident of Huntingdon Township was arrested in Tweed on Saturday by Chief J. C. Hayes charged with indecent assault. He will appear before the Magistrate at a later date to answer to the charge.

WARSHIPS ON SEARCH

Helsingfors, Finland, Sept. 28 (AP)—Several Russian warships were sighted today making what appeared to be a search of the Estonian Coast. Belief was expressed the ships might be seeking an unidentified submarine which Moscow yesterday accused of torpedoing a Russian freighter.

BOGUS PROMOTER SENTENCED TO DIE

Charles Jefferson Convicted of Slaying Frances Dunn on Lonely Beach

West Palm Beach, Fla., Sept. 28 (AP)—A bogus theatrical promoter who lured two movie-struck girls from Miami with glib promises of fame, and then killed one of them, looked with but faint hope today toward a Supreme Court appeal that might save him from the electric chair.

A jury of 10 married men and two bachelors last night convicted Charles Jefferson, 29, on a charge of slaying 17-year-old Frances Dunn in a Palmetto thicket near the beach at Boca Raton Aug. 8.

The only defence witness, Jefferson testified the slaying grew out of a dispute between Miss Dunn and her companion, Jean Bolton. He had "heard talked in Miami about an idea to revolutionize the theatrical industry," he said, but he had no definite plan when he left with the girls ostensibly to have their pictures taken for movie tests.

Struck in Rage

After driving the girls to the lonely road and revealing himself as "a phoney" Jefferson declared, Miss Bolton suggested a kidnapping hoax for publicity. Miss Dunn refused to agree, he said, and the girls quarrelled. Jefferson asserted that in a rage he struck Frances with a hammer, fired at her once with a pistol, and then stabbed her with a butcher knife.

Miss Bolton's story differed considerably. She testified Jefferson told them it was a kidnapping, raped both of them, and that she heard Frances scream while with Jefferson in the woods.

Miss Bolton, a 17-year-old blond blues singer, was rescued after Jefferson permitted her to telephone her home.

Chief Lynch Asks Co-operation Of Public in the Prevention of Fires

An appeal that had more than a hint of warning was issued by Fire Chief William Lynch today, advising residents of the city to exercise the utmost care with regard to leaving places of domicile and business while lighted fires are in stove or furnace.

"With the advent of cooler weather fires, of necessity, will be lighted. We ask the co-operation of the general public to see that all pipes and chimneys are thoroughly cleaned before fires are started," the chief said.

Four fires within the past two days, two of them major ones, have resulted in a heavy property loss and damage. In order to prevent a repetition of these unnecessary blazes, the Fire Chief pointed out, fullest co-operation of the public is necessary.

The Fire Department stands ready to answer any emergency, but fire-prevention is much better than fire-extinction, he added.

POLICE COURT

Edward Cavanaugh, 21, of Sudbury and who is holidaying near Marysville, appeared in County Police Court, held before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., at the Court House today, charged with causing a disturbance, to wit the using of profane language, contrary to the Canadian Criminal Code.

Cavanaugh pleaded guilty as charged and was assessed $2.00 and ordered to pay the costs of the proceedings. The charge arose out of a controversy, which took place in the Marysville hotel recently.

"I am told he became disgruntled and uttered profane remarks, but it does not seem to be a serious matter," suggested Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan K.C.

W. Sexsmith, Cannifton, appeared charged with fraud.

"Is this another cheque artist?" enquired His Worship.

"No, Sir. This charge arose out of a deal around a motor car and it appears to me as though the charge should be theft, instead of fraud", remarked Crown Attorney Donnan as he received permission to amend the charge to that of theft. Sexsmith pleaded guilty and later informed the court the matter was entirely a misunderstanding, to which there was some agreement by the prosecution.

"This man has joined the Canadian Army, would you consider giving him two weeks in which to make restitution?" asked Mr. Donnan. The matter was enlarged pending the making of restitution.

A large number of H.T.A. charges were presented, the majority being for speeding. In all cases fines were levied.

BRITAIN TAXES HERSELF

Determination to bear the war's burden while her heroic sons fight the battle of freedom against the mad rage of barbarism, Britain taxes herself this year to the highest limit in her history. For the next fiscal year the income tax will be still higher.

The men at the front and those who go to the front, those who man the defences, the nurses in the hospitals, and all who carry on at home, struggle in one common cause, for who would live should Britain fail. But Britain will not fail. The increase in the taxes announced in the first war budget shows that the last stage of this trouble is at hand, the democracies have gripped with the fell forces which have been unsettling mankind the world over and the fight is now on to a finish as far as the principles of Adolf Hitler are concerned.

In other ages war was not what it is today. Now it is the united front of every factor in the life of the people for the front and the farthest away from home defence are indivisibly one in this struggle.

The Britisher taxes himself to pay in as far as he can today the cost of the struggle for when another day dawns with victory, he will have paid off a great share of the burden of crushing the evil influence of Hitlerism.

Those who have been privileged to see pictures of the war preparations in London and other cities with the evacuation of the millions of children and women and the sick from hospitals to places of safety from possible air raids, have received indelible impressions of the magnitude of this effort alone—one of the greatest humanitarian movements of all time. These children and their parents have gone through much, life's routine has been so changed through the threat of Naziism, that it is no wonder that the Motherland should give another supreme demonstration of her realization that nothing in the way of sacrifice is too great if it contribute to conquering Hitler and these other Nazis who are the foes of liberty and democracy. So the Britisher "digs down" to pay the war's cost.

WARSAW AN EPIC STORY

Warsaw, beleaguered for three weeks, has fought on. The heroic mayor of the capital set an example of heroism which will bear comparison with similar great events in history; in Warsaw's case the struggle has called for heroism in sticking to the ideal of country against the powerful engines of destruction of modern warfare.

Warsaw's stand will live in history as the Poles of centuries past have lived in legend, in song and in story. The canvas on which the story of Warsaw will be written is a vast one, but some day the story will be told to a wondering world.

In this mighty shock of nations much can never be told. The world could not have time to read of all the acts of valor and the deathless story of the men and women who will play their part in the conflict against the enemy. Many thousands of events which in lesser wars would have found recorders will pass out of memory or will be unsung because those who witnessed the deeds themselves fell.

What the defence of Warsaw has meant and will mean to the Allied armies and to democracy and what it means to the ultimate end of Naziism and Hitlerism may be forecast and though not a fortress, this city upheld the tradition of the Poles; here has been told an undying epic of all time. Poland may be gone, but. Warsaw, like the soul of Poland, has been alive and fighting. Her story will be the light that foretells the revival of Poland after the elimination of Hitlerism from the world and the restoration of the Poles.

Warsaw has been a great fact and an ideal.

The heroism of the radio broadcasters, the valor of the defenders and the deathless story of the women who have aided in the struggle to save their capital, the centre of their national life, though it had no military significance, have been praised by a world proud that humanity can endure as these citizens and soldiers have endured, and full of pity for those who have suffered and of the sense of shame that any struggle should make these people suffer as they have suffered.

Hitlerism knows what Warsaw means and fought to conquer it .

Its soul goes marching on, a sure and certain prophecy that Poland will arise and Warsaw be its capital in days beyond this deluge of agony and suffering in the inferno in which its defenders have dwelt, and for which thousands of citizens have

MY NEIGHBOR

A neighbor mine he may not be
Although he live next door to me;
A man of means his house is grand,
He needeth not a friendly hand;
Across the lowly garden wall
We ne'er exchange a friendly call,
Like stranger from a foreign land
My speech he would not understand;
And though we're dwelling side by side
The poles no farther could divide.

But far away, a mile or two,
There lives a neighbor tried and true;
The language that we speak the same,
Alike our scorn of pride and fame;
When sorrow comes, and times of fear,
Our friendship keeps us very near;
And when good fortune crowns our days
We each rejoice with songs of praise;
And tho' our homes are far apart
True neighbors, we, in thought and heart.

—Helen B. Anderson.

CANADA FOR A YOUNG NATION supports quite an army of government employees with good salaries and assured pensions to keep the wolf from the door in the twilight of life. The central government at Ottawa is large enough to govern all the provinces, but each province has a government of its own, big enough to govern all of Canada, and the bill for governments and government employees keeps on growing, vastly faster than the increase of population warrants. It is interesting to note what the growth in government agencies is costing the United States where there is a vast army of government employees, almost a million, 923,856, to be exact. New York State alone has 98,048 on its payroll, in a population of 12,959,000. Washington, seat of Federal government, has an official colony of 191,401, drawing government salaries. The figures given are for Federal employee alone, while each state has its own employees.

WHO'S AFRAID OF THE BIG BAD WOLF? Editor of the Peterborough Examiner is not, apparently, for he throws out this defy on the sugar question:

We are informed that inspectors may come around to houses looking for hoarded sugar. To make the work easier we tell in advance—"northeast corner of the house, second pantry shelf; don't trip over the bread box."

Not being used to heavy sugar the editor knows that his household economy is more likely to be short on sugar than long on the sweet stuff.

IN THIS GREAT FAMILY JOURNAL THERE IS A LITTLE BIT OF EVERYTHING and then some. Young man writes to Beatrice Fairfax, editor of "Advice to Lovelorn" department and says his girl friend has a habit of boasting about her dates with other boys and her "conquests." He has a hunch she's lying, but what to do about it. Beatrice Fairfax answers thus, in part; "A good many young ladies are like this one, and try to paint their innocent young lives more scarlet than their lipsticks. It's just an amiable pose; don't take it too seriously." And so, the girls had better be on their guard now that the young men are invading "Advice to the Lovelorn" department, hitherto considered the exclusive stamping ground for the fair sex.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

SEPT. 28TH, 1919

The Ontario Provincial elections will be held on Oct. 20th.

The G.T.R. baseball team, champions of Central Ontario League, defeated the Oslers of Toronto in the second game of the semi-finals on their own diamond yesterday in Toronto. As a result of the game both teams have a win to their credit. The final score was 4 to 2. The final play off will take place in Peterboro. The following composed the G.T.R. team: Meagher, Ross, Weir, Mills, Goyer, Gerow, Kelleher, Casey, Symons, Smith and Morden. During the game Goyer for Belleville fanned 18. The members of the team received a royal welcome home when they arrived from Toronto. The Fifteenth Regimental Band and hundreds of citizens were at the station. Headed by the band the boys were escorted to the corner of Bridge and Front Streets. Many motor cars were in the parade.

30 YEARS AGO

SEPT. 28TH., 1909

The cornerstone of a Methodist Church will be laid at the Carrying Place tomorrow by Col. J. Lyons Biggar of Ottawa, formerly of Belleville. Col. Biggar's grandfather was instrumental in building the first Methodist Church at Carrying Place and his father the second one. It is expected that there will be a large gathering at the ceremony.

The school teachers of this city will pay a visit to Picton on Friday. The visit is in conjunction with the annual meeting of the Prince Edward County Teachers' Association.

The Mayor's office in the city hall is being decorated.

If the material on Zwick's Island will make good roads without any crushing as claimed by some people who should know, why not try it? We could then get more streets repaired for less money. It would not be hard to find a few streets upon which to experiment.

40 YEARS AGO

SEPT. 28TH, 1899

Mr. R. S. Bell will leave tomorrow to spend a short time in New York City.

Mr. M. LaRue of Brighton, formerly of Belleville, was in town today.

Mr. T. S. Carman left today for New York City to witness the Dewey celebration and the international yacht race.

A large quantity of goods was stolen from the general store owned by Mr. W. J. Greenan in Foxboro last night.

Mr. Henry Phillips of Winnipeg is visiting his brother Mr. John Phillips, Commercial St,

Mr. John Rhodes of Duluth, Minn., a former resident of Belleville is visiting friends here after an absence of ten years.

Mr. Gilbert Parker arrived in Montreal yesterday from the Old Country.

50 YEARS AGO

SEPT. 28TH, 1889

Mr. H. H. Johnston, son of Mr. John Johnston, public school inspector, who recently passed with honors, the barrister and solicitor examinations, has left for Hamilton where he has obtained a position with a large legal firm. We wish him success.

Mr. William Haggerty of Rawden Township, was driving down Front Street this morning and when passing under the new arch at the corner of Front and Bridge Streets, the top of the buggy became entangled in a guy rope and was torn off. Mr. Haggerty was not injured.

Mr. Fletcher Andrews, formerly of the Bank of Montreal here, now of Hamilton, is spending his vacation in the city.

Memories of Storm Over Munich

We were standing across the street from Hitler's Brown House when the storm broke, with thunder and lightning and drenching rain. In a moment everybody in the streets of Munich was wet and the holiday crowds fled into doorways or under trees along the street.

We managed to cower under a linden tree, which held out some of the rain. Across the street in front of the Brown House, and nearby in the huge stone courtyard where the first Nazi gangsters lie buried as heroes, the sentries stood motionless and stolid in their black uniforms soaked to the skin, as if they could feel and know nothing.

Then we became aware that our linden tree had attracted another refugee. He was a little man with a wizened, worried face, and his thin clothes were wrapped tightly about him by now like a wet bathing suit. He hunched his shoulders, as if that would keep the rain off, and hugged his chest, while his teeth chattered.

x x x

The rain began to slacken off and the sun tried to steal out. The little man seemed to notice us then for the first time. "Americans, eh?" he said in good English but with a German accent. "Canadians", we said. And, surprisingly enough, he said: "Toronto, eh?" We hastened to correct him, feeling a little hurt. "Victoria", we said. "Yeah", he said, "that's part of Vancouver, isnt it? I once was in Bellingham."

The German crowds had begun to sneak out of the doorways and hurry down the wet streets to their homes. The sentries still stood motionless at Hitler's doorway, the rain dripping from their iron helmets. The little man looked about hurriedly to make sure no one heard him.

"This is a hell of a place," he said under his breath, and talking out the side of his mouth.

to Philly. Used to have a cigar store in Philly. Maybe you've seen it—Deitz and Son. We did fine, too. Then I came back home here. I had my stake and figgered I could live on it here, cheap. Now look at me!"

x x x

He looked up and down the street again and around behind him to see that we were still out of anyone's hearing. "Listen!" he said with sudden ferocity, and poked his finger for emphasis into my chest. "You know what's happenin' in this country? I'm a German, see, born here, but I lived in Philly 20 years and I know what I'm talking about. I tell you what's happenin', brother—this man (he nodded across the street), he's crazy, see, he's nuts, that's all! I tell you he'll ruin the country. I tell you he'll start a war, sure, and you won't keep the States out of it. Sure, crazy and mean into the bargain! I'm tellin' you, brother."

Some German tourists passed, dripping, and the little man became silent until they had gone down the street. He turned down his collar and prepared to leave. "Well, so-long, folks", he said. "My name's Deitz. I wish to God I was back in Philly!"

We never saw him again and I never thought of him until this week. Then I wondered what had happened to Mr. Deitz, formerly of Philadelphia, now of Munich, who told me under a linden tree across the street from Hitler's Brown House that Hitler was crazy and mean into the bargain.

x x x

Mr Deitz is of no importance alone, but I wonder how many other people there are like him in Germany. How many who feel secretly that Hitler is crazy and mean into the bargain. Nobody really knows. Still, nobody who has toured Germany in the last two years can believe that there is any widespread hatred of Hitler, because most Germans have not seen the outside world. They portunities of a cigar store in Philadelphia. I suppose there must be many others like Mr. Deitz, but few with courage to tell anybody, even a Canadian in a rainstorm.

Anyway, Mr. Deitz is very vivid in my mind this week. When you have talked with these people, when you can remember their faces, voices and manner, the war, even at this distance, becomes something like a reality to you.

To most of us Germany is a place on the map, a problem, a collection of statistics, a vague mass with no single feature of it, plain. You have to go there to realize that these people are human beings, each different despite Hitler's regimentation, each with a house, a family, with hopes and fears.—By Bruce Hutchinson in Victoria Times.

Is Rheumatism Hereditary?

Most of us are inclined to smile when an individual tells us that he has inherited his rheumatism from one or other of his parents. He may give you the names and their relation to him of various relatives, all of whom have had some form of rheumatism.

Physicians are agreed that infection, from teeth, tonsils, or intestine, causes most cases of rheumatism.

Is there a possibility that rheumatism is inherited? Drs. R. L. Gould, Baltimore, in the Journal of Clinical Investigation, record their studies of the large number of cases of rheumatic disease in the families of ninety-six rheumatic children.

The percentage of persons with a history of rheumatism who had parents who had rheumatism which was found to run in two generations—parents and grandparents—was about four times as high as in a similar number of persons who had no history of rheumatism.

When one or both parents had a history of rheumatism (rheumatic fever, heart disease, St. Vitus Dance), a greater percentage of the offspring was rheumatic than was found in the families of a similar number who had no history of rheumatism.

The percentage of rheumatic symptoms was found to be almost twice as high in female offspring of rheumatic mothers as in the male offspring of these mothers. A greater percentage of persons with rheumatic disease was found among the mother's relatives — uncles, aunts—than among the father's relatives.

The above evidence "suggests" that a hereditary constitution may be a factor in causing rheumatism. This evidence does not, however, rule out infection as an important part in causing rheumatism, nor that exposure is not also an important factor.

The lesson is very plain. Where there is a history of rheumatism in the family, early removal of all infection and the prevention of exposure to cold and dampness, should be good insurance against rheumatism.

HELLO GIRLS

A man could scarcely do better, as a London dispatch suggests, than look for a mate among the "hello girls."

What does one want in a wife? A soft voice? The telephone operator must have—or cultivate—one. Pleasant manners? They are part of her stock in trade. Patience? She must have the patience, swears the chief of Imperial Airways' switchboard room, of the Archangel Gabriel. We wouldn't know about would be enough for us. Gabriel; just ordinary patience

Besides these qualities, the phone girl must be efficient and quick-witted, according to her employers, and "must never reveal her true feelings" in dealing with the inconsiderate public.

There seems to be only one drawback to combing the switchboard for a wife. Most of the girls are married already.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Joe Louis Isn't So Dumb

Joe Louis, it seems to me, excels all other fighters in something which is only incidentally connected with his pugilistic practice. He makes the best after-the-battle remarks into the microphone.

Some have insisted that the champion is not quick-witted. He certainly belies this charge when hauled up suddenly after a grueling fight and asked to say a few words to the invisible audience.

Such things cannot be rehearsed unless the boxer chooses to use some stencil such as, "Hello, Mom; put on the pork chops". But I have never heard Joe pull a phony.

I am among the many who find it desperate work to speak over the air even at such times as I hold a script studded with brilliant remarks of my own culled out of old columns. The idea of first absorbing a few punches and then taking on a national hookup seems to me one of the most exacting ordeals which could be placed on any man. But the co-ordination of the Brown Bomber extends to casual conversation as well as right-hand hooks.

x x x

The announcer at the mike never is able to throw him off balance. And I must say, that often the queries almost seem like traps for the unwary. The victor in a prize fight is tempted to exult and chortle over his rival's discomfiture.

Not so Joe Louis. He keeps his guard up while talking and invariably reports that his opponent, who at the moment is being carried out of the ring, gave him a desperate battle. Generally the next jab of the announcer is to ask, "Did he hurt you at any time during the fight, Joe?"

Now, there are plenty of pugilists who will fall for that one and make some ungracious answer, such as, "That bum! Why, he couldn't even rumple my hair".

Louis handles it with the keen force of implication and understatement. After the Pastor fight his answer ran, "Well, I knew he'd been hitting me".

Detroit, to my mind, marked an actual triumph for the champion, because I think it was the first occasion on which he ever coined an epigram. During the bout we had heard, as usual, a great deal about the dead pan of the champion. During a flurry of blows the radio audience was informed, "Out of all the 45,000 people here Joe Louis seemed the calmest of the lot".

So when it was all over and the fighter had come over right after the knockout to be interviewed the inevitable question was proffered, "Joe, were you worried at all at any time during the fight?"

Louis didn't have to think long on that one. He said, "It's nice to be champion, and so you're always worried".

That, I submit, is authentically an epigram. "Uneasy lies the head which wears the crown" is much less colorful. In fact, I think the remark was self-revelatory. I imagine that a tolerably erroneous picture of this particular fighting man has been built up by the sports commentators. Too much has been made of the dead pan. The fact that it is merely a ring accessory has been ignored. Joe wears it as he would a rubber mouthpiece.

x x x

A lack of expression can be a kind of camouflage. The so-called dead pan may conceal the fact that the last body punch the other fellow landed was really agonizing.

Most fighters play it in reverse. Thus when anybody all but swept the block off Maxie Baer he would break into a wild grin in an effort to convey the impression that he was not hurt at all.

Joe Louis plays it more mysteriously by neither glaring nor grinning while the fight is on. There is no facial indication as to his feelings or his intentions. Baer often telegraphed his right-hand punch by feinting with his eyebrows. But nobody can tell by looking into the eyes of Louis whether he is about to give ground, jab or lash out with full power.

And yet I'm sure he spoke accurately. The fires go on under the crater crust. A man incapable of worry would be incapable of ever becoming a champion. The Prince in the fairy tale found that out. In order to amount to anything a man must learn how to shiver and shake and still keep coming in.—Heywood Brown in N.Y. World-Telegram.

Compulsory Military Service

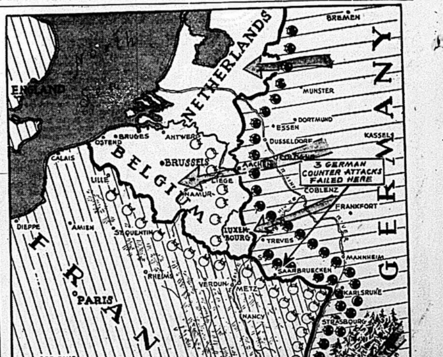
The introduction of conscription in peacetime has revolutionized many old ideas in Great Britain. Except during the strain of the Great War nearly a quarter of a century ago, the nation had regarded compulsory military service as utterly alien to British sentiment. Then it was only accepted due to unprecedented circumstances.

Now the British people have accepted it as an evil made necessary because of the lunatic state of international affairs. Having accepted it, they have got on with the job in their usual philosophic manner, determined to do it thoroughly and well. The result is that in many of the new militia camps work which would normally take about a year to complete, is being done in less than half that time. Camps are being erected with amazing speed, and young soldiers are being trained with extraordinary rapidity.

The methods now adopted are likely to shock soldiers of an older generation, who were used to Spartan fare and the plainest possible accommodation. For the new British militiamen there are beds with spring mattresses, furniture which is not only durable, but comfortable, individual wardrobes, and even central heating and shower baths.

The most up-to-date cooking appliances have been installed, mechanization has been introduced in the cookhouse as well as in the field, and operations which used to occupy many men for long hours now performed mechanically in a very short time.

The result is that, instead of "spoiling" the men, the new methods allow time for the more intensive and extensive training now necessary for modern warfare. What appears to be needless luxury is making it possible to achieve the most desirable results; it helps to produce soldiers with the highest degree of efficiency in the shortest possible time.—Andrew Blackmore in Hamilton Spectator.



The big question that faces the allies as Germany turned her armed might from Poland to the west is: Where will the Nazi high command finally decide to strike when really important action begins on the western front? The arrows on the ABOVE map indicate four possible avenues of German attack kept in mind by British and French military experts as they plan their strategy. Will they strike through the Netherlands or Belgium, march through Luxembourg or advance southward through Switzerland?

Mrs. George A. Stokes, London, Ont., is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald A. Morton, Victoria Ave.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry DeMarsh, formerly of Belleville, and now living in Niagara Falls, Ont., are visiting friends in the city.

Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Potter, Trent Road, left Wednesday for Vancouver, B.C., where they will visit his brother, W. L. Potter and sister, Mrs. George Howe.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Rodgers, who have resided on the Foxboro Highway for some time are leaving shortly to take up residence in Belleville, and last evening a number of their friends from College Hill surprised them at their home for a farewell gathering. A most enjoyable evening was passed in games and dancing and during the evening, Mr. and Mrs. Rodgers were presented with Pyrex pie plates and a silver bread tray. About thirty-five friends were present.

A very enjoyable time was spent last evening by the "Muriel Brothers" young ladies' class of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church when they met at the home of their teacher, Miss Ethel Nurse, Moodie Street, at a dinner-party, honoring Mrs. Les Saunders (nee Doris Cook), one of their members. The table was artistically arranged with white tapers centred by a miniature replica of a bride and groom. Later the Class convened to the parlor, where Doris was asked to sit underneath a wedding bell attached to the chandelier, from which hung pink and white streamers. Placed at the end of the streamers were presents, tokens of the good wishes which were held for Doris by her fellow classmates.

Wife-Swapping Charge is Heard

Lapeer, Mich., Sept. 28—(AP)—A jury of 12 men, all but one of them married, today heard part two of what the prosecution contends is the story of how two couples traded mates and children in a "wife-swapping" deal.

The same jury heard part one of the story yesterday, and convicted Mrs. Mildred Davis, 28, and Clarence June, 39-year-old farmer, on charges of "lewd and lascivious cohabitation." George Davis, 34-year-old factory worker, and Mrs. Edith June, 28, were the defendents today on the same charges.

Witnesses yesterday told how Mrs. June left her husband and went to live with Davis, while Mrs. Davis went to the June home. They testified Mrs. June took along seven of her 10 children and Mrs. Davis took her four children, thus providing for an equal distribution of progency in the alleged deal.

Sentences for Mrs. Davis and June were withheld pending the outcome of today's trial.

PRESENTATION

Bonarlaw, — On Friday evening last nearly two hundred friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Brown and "showered" their daughter, Eva, now Mrs. Howard Morrow, with many beautiful and useful gifts.

A program of music was provided by Miss Ruth Storms (piano) and Messrs. Bruce Barnum and J. P. Baker (vocal), after which Rev. Canon Swayne called the meeting to order and after a few well chosen preliminary remarks asked Miss Violet Hannah to read an address expressing the esteem in which the bride and groom are held and wishing them happiness and prosperity in their new home.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Morrow replied fittingly and invited all present to visit them in their home, and thanked those assembled for their beautiful gifts.

All sang "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows" and three cheers and a tiger were given.

An abundant lunch was served and a splendid social half hour was enjoyed by all.

The address follows:

Bonarlaw, Ont.,
Sept. 22nd., 1939.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Morrow:
Dear Eva and Howard:

We are gathered here this evening to wish you all kinds of happiness and prosperity in your new home and a very blissful wedded life. Also to show the esteem in which you are held by one and all in this community.

You, Eva, we have known all your life, and we are very proud of you. You have been a willing helper in our community life since childhood, and we will miss you greatly.

We congratulate you, Howard, on choosing for your life partner one of our most popular young ladies. We cannot say that you are as well known to us as Eva, but you are by no means a stranger here. Your frequent excursions to this neighborhood during the past few years have given us an opportunity to become quite well acquainted with you, and we are pleased to say we are not disappointed in you.

You are the very type of young man we would have chosen for Eva had we been asked to do the choosing.

As a remembrance from your many friends of this community, please accept these gifts, and may you long live to enjoy them.

Mesdames M. Fitzgerald, Jason Baker, W. G. Swayne, W. J. Barlow and J. P. Baker attended the Deanery Woman's Auxiliary Convention which was held in Bancroft on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Simmons of Severn Bridge were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Baker last weekend.

Word was received on Saturday of the death of Mrs. Alexis Bristol of Belleville, a former resident of Bonarlaw. The sympathy of the community is extended to Mrs. Stanley McIlroy, her sister.

In connection with the Missionary Exchange Sunday, Rev. A. E. Pepper of Tweed preached in St. Mark's Church Sunday evening last and Rev. Canon W. G. Swayne at Bancroft.

There was a splendid attendance at St. Mark's and Mr. Pepper delivered an interesting and fitting sermon.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Baker attended the Armstrong-Arkell wedding at Eldorado on Friday afternoon.

At a meeting of The Stirling, Rawdon and Marmora Township Religious Education Council held in St. Mark's Sunday School rooms on Wednesday of last week, the program for the Township Convention was arranged and the basis upon which the banner is to be awarded was decided upon. The date of Convention will be announced in the near future.

St. Andrews Y. P. Society

The St. Andrew's Young People's Society held their regular weekly meeting in the Sunday School room of the church on Monday, September 25th. The meeting opened with a hymn, followed by God Save the King. After the minutes and roll call, Miss Beth Stock, and Mr. Earl Wightman's group took charge. They invited Mrs. Stewart Lazier to come and speak on Red Cross work, which proved to be a most interesting talk.

The Rev. Mr. Walker and Mr. Graham Diamond, vice-president, thanked Mrs. Lazier, on behalf of the Young People's Society. About fifteen girls in the society have formed a group in connection with the Red Cross work.

The rest of the evening was spent in Community singing.

For Friday, September 29

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

A RATHER dubious and difficult day is indicated by both lunar and mutual aspects of important planets. This doubtful situation will be encountered in both business and private affairs, with the latter particularly under baneful portent. Deception, intrigue or other forms of sinister undercurrents call for utmost discretion and wariness. Sign all writings with precaution, and guard the speech. It is possible the situation may be relieved by a surprising friendly intervention.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year in which their own discreet, clever and restrained conduct may be instrumental in averting compromising and disagreeable experiences. This treacherous and sinister menace may affect business as well as intimate relations, so be extremely cautious with speech and writings, and shun tricky and suspicious entanglements. A surprising friend may appear to help out in a doubtful moment; it might be a romantic stranger.

A child born on this day may have some debatable characteristics, as its love of indulgence, luxury and "the easiest way" may involve it in tricky or suspicious circumstances. It may be artistic, refined and congenial.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Your Child's Manners "Go Back To School" Too

Your children are going back to school these days.

Are you proud of the manners that they are taking with them? Or have you, during the long summer vacation, permitted the children to let down on their manners so that, when they present themselves at school, their manners will be loose-jointed, tenth-rate manifestations of your lack of good example and discipline?

I know too many women who allow their children's manners to become tarnished during the summer play months, and then expect the teacher to do the job of polishing them up.

During the summer many children are allowed to storm in and out of the house with never a bow or a "How do you do" to a guest. Naturally, they have lost the habit of bowing politely to the teacher before they take their seats in the class-room and saying, "Good morning".

"Please" and "Thank you' . . . those courteous twins. . .have they been allowed to pass out of the mannerly picture during the summer? If so, you cannot expect an immediate rebirth on the first days of school.

And what about that abrupt "Yes' and "No" without the polite addition of the name after it? Has that habit grown like a weed in summer's garden? If you have not let down on insisting on your child's not using the clipped "Yes" and "No", but have graciously led him into the habit of saying "Yes, Mother", "No, Father", "Yes, Aunt Mary and "No, Mrs. Smith", he will, with habitual politeness, say to his teacher, "Yes, Miss Brown', "Please, Miss Brown", "Thank you, Miss Brown". Miss Brown's life will be pleasanter, and happier. And Miss Brown will know, inevitably, what kind of parents your child has, from what kind of home he comes.

The first teachers in the school of good manners are the mother and father of a child.

Formal Wedding

Dear Mrs. Beeckman

I have received an invitation to a church wedding the latter part of the month. As I have never been to a church wedding, I need some help.

1—The wedding is to be rather elaborate—should I wear a formal dress?

2—As I do not have an automobile, should I deliver the gift personally, or would it be all right to have it delivered via parcel delivery?

3—When shall it be delivered, and should it be sent to the bride's home or to their home-to-be?

4—Would it be all right to enclose a card that mentions the bride and groom, as I know them both?

M.

1—Since the wedding apparently is to be a formal one, your costume should be consistent with that formality. You do not tell me the hour of the wedding. If it is to be a day-time wedding, you would wear a day-dress (street-length skirt) or suit, with hat and other accessories most carefully chosen. If it is to be a formal evening wedding, you would appropriately wear evening gown or dinner dress with an evening wrap.

2—You will probably find it most convenient to do what most people do nowadays; send the gift from the shop in which it was bought. Department stores and shops nowadays have especially charming ways of wrapping wedding gifts.

3—The wedding present should be sent to the bride-elect at her home . . . not to her home-to-be. And it should be sent as soon as possible after you have received the invitation.

4—Yes, if you wish, you may mention the groom too on your card that you enclose with the gift.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage.

A CASE OF TRUE LOVE

In case you've ever doubted the power of love and its effect on even the mere onlooker, here's astonishing new evidence to prove it.

In this story, a detective lieutenant, a recorder acting as judge and a fish merchant who had temporarily lost possession of a new suit and $250. in money—all seem to have forsaken their ordinary standards and given themselves completely over to abetting the sweet insanities of love.

In New Jersey, the other day, a nineteen-year-old youth found himself in a frenzy to hurry up the wedding with his ravishing fiancee. But he lacked a suit good enough for the occasion. In a fit of madness, that is attributed entirely to love, since this young man previously had been honest as the day, he slipped into the house of a fish merchant, and slipping out again, took with him a fine new suit.

Trying on the suit at home the young man found $250 in one of the pockets. He had certainly never meant to take this money, but since he had it, why not use it to buy essentials for house-keeping? He did so.

A detective lieutenant found it an easy matter to trace the suit. He arrested the boy as he was buying one of these articles and brought him before the Recorder. And I'm sure you never heard of such a courtroom scene as followed.

"There's nothing the matter with this boy," agreed the Recorder, and the detective and the fish merchant, "except that he's mightily in love. He's never taken other peoples' property before, and we're sure that if we marry him good and quick to that enchanting young miss he is engaged to, he'll never do anything of the sort again."

So nothing was said about sending this young man to jail; instead, they hurried up the wedding for him. The recorder performed the ceremony, detective was best man and the fish merchant was so completely melted by the spectacle of the happy union that he quite withdrew his original charge. He even gave the young couple a wedding present of the $75 that the young man had spent, it being understood that the remaining $175 was to be returned to him.

The story makes one wish that one might have been an onlooker at that strange little wedding. Was the beauty of his girl so great that it turned the heads of these three experience-hardend men? Or was the love between the young pair one of those unmistakable and dazzling romances that is just as likely to happen among simple people as among princes?—the kind of love that you can't look at or mention without tears and a catch in your throat.

I think it must have been the latter. In which case, I understand perfectly why the detective couldn't bear to regard this boy as a thief, and the recorder couldn't bear to address a harsh word to him, and why even the particular victim of the young man's love-madness, namely the fish merchant, felt his own heart melting in a big desire to bless these young lovers and further their happiness.

Does all the world love a lover? There can be no possible doubt of it. But the lover must be genuine and the love must be true. If true love occurred oftener, it would be a good thing for all of us. It might even regenerate the cold, hard world we live in.

More Protection for Peterboro Plant

Peterborough, Ont., Sept. 28 (CP)—Attorney-General Gordon Conant stated yesterday additional protection had been ordered for the Auburn Power Plant within the city limits Mr. Conant is inspecting power plants in connection with anti-sabotage plans.

Barbed wire barricades and some construction work will be undertaken, he said. Later, in company with John M. Dymond of the Ontario Hydro Power Commission Engineering Department, Mr. Conant left for other parts of Eastern Ontario.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Golden Boy"

"Less than a year ago," William Holden said, "less than a year ago I was worried about speaking one little line, a simple 'thank you' in a college production. I couldn't sleep because I was worried about that line. And now . . ." He made a gesture of despair. "Now I'm even more worried because I have to say "thank you" to an entire nation and I don't know how."

Less than a year ago, William Holden was just another of the thousands of would-be actors in colleges, stock companies, amateur groups. Today he's known throughout America as "Golden Boy", the brilliant young star of Columbia's sensational motion picture which is taking the country by storm.

In "Golden Boy", screen version of the Clifford Odets Broadway stage success, William Holden is starred with Barbara Stanwyck and Adolphe Menjou. In "Golden Boy", he makes his screen debut as a star in the most sought-after role ever seen as a young violinist who forsakes music because he can find a quicker success in the prize-ring. A former violinist, he won the role after Columbia had conducted a nation-wide, year-long search for a 'Golden Boy'. Holden looks back upon production of "Golden Boy", which is now playing at the McCarthy Theatre, with a feeling akin almost to personal loss. He is sorry it is over; he is pleased that he is hailed a success. And he is grateful, too, that the magnitude of the title role kept him so absorbed he had no time to be frightened.

In addition to "Golden Boy" the program now at the McCarthy Theatre, consists of an interesting, all-new "Screen Snapshots" of Hollywood stars in off-moments from their usual customary before-the-camera scenes and instead presents them in an informal way, that you will enjoy. A Walt Disney Donald Duck-Mickey Mouse technicolor cartoon and episode three of "Mandrake the Magician" also is presented.

AT THE BELLE

"On Borrowed Time"

One of the outstanding Broadway stage successes of last season, which bids fair to be even more successful as a motion picture, is now on the screen of the Belle Theatre in the picturization of "On Borrowed Time."

The simple story of an old grandfather who fights Death in order to prevent the young grandson whom he adores from falling into the clutches of a scheming and unscrupulous aunt. "On Borrowed Time" presents Lionel Barrymore in one of his finest characterizations as Gramp. The mysterious stranger, Mr. Brink, personification of Death, is enacted by the British stage and screen star, Sir Cedric Hardwicke, with eight-year-old Bob Watson, most talked-of youngster of the year, as the grandson, Pud.

Beulah Bondi appears as the devoted Granny; Elly Malyon is the hypocritical Aunt Demetria, and Una Merkel enacts Marcia, the warmly human maid. Also appearing in prominent roles are Nat Pendleton as Grimes, the asylum guard, Henry Travers as Dr. Evans, Grant Mitchell as Lawyer Pilbeam, Charles Waldron as Rev. Murdock, Ian Wolfe as Charlie Wentworth, church organist, Philip Terry as Bill Lowry who shares the romantic interest with Marcia, James Burke as the sheriff, and Truman Bradley as James Northrup.

"Night Work"

Mary Boland and Charlie Ruggles, who have played man and wife in many a picture with convincing naturalness, were provided with an excellent chance to add to the lustre of their connubial portrayals in "Night Work," new Paramount comedy which is announced as the added laugh feature attraction.

Lest there are any who are wondering about it, this reviewer hastens to state that Miss Boland and Charlie are cast again as the heads of the "Fitch" family, that lovable, human menage which was first seen on the screen not so long ago in "Boy Trouble." With them again is that promising youngster, Donald O'Connor, cast again as "Butch", one of the boys they adopted in the previous picture.

And for the sake of the record, it must be recorded immediately that "Night Work" is even funnier than its likely predecessor, bristling with poignant human situations, replete with humorous dialogue, and directed by George Archainbaud with that true-to-life touch which was so apparent in "Boy Trouble" and "Thanks for the Memory."

You can't put up too much home-made Jam and Jelly!

MAKE THEM WITH CERTO... IT'S EASIER QUICKER - GIVES SURER * RESULTS!

What are the most important qualities in jam or jelly? Taste, texture and colour rate highest. And judges in exhibitions and contests usually allow 75 out of a possible score of 100 for taste and texture alone!

Certo gives you a grand start in fresh, natural taste as well as colour, because you can use luscious, fully-ripe fruit instead of the under-ripe fruit commonly used in old-fashioned jam and jelly making. The tested Certo recipes all ensure a firm, desirable texture.

That is why 3 out of 4 jelly champions use Certo.

FREE BOOK OF 72 RECIPES

Under the label of every bottle of Certo there is a book of 72 tested recipes for jam, jellies, marmalades and conserves. Since different fruits need different handling, Certo gives you a separate recipe for each fruit... Be sure to follow each recipe exactly.

5 Reasons Why it's so easy and quick to make better Jams and Jellies with Certo

❶ CERTO SAVES TIME
Once your fruit is ready, it takes only 15 minutes to make a whole batch of jam or jelly with Certo.

❷ CERTO SAVES WORK
With Certo you only give a one-minute to two-minute full, rolling boil for jam—for jelly a half-minute to a minute. That's a third of the time usually needed for the old-fashioned long boil.

❸ THE SHORT BOIL MEANS MORE JAM OR JELLY
With Certo you get about half again more jam or jelly from the same amount of fruit. The boil is so short that very little juice can boil away as it does in wasteful long boiling.

❹ BETTER TASTE—BRIGHTER COLOUR
Certo jams and jellies retain all the natural taste and colour of the fresh fruit. The boil is so short it cannot affect the taste or darken the colour.

❺ SURE RESULTS
With Certo you get free, easy-to-follow recipes. They explain every step and give the exact timing. Follow them carefully and you can always expect good results.

Don't disappoint your family. Put up lots of jam and jelly ready for the long winter months. It's done so quickly and easily in this sensible, modern way—with Certo. Put Certo on your grocery order.

'The Christian and the Crisis' Topic Discussed At Y. W. G. Meeting

'The Christian and the Crisis' was the topic at the regular monthly meeting of the Young Women's Guild held on Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Wishart, Dufferin Ave.

"Faith of our fathers," the hymn selected for the worship part of the meeting led by Miss Lashbrook, struck the key-note of the discussion which followed, especially in the line: "We will love both friend and foe in all our strife."

The subject, as dealt with by Mrs. Bews, leader, aroused thought and discussion rising out of this accepted hymn.

To many, the first Great War was such a shock that the last shreds of the "faith of our fathers" were lost and a partially pagan generation has grown up since. To others, it seemed that the religion of the New Testament had never really been tried. The more sensitive we become to the words of Jesus the more problems in life, needing His solution, arise.

Within the past month, Canada has declared war in her own right for the first time in history.

What is the Christian attitude toward war?

Different members at this point reviewed:

(1) The pronouncement of the United Church of Canada as set down in Sept. 1936.

(2) The pronouncement of all Protestants of the world (except the German church which was prevented from attending) at Oxford in 1937.

(3) The pronouncement of the World Federation of Churches meeting at Geneva in August 1939.

The conclusion of all these bodies was that war is contrary to the will of the God as revealed by the New Testament.

Is there then ever a righteous war?

Can a church endorse a war?

Is war inevitable?

Are the spiritual casualties in war even greater than the physical? Were questions raised and discussed.

Three different attitudes towards war held by Christians were dealt with respectively by Miss Templeton, Mrs. Archibald and Miss Elson. They were:

(1) Absolute Pacificism.

(2) The Christian Realist Position or participation in "just wars", e. g. to vindicate Christian principles.

(3) Obedience to political authority, that is, a citizen must take up arms for his country.

All three views are held conscientiously by Christians, because we live in an imperfect world where choices must be made between two evils.

Just as the church allows liberty of conscience to the individual, should this spirit of toleration extend to the views of other nations? Tolerance, it was pointed out, does not mean acceptance of, but an attempt to understand another's point of view.

Did Hitlerism in Germany arise because more pacific leaders got nowhere with other nations? The causes of war are deep-rooted. Peace makers need vision, patience and hope.

What attitude shall we take towards aliens among us?

Does a spirit of vindictiveness and revenge make a just peace possible?

What kind of peace will we as individuals subscribe to?

Such questions as these and a group of nine others were presented, not to be answered audibly or finally or as a group, but in the members' minds, with the admission that our opinions alter as time passes, and that each member must decide these matters for herself, in the light of Christian revelation.

It was pointed out that Christians could unite in many tasks, in arming ourselves against hatred and prejudice, in preparing our minds for a just peace, and in seeking to relieve the suffering caused by war, among combatants and non-combatants, through such agencies as the Red Cross, Refugee Committee, etc.

Mrs. Scripture brought the topic to a close by making a summary of recent church statements in regard to "Christian and the crisis," stressing points already mentioned in the discussion and reminding the group of the Teaching of the Sermon on the Mount, in regard to enemies, to racial prejudice and to conflicting loyalties. Mrs. Buchanan closed the discussion with appropriate prayer.

The Guild decided to carry on again this winter the work of the School for Leisure Sewing School, under the direction of Mrs. Archibald.

The meeting concerning registration of women to be held Friday at 3 p.m. in the Y.M.C.A. was announced by Mrs. R. Gibson, the newly elected president, who welcomed old and new members, and called the Guild to a year of renewed loyalty to Guild aims.

CITY GOLF TITLE TO COUNTRY CLUB

Two Points Separate Two Clubs After Second Match

After playing a tie match at the Country Club last Wednesday, city golfers from the Bay of Quinte Country Club and the Belleville Golf Club resumed their golfing feuds on the latter's course for a return match yesterday. Despite adverse weather conditions 44 sturdy golfers braved the wind and rain to have the Country Club finally triumph by a 32 1-2 to 30 1-2 score and win the city golf championship.

Last week at the Country Club 54 players, 27 from each club played and at the end of 18 holes the score stood 40 1-2 all, yesterday the Country Club won by a scant two points. Despite the wet weather and adverse playing conditions yesterday at the Belleville Golf some exceptionally fine scores were turned in by the contesting players.

Following the match the visiting golfers were entertained in the club house, at which time it was announced that the annual men's field day at the Belleville Golf Club would be held on Sunday, with a dinner included.

The individual scores of yesterday's match were:

Belleville Golf: H. Ridley 2 1-2 J. Marsh 3, L. Legault 3, V. Smith 3, W. Waldorf 2, H. McElrath 3, O. Maybee 1, H. Smith 0, T. Holway 1 1-2, P. Birrell 1 1-2, T. Hughes 1 1-2, A. Graham 2 1-2, L. Blaker 0, O. L. Fozard 1, B. Brown 1, B. Ogilvie 0, Mr. Morrison 3, H. Green 0, R. Schryver 1-2, H. Cowain 0, J. Mitchell 1-2—30 1-2.

Pill Boxes and Forts Cleverly Disguised as Cottages and Taverns

By LOUIS LOCHNER

With the German army on the Western Front, Sept. 28—(AP)—Camouflaging has become a fine art in the Saar sector of Germany's Westwall.

You approach a bridge, for instance, and see a gasoline filling station with all normal equipment just before you. But before you go on to the bridge you see it isn't a filling station at all. If you look closely enough, you see machine guns pointing ominously at you from behind a facade that hides a pill box.

You see a group of trim little houses built in native Saarland style near an industrial plant. You take it for granted they are intended for company employees. Then you come closer and see that windows and curtains simply have been painted against armor plate.

Guns Protrude from Windows

Your eye travels up the beautiful slope of a valley and you see a green and white peasant's home. But strong field glasses show guns of various calibre protruding from the windows.

You notice a neat little tavern with a blackboard outside advertising your favorite wine. On closer investigation it isn't a tavern at all—it's a miniature fort.

You go into the beautiful forests in which the Saar region abounds. Logs on a slope seem to lie ready for hauling. As a matter of fact, they are connected by barbed wire entanglements and make a formidable obstruction.

You penetrate farther into the interior of the forest and see heaps of dried twigs and branches piled up by a forester. Beneath them, you discover boxes of ammunition.

PICTON FAIR OPENS TODAY

Parade, Program of Sports For Children and Live Stock Exhibits Main Features

Picton, Sept. 28.—(Special)—With a splendid program arranged and a record number of entries, Picton Fair was opened this afternoon and continues tomorrow, when the outstanding attraction will be the visit of the Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, Hon. Albert Matthews and Mrs. Matthews. While here they will witness the attempt of Lastic Grattan to lower the present track record and win the $75 offered by T. W. Kinney.

A grand parade opened the fair today. Heading the procession was the Picton band, followed by 'C' and 'D' Companies of Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment under Lt.-Col. Sherman Young, O.C., and hundreds of school children from town and county who were granted a holiday for the occasion. The fair was officially opened by President of the Fair Board, Sam Dodds and Warden Roy Ketcheson, who welcomed the crowd and thanked them for their co-operation.

A program of sports for the children was run off, being in charge of Phil Dodds, Sid Lockyer and Albert Grinrod. Junior Farmers held their achievement day. There were 21 entries in the foal club, 20 in the calf club, 32 in the poultry club and 26 in the grain club. These make very interesting displays and the competitions were watched by a large crowd.

The Holstein exhibit is particularly good. The breeders are holding a Black and White day and there are more than one hundred head in the cattle barn. R. M. Holtby, Holstein field man is in charge of this show.

The entry of horses is particularly good, with an especially large number of foals and mares. Some of these were judged today and the rest tomorrow. Sheep and swine are well represented and poultry make a good show.

The main exhibition building, the Crystal Palace, is filled to capacity with merchants' exhibits, flowers, fruit, vegetables, ladies' work, handicraft, etc. Model airplanes are a feature.

At the night show tonight, the R.C.A.F. band, the Belleville Citizens Band and Picton band are staging a tatto, and amateurs are giving a program. Several novel contests and a pet parade are also features.

Tomorrow, when the Lieutenant-Governor visits the fair, he will be escorted from Belleville by motorcycles and met at Bloomfield by a group of local people. At the fairgrounds His Honor will inspect a guard of honor from 'C' and 'D' companies of Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment before giving an address. Horse races take up most of the afternoon. The track has been put into good shape and it is expected that the record will be broken.

BUDGET IS SIGN

Warning to Germany

Sharp declines in tobacco and industrial stocks were interpreted in financial quarters as reflecting shock in the stock market at the burden of taxation proposed in the first war budget, submitted to parliament yesterday.

Newspaper commentators cited the budget message as a warning to Germany of Britain's determination.

Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express said the Chancellor of the Exchequer was "going to work with a meat axe" and suggested that "he would have done better to take a slice now and another slice later on."

The Times commented that the effect of the increased taxes was "to reduce and even destroy many incomes altogether."

"It can leave no doubt in any foreigner's mind about the determination of this country to buckle on its financial armor, however uncomfortable it may be," The Times added.

Financial Resources Gathered

The Daily Mail said the war budget "was a warning to Germany that Britain will gather her superior financial resources to ensure victory."

"There is more than one method of achieving this object," The Daily Mail added, however, "and Sir John's method is far too precipitate. Large all-around increases in taxation inflicted without warning will mean a further severe dislocation of trade and industry.

"A more gradual approach to these high taxation levels would have better served the interests both of the exchequer and of industry."

The Daily Herald commented: "Britain is mobilizing its financial resources for a long war. That is the most significant thing about Sir John Simon's first war budget."

Financial News' View

The Financial News: "Instead of asking whether this new tax program is too drastic, we should ask whether it will deliver the goods."

The Daily Telegraph: "What may help the taxpayer is the knowledge that there is, with one exception, no other nation which could foot such a bill and remain solvent. Natural doubt there may have been as to whether the Chancellor was wise to impose the full weight of such an unparalleled requisition at one fell stroke instead of by slow degrees. But the consensus is that it is wiser to let the taxpayer realize what is expected of them at once."

The News-Chronicle: "The fact is that in this war it is imperative that we should reach our maximum effort much more quickly than we did in the last one, and Sir John Simon was right to make the country face up to the realities of the situation from the very outset."

Sergeant of Detectives Lewis H. Williams, headquarters staff of the Toronto police department, will shortly succeed Inspector Al. B. Boyd as chief inspector of the Ontario criminal investigation department. Inspector Boyd is at present acting chief inspector of the C.I.D.

In 1917 Germany had reached the high-point of her unrestricted submarine warfare, in which ships, neutral and allied, were sunk without warning. Such a ship was the French liner, Sontay, TOP, shown in this spectacular picture as she went to the bottom. Passengers and crew members are jumping into the sea. A member of the crew of the U-boat made this spectacular picture BOTTOM, showing the bow of a German submarine in foreground as the underwater raider stood by her victim, an allied freighter, as it went down by the stern after the explosion of the time bombs placed on board by the submarine's crew. The U-boats did not waste torpedoes whenever it could be avoided.

Off on its voyage of destruction, a torpedo is shown here shortly after it had been fired. This was the weapon with which Germany attacked allied and neutral shipping in the first world war. The vigilance and efficiency of the British and French navies has greatly reduced the menace of the German U-boats in the current hostilities.

Illustrative of the fact that supplies from the empire are reaching England, this picture passed by the British censor, shows a scene at a London market during the second week of the war, indicating that England has a plentiful supply of foodstuffs.

They can't speak each other's language yet, but the handshake is the same in any tongue, and these British Tommies and French Pollus are swapping handshakes somewhere in France. The photo was radioed from Paris to New York.

The English censor passed this picture of the reunion at his home of Royal Marine Bugler Dick Emerson, and his mother. Dick is only 15. The Courageous was his first ship assignment and he was among the several hundred members of its crew who were picked out of the sea, after the carrier had been sent to the bottom by a German submarine.

St. Louis Cards Shut Out Cincinnati Reds 4-0 to Stave Off Defeat for Loop Pennant

Bucky Walters Victim as Bill McGee Hurled a Four Hitter

CUBS NOW THIRD

Brooklyn Dodgers, However Only Two Points Behind Chicago

By JUDSON BAILEY
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

All baseball fans are more or less spell-bound at the moment by the fight between Cincinnati Reds and St. Louis Cardinals for the National League pennant and a place in the world series.

St. Louis staved off the seemingly inevitable clincher by Cincinnati, shutting out the raging Reds for 24 consecutive innings in two days and beating Bucky Walters, 4-0 yesterday. And as the clubs took the field today for the final game of their series they stood:

| | W. | L. | G.B.L. | T.P. |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Cincinnati ... | 94 | 56 | — | 4 |
| St. Louis .... | 91 | 58 | 2½ | 4 |

It's a red-hot scrap but not hotter than the fuss for third place in two major leagues.

In the National League Chicago Cubs, striving desperately to salvage something from the 1938 honors they lost this year, are locked in a strangle hold with Brooklyn Dodgers. The Cubs clawed their way through two 10-inning games yesterday to nose out the Pittsburgh Pirates 9-8 and 9-5 and move two percentage points ahead of the idle Brooklyns. Today the Dodgers play two games and the Cubs will be idle.

In the American League Cleveland Indians captured both ends of an afternoon-night doubleheader from the White Sox 5-2 and 7-5 to move half a game in front of Chicago. Harry Eisenstat scattered the hits he gave in the afternoon and John Rigney didn't. In the night game the Indians slugged for Bob Feller's 23rd victory, although he had to be removed for a pinch hitter.

Home runs by Pete Fox and Charley Gehringer earned a 7-4 triumph for Detroit Tigers over the tail-end St. Louis Browns and gave Buck Newsom his 19th pitching decision.

The day's other games were rained out.

Junior World Series Game is Postponed

Rochester, N.Y., Sept. 28 (AP)—Second game of the Junior World Series will be contested by the International's Rochester Red Wings and the Louisville Colonels of the American Association at 8:30 p.m. tonight, field conditions permitting.

The series commission set back last night's game when it was apparent at mid-day yesterday that play would be impossible because of rain. Groundkeepers failed to cover the infield strip with protective tarpaulins after Tuesday night's opener, won by Louisville 7 to 0, and the sandy stretch was a sea of mud.

Managers of the contending clubs in the 21st junior classic planned no changes in their announced lineups for tonight's game. Si Johnson still will pitch for Billy Southworth's Red Wings. There is a slim possibility that Floyd Beal will replace catcher Sam Narron as Si's battery mate, but the change is contingent upon the condition of Narron's ailing back.

Skipper Bill Burwell of the association team will use big Jim Weaver and Buddy Lewis as his battery, the lanky Weaver making his first start since the beginning of the association playoffs, having been sidetracked since the Minneapolis series by an attack of flu.

ST. CATHARINES JUNIORS WIN

Defeat Orillia Baby Terriers 10-9 in Third and Deciding Game

Mimico, Ont., Sept. 28 (CP)—St. Catharines Juniors kept pace with their brethren last night to win the Ontario Lacrosse Association championship through a 10-9 victory over Orillia Baby Terriers after 20 minutes overtime. The teams were tied 8-8 at full time and 9-9 after the first overtime period.

The winning goal was scored by Si Silsiotis after nearly eight minutes of the second overtime and the game was not completed until midnight. Silsiotis also scored twice during the regular time.

Other marksmen who aided St. Kitts in taking the junior title a few days after the senior team won the Ontario crown were T. Martin with three counters and J. Martin with one, and Nelson, Condon and Smith, each with one.

Orillia scorers were White, with three; Mackenzie and Hewitt, each with two, and Cunningham and Hall, who counted one each.

REDS' INFIELD NO COMPARISON TO YANKS' FOUR

McKechnie Has Had to Shift Players Around Practically All Season

McCORMICK BEST

Reds' Inner Works Better Hitting Crew Than Those of Yankees

By SID FEDER
Associated Press Sports Writer

New York, Sept 28—(CP)—When it comes to a patch-work infield, there is no team in baseball that has anything on the outfit Cincinnati Reds are hoping to use against New York Yankees in the forthcoming world series.

Between Larry MacPhail and Will McKechnie they have put together an inner Reds' defence that should at least be in the oddity department of the diamond's hall of fame.

The Reds quartet might not even make the series. But if they don't, St. Louis Cardinals, who would replace them, wouldn't take much away from the conglomeration.

Still those four fellows from Cincinnati have done pretty well in the National League this year as a unit. Buck McCormick, on first base, batting a gaudy .328, has made Bill Terry's face very red since Terry refused to give him a chance with New York Giants, and Lonnie Frey, Billy Meyers and Bill Werber have been better than expected.

Yanks Weaker in Batting

They don't hope to outshine the inner cordon of the Yankees' defence. Yet, oddly enough, the famous Yankee quartet, man for man, except one spot. That's on third base, where Red Rolfe, off his play this season, is only the No. 1 third baseman in the business. Rolfe and McCormick are the only big leaguers with 200 hits each for this fading campaign.

Still, the Rhineland four will have it all over the world champions in mixed color and background. Take Frey, for instance, before he wound up in Cincinnati, he was Brooklyn's problem child for years.

Werber has hit about .290 this year, but before he landed in Crosley Field he bounced around the American League for seven years.

Came from Giants

The other half of the infield quartet, McCormick and Myers, the shortstop, landed in the Rhineland by way of the Polo Grounds. Yet, McCormick has been an extra-sized ball of fire during the last two years and driven in 126 runs this season, while Myers, although somewhat jittery at times, has played a lot of shortstop for a flag-winning outfit.

Turning to the Yanks, Lou Gehrig's replacement, Babe Dahlgren, although hitting only .237, is a handy man. Batting eighth, he has driven in 88 runs.

At shortstop and second base, the two Cincinnatians have a total of some 61 batting points over Frankie Crosetti and Joe Gordon.

They may not hit as often as some others, but they've knocked in about 45 more runs than the Frey-Myers combination, and they've participated in a considerably larger number of double plays.

Incredible Mr. Galento Disturbing Ring Factor In More Ways Than One

By LAWTON CARVER
Central Press Canadian Sports Writer

New York, Sept. 27—He's unlovely to look at in or out of the ring; he's no mental giant and, actually, as a fighter he's little better than a boisterous ham-and-egger, but T. Anthropoid Galento, Esq., nevertheless will wind up finally among the legandary figures of pugilism. We of these times won't see the likes of him again, that's certain. In fact he was born 50 years too late. Galento must have been intended for the days of prizefighting instead of this era of streamlined big business in boxing.

To observers who have a chance to study him at close hand and sift the ballyhoo bunk from the facts he's a contradiction to reason and logic. He doesn't make sense to rational people, but he's still right. Maybe the world is nuts.

When he gave Lou Nova the most brutal beating any heavyweight has received in years, and went into the 14th round in doing it, gentlemen who are boastfully proud of their knowledge as practical boxing men simply threw up their hands in resignation. Galento shouldn't have been able to stand up 14 rounds, much less beat a strong young opponent that long. The siege of pneumonia which he survived a few months ago and the innumerable kegs of beer he has swilled couldn't do him any good. But it's pretty obvious that they didn't harm him. He's doing better now than ever before in his life.

His manager, Joe Jacobs, is having a lot to do with his success. Jacobs has made Galento what he is today from a standpoint of phenagling the right matches and pulling all the strings all the time. But Galento has been doing the fighting—crude, sloppy, clumsy fighting at times, but effective fighting nonetheless. And don't overlook that there are many who will bet that he is at least five or six years older than the 29 to which he admits. I'm inclined to believe he is on the word of a gentleman who should know.

Anyhow, old age, pneumonia and a diet while in training that would kill other fighters haven't taken anything away from him. Don't say he would have been a better fighter had he lived by the copy books. You can't figure him that way. He made his best fights and scored one of his biggest upsets in stopping Nova. Some facts in that case are these:

Almost up to the day of the fight he took his beer. Only a few days before he loaded up pretty thoroughly on it at a benefit, and one of his meals toward the close of training included a lobster that weighed four pounds, a two-man steak, French fried potatoes, vegetables, coffee, odds and ends and scraps foraged from the plates of others at his table. There are reports of other similar incidents, but I'm mentioning only verified facts.

After the fight, in which he went those 14 fast, brutal rounds and was badly cut up himself, he hopped into a car with his wife and drove from Philadelphia to Orange, N.J., to check up on the cash register in his tavern, and have a few beers with his friends.

Nova by that time was in a hospital, and the customers who saw the fight were convinced they had seen the nearest thing to an old time bruiser that is to be found in these days.

Perhaps the world is wrong. Anyhow, Galento is right up to now.

TONY HOISTS ONE

Pictured in his favorite spot, to which he hurries after every fight, is that strange ring phenomenon, whose most recent prank was to upset Lou Nova and at the same time confound the public, the experts and the heavyweight situation.

REEVE TO SCOUT TORONTO ARGOS

Coach of Montreal Royals Believes Argos Are the Team to Beat

(By The Canadian Press)

A good indication that coach Ted Reeve of Montreal Royals figures Toronto Argonauts the team to beat in the Big Four football race this season can be taken today from the fact that the Royals Mentor intends to scout Argos this week-end.

The Canadian champion Scullers will be playing University of Toronto in an exhibition contest, and Reeve evidently believes he might learn something worthwhile from the stands. The Royals open their Big Four schedule the next Saturday at Toronto against Argos.

A heavy rain yesterday meant no layoff in drill for two of Montreal's three senior teams—the Royals and McGill Redmen of the Intercollegiate Union. The two squads went through active session in mud and water while Westmounts of the Ontario Rugby Football Union took a night off.

Two Casualties in Game

Casualties in a clash between Royals and Westmounts Tuesday night, in which Westmounts won 21-1, were Slug Segatore and Gordie Noseworthy of the defeated team and snapback Norm Rettie of the victors.

Noseworthy suffered a badly bruised leg while Segatore had both ankles severely twisted. Rettie suffered a torn cartilage in his side.

Injuries hit other camps. Coach Warren Stevens of University of Toronto faces the problem of sending his charges against Argos without a dependable kicker in his line-up. Bee Rowland, counted to do the booting, suffered an injured lip in scrimmage and will miss the game.

Coach Jim Palmer of Hamilton's Big Four Tigers has Teddy Manorek on the shelf suffering from an elbow injury while Len Wright is recovering from a cold and Mike Obarko was injured at work. Palmer is not certain that the three will get into action against Sarnia's Ontario Union Imperials in another exhibition clash Saturday.

Many 2-Year Olds Harmed By Racing Against Elders

By HOWARD BARRY
Central Press Canadian Turf Writer

Now that the autumn campaigns are beginning, owners of two-year-olds are sizing up the weight for age races and toying with the idea of sending their youngsters out under light burdens to try their speed against older horses. This gets the owners into one of the numerous mysteries of horse racing, and many authorities believe that if they are not careful they may permanently spoil a promising juvenile.

The mystery is this: Why does a two-year-old often win in fast time while carrying 126 pounds against horses of his own age and then take a thorough beating in slower time while toting 105 pounds against older horses?

Records Bear It Out.

Records show that a two-year-old rarely gives his best performance when running against his seniors, and in many cases a likely looking juvenile has never again been the same after trying to beat these older performers.

This would seem to support the contention of most handicappers that weight and time are not the most important factors in estimating a horse's merit. The whole question of juveniles against older horses seems similar to the problem of class.

Challedon and Kayak II. for instance, win races in slower time than is made by platers, but if these speedy platers went up against Challedon or Kayak II they would be beaten by 15 or 20 lengths.

Two-year-olds, it seems, are still babies. They just aren't in the same class with their elders. The supremacy of a high grade horse over a cheap one is often explained by saying that at some point in every race the ultimate winner is challenged by a rival and is called on to give everything he has. He goes on to win because he has the courage and the racing heart to meet this challenge and dispose of it then and there, leaving his challenger beaten. After that he can slow down and smell the flowers or think about the feed bag or do anything he likes.

Only Theory To Work On.

This is a nice theory and it will have to do until someone finds out what goes on in the brain and body of a thoroughbred when he is challenged at the quarter pole.

The theorists say that a horse who tries and fails because he is outclassed often has his spirit broken and is never quite as good again. Therefore they warn the owners of juveniles to think twice before they respond to the lure of purses with the idea that a big weight advantage will decide the issue in favor of their entry.

WRESTLERS BACK TO LOCAL RING WITH 3 BOUTS

Main Bout Sees Canadian Champion Meet Powerful Rudy Epps

After an absence of a full year, professional wrestling will be revived at the Hume Arena with a three-bout card on Friday night. New promoters of a new wrestling circuit emanating from Montreal bringing new grappling faces into Ontario are sponsoring the Arena wrestling shows, that will hold forth at the Hume Arena each Friday night.

Heading the initial show is Rudy Epps, powerful Columbus, Ohio, wrestler, who meets Joe Maich, former amateur light-heavyweight champion of Canada and Olympic runner-up in 1936. Since turning professional on the Pacific Coast in 1937, Maich has developed into a strong sturdy wrestler, however, and will doubtless give the 210 pound Columbus grappler plenty of ring arguments.

In the semi-final Tiger Daniels, of Regina, meets Young Griffins, of Niagara Falls, N.Y. At the present time Daniels is under suspension under the Quebec Wrestling Commission for rough-house tactics, put into practice two weeks ago during a bout in Montreal. This suspension does not hold good in Ontario, thus the Belleville fans will get a glance at the Regina "rough-house grappler" in action here.

The card opener brings together two fast and scientific wrestlers in Rene Gazzley, of Toledo and Alex Piers, the Boston adonis.

PAUL DERRINGER TO CARRY LOAD

Reds Will Have to Give Him Some Runs if He Hopes to Win

By JOHN FRYE
Associated Press Sports Writer

Cincinnati, Ohio, Sept. 28—(AP)—There has never, in the century of baseball, been a pitcher who could win a ball game without at least one run on his side, and easy-going Paul Derringer can only hope that he doesn't have to try to be the first today.

The big Kentucky iceberg is Cincinnati Reds' last hope to clinch their second pennant in the life of the National League without going into a dogfight with Pittsburgh Pirates or needing the unpredictable co-operation of Chicago Cubs against the rushing St. Louis Cardinals during the week-end.

For those Cardinals have battered down the Reds' second pitching line headed by Lee Grissom and they have broken the great Bucky Walters' mastery over them and in all that time the Reds have scored not a run.

In fact, Fiddler Bill McGee's 4-0 job yesterday ran the Reds' string of nothing to 24 whole innings, dating back to the second inning of the Tuesday opener, when Billy Meyers hit his three-run, game-winning homer.

Further, the Reds made their presence known in the second and third games by a slight total of eight hits, only two of them for extra bases. They stood on third base but thrice.

With this in mind, Derringer, who has won 24 and lost seven, must work today either against Curt Davis, whom the Reds chased in the opener, or Max Lanier, the Cards' high-flying rookie. Big Paul has beaten the Cards twice this year, lost one and tied one.

And he is in a spot where, holding a shaved margin of 2½ games, the Reds can have the pennant today if they'll only agitate their bats.

Bill Fry, Eastern Ontario's O.R.F.U. convener, has been trying in vain to persuade the Kingston football moguls to include Belleville into their junior O.R.F.U. grouping, but apparently has been working very much in vain. Charlie Hicks, chairman of the Queen's Athletic Board, is very adverse to including outside games with the three Kingston junior squads. Apparently Mr. Hicks and his henchmen are not appreciative of the number of football players now playing for Queen's, who received their early rugby training in the local district Interscholastic group. At present three of the Queen's squad are products of the local group, Gus Edwards of Cobourg, Ford Loucks of Lindsay, via Peterboro and Bud Johnson of Belleville. If the local Interscholastic group can produce intercollegiate players in such abundance, one would imagine Mr. Hicks and company would be glad to assist the district grid squads, if for no other reason than to provide material for the "Tri-Color" in years to come. And it must be remembered that the above names do not include Jimmie Follwell or Wally Hilton of Belleville, Salter of Oshawa and others who have graduated from the district secondary school ranks of football.

Although we haven't been able to contact Wing Commander McEwen of the Trenton R.C.A.F. regarding the Flyers' intention of hockey activities for the coming winter, we do expect that the Air Force Sports Club will endeavor to co-operate with the request of the Canadian Government to "carry on with sports as far as possible during the present crisis." We have talked with one or two members of last year's R.C.A.F. team and they seem to be of the opinion that not in the too far distance military matters will have reached a working peak and there-after activities will be normal. with exceptions of the odd transfer. With the new C.A.H.A. rules and regulations partaining to soldiers in service, the Flyers should actually ice a better team this year than they did in 1938-39. We understand there are several good hockey players now located at the Air Port, who will need considerable training and it naturally follows they may pass the winter months at Trenton, so the Peterboro scribe need not worry too much regarding a grouping for his Petes; they'll get plenty of opposition before spring rolls around once again .. .. .. ....

Old Jupiter Pluvius wrought havoc in the ranks of local sport, to say nothing of spoiling the last Wednesday half holiday, yesterday. Pete Beach's Albert College gridders were to have journeyed to Kingston for a return game with Regiopolis College yesterday, but rain fell too hard. The Albert squad trounced the Kingston "Irish" 3 to 2 hert last Saturday. Athletic Director George Laughlin had scheduled the annual Belleville Collegiate field day for yesterday, but rain forced a cancellation here also. With inspections dominate at the Collegiate these days, the alternative date was not decided upon and Mr. Laughlin was unable to state when the B. C. I. track and field meet would be held in the future.

We welcome back to the district interscholastic coaching field, Frank Cunningham, who will again head the O.S.D. six-man football team in the Bay of Quinte C.O.S.S.A. group. Frank is back in the football wars versus his old opponents Pete Beach at Albert College and George Laughlin at the Belleville Collegiate. These three teacher-athletic-coaches have opposed each other in practically every line of team sport known and now we find them at the helm of six-man rugby, a game introduced into this province by Mr. Laughlin, despite efforts in Toronto to take such credit. Incidentally the senior interscholastic schedule opens here next week.

Maybe I was born too late, but when I look at Joe DiMaggio, I am looking at the greatest ball player I ever saw," Bucky Harris, manager of the Senators, told John P. Carmichael of the Chicago Daily News. And Bucky has seen a few good ones in his time—Ruth, Gehrig, Cobb, Collins and Speaker, though he caught the latter trio in the later years of their great careers.

"Joe simply has grown on me the last three years," continued Bucky. "Any time I take my eyes off one of my own players to watch DiMaggio out of sheer fascination, then I am looking at my top ball player. I'm honest enough to admit I don't know how he does it. He just materializes out of thin air. I don't care where the ball is hit, he is in the line of flight.

"Up at the plate, Washington pitchers have only one order. That is to keep the ball low and on the outside whenever that is humanly possible. And after that to say a prayer."

With their ace moundsman, Bucky Walters on the hilltop, the Cincinnati Reds again failed to clinch the National League pennant yesterday when Bill McGee hurled a four-hitter and the Cardinals won 4-0 over the Redlegs yesterday. Today we find the Reds only 2½ games afront of the fast-stepping Cardinals, who are still in Cincinnati for another game today. This year's National League race is as tough as they come, but the strain on the Reds and Cards, as they battle for the senior loop supremacy, may take its toll when the world series rolls around. Incidentally on Tuesday the baseball critics were praising Bill McKechnie for his pitching selections of the day, but after winning the first game with a comparative freshman, Bill Thompson, it appears now as though McKechnie should have started either Derringer or Walters in the nightcap tussle. There's an old saying in baseball —'win 'em as they come', and that's exactly what Ray Blades of the Cards is trying to do, but we are afraid 2½ games is too great a lead for the "gas-house gang" to haul down at this late date in the season.

Sports Spice — Jack Adams called up 60 hockey players for the Detroit Red Wings' pre-season training period, among them being many amateurs....Adams had four farm clubs, Pittsburg, Indianapolis, Omaha and an amateur team in Detroit....Knute Rockne Jr., will make his debut with the Notre Dame "Irish" versus the Purdue "Boilermakers".... The Belleville golfers are far from fair-weather players, yesterday in Bay of Quinte Country Club team beat the Belleville Golf Club 32 1-2 to 30 1-2.... Incidentally the Belleville Golf Club is holding its annual field day on Sunday, with a dinner and all the trimmings.

Annual Deanery Meeting of W. A. Held at Bancroft

Roslin—The annual Deanery conference of the Hastings Deanery Woman's Auxilary was held in St. John's Church, Bancroft, on Tuesday, Sept. 26th.

There was a celebration of Holy Communion at 11 a.m. The special preacher at this service was Rev. Rural Dean Caldwell of Marmora. There were about seventy-five present at this service.

The church which has been recently re-decorated presented a very beautiful appearance with its decorations of autumn leaves and flowers. The altar was adorned with white gladioli. Luncheon was served at noon by the ladies of St. John's Church in the Community Hall.

The afternoon session opened at 1.30 p.m. with the Deanery Secretary Mrs. George Clark of Tweed presiding. The opening hymn was No. 318. A very warm welcome was extended to the visitors by one of the Bancroft ladies to which Mrs. W. G. Barlow of Bonarlaw replied. The minutes of the last deanery meeting were read and approved. Encouraging reports were given by representatives from the following branches: Bancroft, Bonarlaw, Rawdon, Roslin, Stirling, Tweed and Trenton. A report from Thomasburg was read by the secretary. Brief addresses were given by the new Diocesan President, Mrs. J. De Pencier, Wright, Miss Van Straubenzee, Mrs. Crowe, Mrs. Porter and Mrs. Chalmers.

Rev. J. L. Hutchinson, Secretary Treasurer of the Church Boys' League gave a very interesting address on the aims and objects of the League and urged the formation of a league in each parish in the deanery.

Votes of thanks were extended to all who had assisted with the meeting and to the Bancroft Ladies for their hospitality.

Mrs. Clark was re-elected as Deanery Secretary.

An invitation to hold the Deanery meeting at Roslin next year was accepted. The meeting closed with the singing of the National Anthem, after this the ladies served lunch.

How To Overcome Piles And Rectal Soreness

If you are annoyed with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not neglect the same or run the risk of an operation. Any itching, soreness or painful passage of stool, is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once. For this purpose get from J. S. McKeown or any druggist, a package of Hemroid and use as directed. This formula, which is used internally, quickly relieves the itching and soreness and aids in healing the sore, tender spots. Hemroid is a physician's prescription and is highly recommended. It is easy to use and it seems the height of folly for anyone to risk an operation when a simple remedy, which is so pleasant to use may be had at such a reasonable cost.

WEEP FOR LOVE

by RUBY M. AYRES

as something moved close beside her in the darkness, and a sharp trembling question broke from her lips:

"Who is it? Who is it?"

"Unfortunately— it is I, a voice answered her, and presently she could see the outline of Kim Lawless's tall figure as he came into the spear of the moonlight. "I almost had a heart attack myself," he said ironically. "You look so like a ghost in that white frock."

"I think it's a silly game," she said impatiently. "All I've seen is cobwebs and lumber."

There was a moment's silence before he spoke.

"And all I've seen, and I shall remember it to my dying day, is your beautiful face in the moonlight, Elizabeth."

She looked up at him.

"But you have seen so many beautiful faces," she said mockingly, and she turned to the latched door which led to the staircase. "I'm tired of this game. I'm not going to play any more."

But Lawless barred the way and to her excited imagination he seemed a colossal figure in the eerie light.

"Not yet," he said. "Not until you have told me what has happened and why—ever since you returned from Paris, you've gone out of your way to avoid me—Elizabeth."

She broke in a little hoarsley:

"Nothing has happened. What could have happened? We just haven't met—that's all—there is no reason why we should meet and—please let me pass—if anyone comes—" She caught her breath harshly as he suddenly took her by the shoulders, turning her around so that the pale moon light fell full on her face.

"I told you once that I loved you," he said. "Doesn't that entitle me to an explanation as to why you refuse to speak to me unless you are forced to do so—why you never look at me? Oh, Elizabeth, if there is anything I have done to hurt you—to offend you—why won't you tell me?"

Her lips moved as if she would have spoken, but no words came, and she had the queer feeling that if he took his hands away she would not be able to stand, but would just fall at his feet—fall, weeping, perhaps—for a love that had died—as, so it seemed, all love must die.

And against that thought she closed her eyes because, in spite of her hardwon indifference, she could not bear it. And then Lawless said brokenly, and it was as if he recognized his defeat:

"Oh, my darling—if you'll only tell me—give me a chance to explain."

She looked up at him then, and a bitter smile trembled around her lips.

"Ask Penelope," she said.

A small fleecy cloud sailed across the sky, for a moment dimming the moonlight, and, as Elizabeth mechanically glanced upwards to the skylight, she thought: "A cloud no bigger than a man's hand and yet large enough to throw an unlifting shadow over the lives of countless women....I must have read that somewhere," she realized vaguely.

And then suddenly the moonlight was as bright as ever again and Kim was echoing her last bitter words in angry confusion.

"'Ask Penelope!' What has she to do with us? I have not seen her for months and—" He broke off abruptly as there was a sound of clattering feet on the attic staircase.

Elizabeth seized upon the opportunity.

"Here we are!" she cried. "But there's no ghost—only lumber and moonlight." She wrenched herself free of the hands which would have detained her, and pulled open the latched door.

"We've found the ghost,' one of the new arrivals announced. She chuckled. "It was only Bennie dressed up in sheets and with flour on his face. Everyone is downstairs except you two, so we've organized a search-party in case you'd been spirited away." She glanced admiringly at Kim. "But it would take more than one poor little ghost to spirit you away!" she added.

Elizabeth led the way down the narrow stairs, her white frock trailing behind her. She felt breathless as if she had been running a losing race, but she went on ahead of the others and arrived laughing in the big dining-room.

"Here we are. I got mixed up with some cobwebs and Mr. Lawless kindly rescued me."

"It seems to be Kim's mission in life," Barbara said with a faint sneer. She glanced down at the hem of Elizabeth's white frock. "You've been with the cobwebs all right," she added.

Roy went down on his knees to flick away the grey rim of dust and Elizabeth said, rather pathetically, "You can't do it—it's spoiled." But she was not thinking of her frock.

The youngest member of the party suggested Postman's Knock.

"Let's be thoroughly young!" she pleaded, with all the sophistication of sixteen.

"It's a silly game," Elizabeth objected, but she was overruled by Roy.

"Don't be superior, darling," he said gently, and she answered conscious of Kim's nearness:

"Darling, don't I always do as you wish?"

She laughed, then, and dodged past him, till at last even Barbara declared they must go home.

It was three o'clock when the game finished, and as they said their good nights at the open door, Elizabeth thought that the garden looked like a fairy garden, with its tall, dark trees and clustering hedges, and the pale moonlight, casting an air of mystery everywhere.

She started when Kim Lawless spoke beside her.

"Is it too much to hope that you will drive home with me?"

She glanced at him and away.

"Thank you; I've promised Roy."

"Very well," he said quietly. "But there is always tomorrow."

INSTALMENT 27

"Tired " Roy asked as they drove away together.

"Yes, a little," Elizabeth answered.

"Lean your head against my shoulder," he invited hopefully.

But she would not, and she sat upright, watching the moonlit road with wide open eyes.

"Enjoyed yourself, darling?" Roy inquired presently.

"It was a lovely evening," Elizabeth answered absently; and she drew a quick breath of relief as they turned in at the gates of the long drive.

She glanced back to see if Lawless' car was following, but there was no sign of it.

"We've left them behind," she said, and Roy laughed.

"I expect it's a put-up job," he answered.

They had been indoors for some minutes before the other car arrived.

"It was such a heavenly night," Barbara explained rather self-consciously, "so we didn't hurry." She lowered her voice. "Don't let's wake the parents. Take off your shoes, Elizabeth; the stairs creak so."

Elizabeth obeyed and gathered up the folds of her long skirt.

"Good night, everybody," she whispered.

"I'll be up in a minute," Barbara said.

Elizabeth went slowly upstairs and along the dark corridor to her room. The big house seemed very still and deserted, and when suddenly the mournful howl of a dog broke the silence, she started and put her hand to her heart.

Bingo! She looked fearfully over her shoulder, as if expecting to see the ghostly hound of which Roy had told her following her, and then, with a little shrug, she went on her way, realizing that it was probably only a farmer's dog somewhere out in the night, baying at the moon.

But as she reached her door, she glanced back once again just as Kim Lawless reached the top of the staircase.

They both stood still, with the long, moonlit corridor between them, and it seemed to Elizabeth that she counted each passing second by her heart-beats.

One—two—three. While at the back of her mind she was thinking mechanically, "Why don't I go into my room? Why do I stand here, just looking at him? What's the use? What's the use? What's the use?" Till at last the echoing words seemed to have no sense in them at all.

And then somewhere in the house a clock began to strike the hour.

One, two, three, four—the deep tones went booming through the silence, and each one seemed to take an eternity to die away, as if it were reluctant to mark the passing of yet another wasted moment. And then, up the stairs, Barbara came running in her stockinged feet.

She paused with a hand on the banister rail, looking from Kim to Elizabeth with quick suspicion, though she only said lightly:

"Hullo! Are you two still moon-gazing?"

Then, as Elizabeth's power of action returned and, with stiff fingers, she opened her door, Barbara said in a stage whisper:

"Sleep late, if you like. No hurry to get up."

Elizabeth closed the door behind her, and, slipping out of her frock, laid it across a chair.

Yes, the hem was quite spoiled—as things always were by clumsy handling.

"My clumsy handling has spoiled things, too," Elizabeth thought dully. And for the first time a doubt crept into her troubled mind.

"Never judge too hastily. Make quite sure first."

That was one of the unforgettable things her darling mother had said in the far-away days gone beyond recall. For an instant, Elizabeth's sensitive face quivered as if pain, long since drugged into numbness, was stirring to life again, and she seemed to see her mother's face, smiling and radiant as it had been before tragedy stalked across her life—and then, by some queer twist of the imagination, Kim Lawless—as he had looked that evening when he said, "I told you once that I loved you."

Odd that though he and her mother had never met, they should seem for the moment to be part and parcel of each other.

"Perhaps it's because I love them both," Elizabeth thought, and her heart was filled with tears which she dared not shed.

She was still in a deep sleep when quite late the following morning Barbara came rapping on the door.

"Betty, are you awake? Betty!"

Elizabeth started up, dazed and bewildered.

"Yes—what is it? Oh, it's you!" She sank back on her pillow as Barbara burst into the room.

"Who do you think has come to lunch?" she demanded, and there was a sort of antagonism in her voice. She jerked back the curtains, and Elizabeth asked in confusion what time it was for Barbara was dressed and had obviously been out.

"Time? It's past twelve— but mother said we weren't to disturb you; only when Miss Thornley appeared—"

Elizabeth was wide awake now.

"Aunt Thornley!" she gasped. "Why—whatever—"

Barbara shrugged her shoulders.

"She's brought Penelope too," she explained dryly. "Of course, they couldn't have known that Kim was here, could they? Miss Thornley says they are on their way to Bath and, as they were near, they thought they would call in."

Elizabeth was out of bed and scrambling into her dressing-gown. Penelope too!

"I'll get dressed at once. Why didn't you wake me before?" She thrust her feet into little blue bed-room slippers. "Have she and Mr. Lawless met?" she asked falteringly.

Barbara nodded.

"Oh, yes, as cool as you please—just shook hands and said what a lovely day it was. Mother's taken Miss Thornley to see the garden, and I had to leave the others for a moment to come and tell you. Do hurry up."

"I won't be a minute."

Penelope and Kim! Elizabeth's unsteady hands bungled so much with her toilet that it was nearly half an hour before she went downstairs but she could find only Mr. Selby who was calmly reading his paper in the lounge. He looked at her kindly.

"Quite rested?" he asked, and then, as she nodded: "Everyone is in the garden."

"Oh—I'll go and find them."

In the garden! Perhaps Kim had taken Penelope to see the moss-grown sundial and the weeping cupid which crouched at its base.

"Love makes time pass away — Time makes love pass away."

But when she came across them, they were standing very quietly side by side admiring the roses, and she heard Penelope say:

"You had some like these in the garden at Shere, didn't you, Kim?"

Shere! It was there that Elizabeth had first met Kim when she had been stealing his primroses.

Wasn't she to be allowed one memory to herself without it being shared by Penelope? She thought, cynically, that this must be how a man's second wife felt—that the woman whose place she had filled was always close by, perhaps looking on with a slightly pitying smile, and thinking: "All this was mine once. It's nothing new. You're only walking in my footsteps."

"Hullo, Penelope!" she said hesitatingly.

Penelope looked at her calmly.

"Hullo. I heard you were in bed. I suppose you have been burning the midnight oil, as usual?"

"We were rather late," Elizabeth admitted. She glanced at Lawless and he met her eyes with grim accusation.

"They've asked us to lunch," Penelope was saying. "We were on our way to Bath. Aunt Thornley seems to imagine that the waters will be beneficial." She turned abruptly to the man beside her. "Do you remember that dreary week-end we spent with the Chandlers at Bath? How thankful we were when Monday morning came?"

"I remember."

"It must be nearly two years ago," Penelope went on. "Almost a lifetime, isn't it?"

How can she! Elizabeth thought with passionate resentment, and she felt as if she were on onlooker, watching while someone deliberately dragged something which was sick and dying into the glaring sunlight.

INSTALMENT 28

"Didn't Penelope care any more?" Elizabeth asked herself as her sister and Kim talked on quietly there in the garden. She looked quite serene and undisturbed. Which, then, was the real Penelope? The girl who had sobbed and cried for Kim during those dreadful days in Paris; or this self-composed, slightly cynical young woman?

She looks much older, Elizabeth thought with compassion—and she wondered why she had not noticed the change in her sister before. She looks as if all the best of her has burned itself out and just left an empty shell.

Mrs. Selby and Miss Thornley joined them and they returned to the house, Kim and Penelope walking together.

Mrs. Selby stopped to speak to one of the gardeners and then Miss Thornley said in an undertone, to Elizabeth:

"I had no idea Kim was here. It's rather awkward, but you haven't mentioned him in any of your letters."

Some of the utility issues moved ahead on good volume. Brazilian firmed 1 1-2 and Power Corporation recorded a similar advance. Foods and senior oils were mainly higher and the steels and papers held back. Calgary - Edmonton, Home, Okalta and Anglo-Canadian posted gains of 5 to 10 cents.

Trading moved at a slow tempo through the early period and only 157,000 shares changed hands in the first three hours.

WALL STREET

New York, Sept. 28. (CP)—Leaders dropped fractions to around three points in today's stock market session.

Peaches at 25c and Flemish Beauty Pears Sell at 20c a Basket

Autumn fruit in all its colorful glory featured a fairly heavy midweek offering at the city market today. Peaches, pears and grapes, the latter in heavy quantities caught the eye of a briskly buying public. Stocks moved fairly well with itinerant vendors offering good quality peaches at twenty-five cents the basket.

Blue and white grapes were offered at thirty and thirty-five cents the basket while home-grown Flemish Beauty and Bartlett pears sold at twenty-five and twenty cents the basket respectively.

Other prices were steady with little change noted over week end quotations. Eggs were steady at 35 cents for "A" selects, with a small quantity of butter moving at thirty cents the pound. The chicken offering was small with a few good birds offered at from $1.35 each.

Potato prices held week end levels, bushel lots being quoted at $1.10 each. Seventy-five pound bags were offered at $1.40, and pecklots at thirty and thirty-five cents.

Home grown tomatoes, prophesied by one vendor to be nearing the end of production, were quoted at sixty cents the bushel. Sweet corn was offered at fifteen and twenty cents the dozen ears, with other fresh garden vegetables selling at popular prices.

WORK PROCEEDS ON RACEWAY FILL

Employment at other work of many of the city-workers engaged in the work of filling in the old Walker Foundry raceway that parallels Front Street buildings on the east bank of the Moira River, has resulted in the slowing-down of the work on the project, according to city hall officials today.

However, the work is still progressing, although the number of men engaged has been reduced to a skeleton crew.

Fill from the river-bottom is being carted to the southern part of the old raceway the rear of the Smith Hardware Store property.

THRUST IS AIMED

The Germans, attacked on three sides, were said to have suffered heavy losses as they fell back to the French frontier village of Altenstatt near the Lauter River.

The German advance esterday, these reports said, was carried to the slopes of Geisburg Hill, where a French army was defeated by the Germans in 1870. There the Germans attempted to dig in, but were caught in attacks from Fort Wissembourg on the east, Geisburg Hill on the south and Wissembourg itself on the west.

Important Setback

Although the number of troops actually engaged in the action was said to be small, observers here believe it represented an important German setback.

The junction which the Germans apparently sought to obtain is the point at which three rail lines — from Lauterbourg, Landau and Hagenau—converge before entering Wissembourg.

The scene of the fighting was the triangle formed by the junction of the Rhine and Lauter Rivers, near the centre of the western front. Between the lines stands a high monument, topped with a cross, erected by the Germans during their occupation of Alsace in 1870 in memory of their third army corps.

Tactics Not Successful

The Germans apparently employed in this sector the tactics the French used in the Blies and Mandel Creek thrusts— but with less success. These tactics called for reliance on small, compact patrols.

Despite reported French successes during the night, German pressure in the Wissembourg area was by no means ended, dispatches indicated. Within the last two days the Germans were reported to have recaptured positions along the Fischbach-Bundenthal Road west of Wissembourg, re-linking the outer Westwall defences at Fischbach and Ludwigswinkel with the Upper Mundat Forest. The latter is east and northeast of Wissembourg.

The Germans also were reported to have stormed and captured a high hill straddling the frontier still nearer Wissembourg on the northeast. The hill commands the French forest village of Neudoerfel.

Outcome in Doubt

The western front from the Moselle River east of the Vosges foothills was reported studded with night patrol actions. In the Nied Creek area, which had been quiet since the French gained portions of a high plateau between the Nied and the Saar River, the Germans were said to have launched an attack, but the outcome was in doubt.

Increasing German aggressiveness indicated to observers here that the Germans had available considerably more than the 30 original divisions (300,000 to 360,000 men) which guarded the western front during the first few days of the war.

Hundreds of German tanks no longer needed in Poland were reported to have arrived recently by train at Landau, behind the centre of the western front. Prisoners captured in Poland were said to have been formed into labor battalions and put to work on fortifications near Oldeburg in the southeast and along the Moselle River in the northeast.

Final Arrangements To Be Completed for Registration of Women

The meeting, which will take place at three o'clock, will be under the presidency of Mrs. Roger Porter, chairman of the local committee. During the meeting a committee will be formed which will act as the nucleus of other committees for the complete registration of all voluntary women workers in the city.

Mrs. Porter stated this morning that office space had been donated the committee in the premises on Front Street formerly occupied by Howe and Hagerman. An appeal is being launched for donations of a typewriter, telephone, stove and fuel. Anyone desirous of contributing these articles is asked to communicate with Mrs. Archibald Cameron, phone 1683.

The band has contributed its service gratis and members of the St. Julien Chapter under the regency of Mrs. Emily Neate, will devote their endeavors to the success of the evening. A splendid program has been arranged by those in charge and a silver collection will be taken. A capacity house is looked for and the sponsors of the concert as well as members of the band feel sure that the generosity of the Belleville public, that has been so marked in causes of a patriotic nature, will again be exemplified in a large attendance and generous offering.

It's as Broad As It's Long

By MARTIE RAMSON

Joe Wright had been betting on horses for a couple of years. Don't get me wrong. He wasn't one of these guys that ate, slept and dreamed horses. Just sort of a pastime with 'im. On his way to lunch he'd run up an' make a bet or two or maybe if he got a day off he'd hang around the bookies' joint for a couple of hours an' throw away a few bucks. Once in a while, a great while, he'd win a few bucks. Of course, like all horse players, whenever the talk came up about racing an' betting, he'd always wanna let ya know that he knew as much as the next guy.

Joe had never been to a race track an' chances are if Santa Anita didn't open up, he'd never been to one to this day. But like all 'smart money' men he wasn't gonna take the fifteen to one limit from the bookies if he can get the limit at the track. So sure enough one bright Saturday afternoon Joe hops into his bus an' drives out to the track.

Just to make sure his judgment don't go wrong he's got a racing form in one pocket, a "Best Long Shots for Today," in another, an' the daily papers with the "Consensus of Opinions" in his other pockets. With what he knows an' what he can find out from all the forms he's got, he's a cinch to knock over a couple a good ones. (says Joe).

By the time he gets his bus parked the first race is on so he spends his time lookin' over his sheets an' gettin' ready for the next one.

After lookin' 'em all over carefully he finally goes over an' lays a two dollar bet on Poker Face to win. The horse is in there at four to one, carryin' top weight, an' just because one clocker said it looked as good as anything in the field, Joe thinks the same. It's a six furlong race, an' Poker Face is runnin' fourth after she crosses the finishin' line. Chucker win the race an' paid thirty nine dollars for a two dollar ticket. An' none of the "wise guys" knew the horse was even in the race till after it's over.

In the third race Joe figgers his dope a little longer. Three guys pick Mr. Tony to win, who's in there at eight to five, but Joe don't like the price. Two guys who Joe thinks are pretty good handicappers pick Consolation to win, who's in there at three to one. Well, that's a better price for Joe, but he ain't so sure that Misfit won't cop this one. His "Best Long Shots" tells 'im that Misfit is a cinch, an' it's in there at six to one. So he gets a slick idea an' bets Consolation across the board. He feels pretty good about this one till after the race is over. Mr. Tony wins by two lengths, Misfit run second an' Torch Singer, a fifty to one shot, runs third.

He passes up the next one on account of it bein' a jumpin' race an' Joe don't know nothin' about jumpin' horses. But all the time he's studyin' the forms, dopin' out the winner of the next one. He can't take any chances on this one 'cause the bankroll is gettin' kinda weak, so he bets two to win an' two to show on Polly B, who's an even money favorite. It's a great race right from the start an' Polly B just gets nosed out to finish in the second spot. Show money gave 'im back three ten on his two dollar ticket, which wasn't so bad. He only dropped ninety cents on that one, an' had a lotta fun for his dough.

Like I said, the bankroll's a little shot, only five bucks bein' left, an' Joe's gotta get himself together an' dope one out that'll pull 'im outta the red or he's goin' home C.O.D.

There's a horse runnin' in the next race named Brass Buttons. Joe remembered the day he made a buck parlay on Brass Buttons an' Brass Band, an' Lefty Johnson paid him twenty-seven eighty for that buck. He don't know why he made that parlay except that he heard a lotta guys tell about how they always play two horses whose names sound alike, so he did it too. Hunch betters, ya know. The joints are loaded with 'em. Anyway, Joe likes this Brass Buttons an' other guys say about the horse. It's in there at eight to one, which Joe says (to himself) is too much odds. The horse figgers a better price than that. Didn't he beat Back Bay a few days ago, an' didn't Back Bay beat Cute Kid who's a two to one favorite in this race? Why Brass Buttons is a cinch; it can't lose. Of course, all this he's arguing with himself an' pretty soon he goes over an' slaps the whole five down on Brass Buttons to win, leavin' the price open. He takes his ticket, walks back to the rail, an' is all set to see Brass Buttons "walk" in. An' maybe you think the horse didn't win. You'd think the other entries were tied to the post. Whatta race, whatta race!

The price comes in an the horse pays seventy-two dollars for a two dollar ticket. How do ya like that, huh? Joe makes a dive for the window an' when he gets there, the poor mug, he can't find his ticket. He search all over himself, all over the track, but it's no use, the ticket's lost an' they don't pay off without tickets.

I never did hear one guy swear at himself in all my life like Joe did from the time he left the track till the time he pulls the bus up in front of his house. He steps outta his car an' ain't gone two steps when two guys throw a gun on 'im an' stick 'im up. Well, they got his last ninety cents an' they must think the poor guy is nutty. 'cause how are they to know what he's laughin' about while they're goin' through his pockets?

Little Benny's Note Book

We were eating breakfist and ma said to pop, Nora is off this afternoon, Willyum, and it's the old proverbial story, what would you like for dinner? Now for goodness sakes suggest something simple, she said.

Like all great characters and things of enduring beauty, liver and onions is simple, pop said, and ma said, Now Willyum life is composed of something besides liver and onions.

Ah yes, I supopse we must take the bitter with the sweet, the shadows with the sunshine, pop said, and ma said, I declare Benny would be more useful than you when it comes to suggesting a menu. What would you say to a nice sammon salad? she said.

What would I say? pop said. I dont use that kind of language, even to a sammon salad. You claim Benny wolud be a bigger help, okay let him advise you. What do you think we ought to eat this evening, Benny, I'm willing to abide by your judgement. Now take your time, dont let anybody influence you, he said.

And he winked me a big wink and put his hand in his pants pocket meaning a reward if I said liver and onions, and ma said, Now none of that, I saw that pontomime. There's only one thing that's uppermost in that boy's mind when he thinks of eating, and that's a resterant, and if he suggests anything elts I'll know he's not speaking his personal thoughts, she said.

Sounding like a swell idea, and I said, Oh G, let's all go out to a resterant, that's my advice, and ma said, I couldn't ask to hear more welcome words on this particular day.

You asked to hear them all right, yee gods it's a womens and childrens world, pop said.

And he folded up his paper and left for his office.

FRENCH EXPECT

Not Expected to Succeed

Both France and Britain have issued repeated official statements that there will be no peace until the Hitler regime is destroyed and Polish independence restored.

It was generally believed in Paris that Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop's trip to Moscow yesterday was planned by Hitler to create the impression that a German-Soviet military alliance is imminent. To strengthen still further his hand, Hitler was reported to be speeding concentration of troops from the Polish campaign on the Western Front.

Advices here said hundreds of German pilots who saw active service in Spain and Poland were being sent to the Westwall to augment infantry already withdrawn from the east.

Developments on the diplomatic front overshadowed reports of actual fighting, which was reported confined largely to artillery activity. French infantry was said to have done little during the last few days except to take cover from heavy artillery fire.

Westwall Broken in Places

Dispatches said French bombardment had definitely broken the Westwall in some advance positions, and threats against the underground Maginot defences were said to have been removed by early advances into German territory.

A communique issued this morning by the General Staff said the night was "calm," but added that "an enemy attack west of Saarbruecken failed." French scouting planes were reported active during the night.

Although the exact location of the attack was not specified, it was believed the communique referred to the region near Forbach, where the Maginot line and the Westwall dip toward the southwest.

Yesterday, the communique said, French and British airmen, operating together shot down "several" German planes over the lines.

Shipping to Normal

Commercial shipping was said to have resumed its "regular rhythm" under naval convoys and aerial patrols.

While the war in the west is not yet a month old, reports published here said the French and British staffs are satisfied that their armaments are superior to Germany's. The German air force, it was said, had not lived up to expectations in engagements over the Rhine and the northern end of the front, where Allied planes at times fought against odds.

These reports acknowledged, however, that Allied pilots have yet to face the full strength of Germany's seasoned airmen, such as the Spanish Condor Legion and the Polish Campaign Veterans.

TRIPLE ALLIANCE

Japanese Visit Front

In this connection, some German sources cited as "highly significant" the visit of a former Japanese war minister, General Count Juichi Terauchi, and a group of Japanese staff officers to the Western Front. Count Terauchi, who was shown through the western fortifications, previously had conferred with Hitler in Poland.

The announcement of the surrender of Warsaw and the alleged "destroying" of a British aircraft carrier by German seaplanes dominated Berlin newspapers today.

(Official reports in London said British war vessels came off unscathed in the encounter in the North Sea.)

Headlines told Berlin "Warsaw has capitulated" and Hitler's Voelkischer Beobachter said the surrender was the "crowning" of a campaign which "will be entered in German history."

German Airmen Praised

Field Marshal Hermann Goering in an order of the day to the German Air Force, praised the effectiveness of Germany's fliers for preventing Polish warplanes from flying over German soil.

The press proudly recorded delivery to Rumania of 11 Heinkel pursuit planes of the latest type, calling it a sign that the German aviation industry was so efficient it could supply not only the wartime needs of Germany but also fill foreign orders.

An unofficial but trustworthy source said last night that Ernst Thaelmann, former Communist chieftain in Germany, and others associated with him had been released from prisons and concentration camps as a result of the German-Soviet co-operation. Placards and books attacking Communism have been removed from public view.

FIRE DAMAGES

Three-Hour Fight

Fire department squads conducted a stubborn three-hour fight against the fire and smoke that raced quickly from its point of origin, believed to be in the rear part of the Kroch store, to the upper part of the brick building. Small blazes broke out in widely separated parts of the structure, one flaming quickly near the roof filling the upstairs vacant premises with smoke. Firemen driven back time after time by choking fumes, finally succeeded in controlling the blaze that at times threatened the entire block.

First intimation of the fire came when Messrs. M. R. Doyle, and F. Mills, working in the rear of the John Lewis Haraware Store, adjacent to the Kroch premises, noticed heavy volumes of smoke issuing from a crack in the wall. Mr. Doyle dashed outside and heard a crackling noise near the door of the Kroch store and heavy volumes of smoke pouring from it. He immediately gave the alarm that sent fire squads racing to the scene.

Handicapping the firemen was the fact, that the store was locked, it being the usual Wednesday afternoon holiday. Smashing down the front door they were driven back by heavy clouds of smoke, finally being forced to crawl on their stomachs the entire length of the store in an attempt to discover the origin of the blaze.

Smoke Fills Building

Choking smoke-fumes filled the second and third storey premises of the building and that of the adjacent Charles Walters structure.

Occupants of apartments and offices were driven out, while the staff of the John Lewis Hardware Store was compelled to seek the fresh air of the street. Considerable damage was caused to stock of the hardware store, while smoke also entered the Albert store adjacent to the Kroch premises.

Firemen turned their attention to the rear and roof of the building as flames broke out in the upper part of the structure. Attacking the blaze from the roof and upper storeys they finally succeeded in getting it under control, averting what might have been a dangerous conflagration in which the entire city block would have been involved.

Although Eire has announced that she will remain neutral in the current war, steps are being taken to protect the civilian populations of towns and cities against aerial bombardment. These men in a Dublin suburb are preparing one of the bomb shelters that will be used in the event of trouble coming to the "Little Bit of Heaven."

A war on the diplomatic front, perhaps more vital than the seemingly imminent "big push" on the Franco-German border, is under way in Moscow and Rome. In the Soviet capital diplomatic representatives of Turkey, Bulgaria, Rumania, Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia are conferring with representatives of Stalin. Russia seeks a "Black Sea pact" by which Turkey, Bulgaria and Rumania will join Russia in preventing encroachment by "anyone" on their "zone of influence." With Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania, Russia seeks a "trade and non-aggression" agreement by which the three little Baltic countries will work with Russia, guaranteeing her a "warm water port" on the Baltic. Finland, inclined to be recalcitrant faces a massing of Russian troops on her southern and eastern borders. Mussolini, in Rome, seeks a "neutral peace bloc" in the Balkans, with Yugoslavia, Albania, Greece, Turkey and Bulgaria and Rumania joining in a mutual pledge to remain neutral unless attacked, but to be a unit in defence of the territory of any member. Should either Russia or Italy succeed, or should both succeed in their diplomatic aims, it would seem to indicate a high, and perhaps impenetrable wall along the Yugoslavian and the Rumanian borders to any "drive of the east" ambitions of Hitler.

PARLEY MAY TRY

For Von Ribbentrop this was the second visit to Moscow in little more than a month. On Aug. 23 Russia and Germany surprised the world when they announced negotiation of a non-aggression pact.

Only a few hours after his plane landed, the German diplomat entered the Kremlin last night for his initial conference with Molotoff. With Stalin sitting in, the meeting lasted until 2:30 a.m. today (6:30 p.m., Wednesday, EST).

Conversations Continue

The length of the first talk — 4 1-2 hours — indicated several problems were involved and the announcement that the conversations would continue today after the principals had slept indicated that decisions still were to be made.

In addition to questions rising from the Russian-German partition of Poland, most observers believed other major issues engaged the conferees. They speculated on the possibility of some form of military pact to broaden present non-aggression ties and also on the chance of a new Balkan bloc, with Turkey participating.

Viewed as significant was Von Ribbentrop's arrival while Foreign Minister Sukru Saracoglu of Turkey was here for a three-day visit. Unofficially it was reported that the Turkish delegation might prolong its stay, which was to have ended today.

While Von Ribbentrop was being received yesterday with a guard of honor, Estonia's Foreign Minister, Karl Selter, came back to Moscow for the second time in three days. He received no such welcome as Von Ribbentrop's.

Negotiating Trade Pact

Ostensibly the Estonian was here for negotiation of a trade pact. However, unofficial reports persisted that Russia was making demands upon Estonia for fortification concessions in Estonian waters on the Gulf of Finland and the Baltic Sea.

Relations with Estonia were emphasized last night by a broadcast reporting the sinking of the Russian freighter Metallist, 4,000 tons, near Narva Bay, off the northern coast of Estonia. The announcement said the Metallist was sunk by an unidentified submarine. Nineteen of her crew of 24 were reported rescued.

The Soviet press attacked once Russian-ruled Estonia, declaring that the little Balkan State harbored naval bases for foreign powers. The dispute with Estonia went back to the escape of the Polish submarine Orzel from Tallinn Harbor last week. The Orzel had been interned at the Estonian capital.

BRITISH FLEET

Planes Driven Off

When the low-flying planes first dived through the clouds toward the aircraft carrier, the account said, they were driven off by anti-aircraft fire. Then the planes from 12,000 feet altitude attacked the cruisers. The account continued:—

"British high-angle guns forced them to abandon the attack after shooting down two of their planes and damaging another badly.

"The Admiral in charge regarded the attack as 'nothing very much' and did not bother to report the action until after a German radio communique claimed a British aircraft carrier had been destroyed and several hits had been scored on one battleship."

Weather Fine

The account said the weather "was fine with some clouds" and that "in these conditions, the bombing from high altitude was conducted from what really was too great a height for efficacy."

German submarines were said in an authoritative statement to have now been driven from thickly dotted shipping routes" around the British coast.

"In less than a month they have found the pace too hot for them and have retreated from much-used shipping channels and are now forced to operate much further out in the open sea where the 'catch' is bound to be a much smaller one," the statement said.

Reconnaissance Flights

The Ministry of Information announced that during yesterday and last night Royal Air Force aircraft carried out further reconnaissance over Germany and the western front.

"In spite of opposition," the announcement said, "valuable information was obtained. All aircraft returned safely."

Informed sources, commenting on the announcement that German submarines had been driven out to sea, said "the position now is similar to the one that existed at the end of the last war, when the U-boat menace was practically defeated."

The same sources reiterated that the German merchant flag had been driven from the seas and that German ships had been forced into refuge in neutral ports all over the world where international law forbids their arming.

SOME OBSERVERS

1,500,000 women and children now distributed through the English countryside should not return to homes in congested cities. Stringent nightly blackouts were kept in force, pending experience in actual air raids.

Strategists who looked for Germany to follow up her submarine warfare with mass air attacks on Britain and France argued that Germany had not massed her huge bombing fleet for a war of attrition—a slow wearing down of her western enemies.

Britain grimly goes ahead with preparations for a war of any length to 'crush Hitlerism'—Prime Minister Chamberlain's own description of the British objective.

The press hailed the outcome of yesterday's air-naval battle in the North Sea as a crushing blow to German hopes of crippling the British fleet from the air.

Some naval experts pointed out, however, that manoeuvring battleships had yet to face a test under the attack of successive waves of large bombing squadrons.

SENTENCED TO 3 YEARS IN PRISON

Joe Romanoski Convicted of Fraud and False Pretences

Brockville, Ont., Sept. 28 (CP)—Joe Romanoski was sentenced yesterday to three years in Kingston Penitentiary when convicted of fraud and false pretences arising from an advertisement appearing in a Toronto foreign-language newspaper. Ivan Bendor was sentenced to two years, less a day, in Ontario Reformatory on the same charge.

Frank Zarocki was freed through lack of evidence and Mike Stefura, fourth man charged, will appear at the general sessions of the peace. The four were arrested last June after a provincial police search that extended to Quebec.

The advertisement, police said, told of work on federal canals in the vicinity of Cardinal and explained that jobs could be obtained for a fee. No work was being done on the canals at the time, police said.

GERMANY AND RUSSIA SIGN NEW TREATY

Implied Threat of Possible Military Aid for Germany In New Agreement Signed

Economic Support Promised by Soviet to Germany in Prosecution of War and More Help if Needed

GAIN IN ESTONIA

By WITT HANCOCK

Associated Press Staff Writer

Moscow, Sept. 29 (AP)—In a new treaty of friendship with Germany, signed early today, Soviet Russia promised economic support in war and at the same time committed herself to consult on joint "measures" with Germany unless Great Britain and France agree to peace.

Observers took the reference to "measures" as an implied threat of possible military aid for Germany.

Shortly before the Russian-German treaty was signed, Russia announced conclusion of sweeping military and trade agreements with her little Baltic neighbor, Estonia, once part of the Russian empire.

Gains Firm Held

Thus Russia gained a firm military and economic hold over the North Baltic and greatly increased her influence over the Gulf of Riga, where Latvia's port is situated; the Gulf of Finland and the Gulf of Bothnia, vital commercially to Sweden and Finland.

Russia won the right to fortify two strategic Estonian islands—Saare Maa (Oesel) and Hiiuma (Dagoe)—and the mainland port of Paldiski as naval and air bases.

The ties with Estonia gave the U.S.S.R. the right to create naval and air bases and maintain a "limited number" of troops on Estonian territory, along with economic privileges which, it was estimated, would increase Russian-Estonian trade by 4½ times.

Garrison 25,000 Troops

(It was reported in Riga, Latvia, that Russia gained concessions sufficient to garrison 25,000 soldiers on Estonian soil.)

Berlin Officials State Treaty With Russia Further Cements Partnership With Soviet

POLAND WIPED OUT

Berlin, Sept. 29 (AP) — Germany and Soviet Russia, having split Poland between them, threatened today to "consult each other as to necessary measures" unless Great Britain and France accept peace.

A new, three-sided treaty cementing further the nazi-Communist partnership was reported by the German news agency to have been signed in Moscow today.

The treaty, according to the agency's text:

1. Put Germany and Russia side by side in urging France and Britain to end the war and, if they refuse, in co-operating to restore peace;

2. Established a mutual German-Russian frontier in conquered Poland, wiping that country from the map;

3. Pledged Germany and Russia to work out an economic program so that "the volume of the German-Soviet exchange of goods will again attain a high peak."

The news agency said the treaty concluded negotiations between Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop, Joseph Stalin and Premier-Foreign Commissar Vyacheslaff Molotoff.

Joint Declaration

The peace overture to the western powers was issued as this joint declaration to the two governments:

"After the German Reich's government and the government of the U.S.S.R., through a treaty signed today, definitely solved questions resulting from the disintegration of the Polish state and thereby established a secure foundation for permanent peace in Eastern Europe, they unanimously voiced their opinion that it would be in the interest of all nations to bring to an end the state of war at present existing between Germany on one side and England and France on the other.

Pact Received Coldly in London and it is Believed Allies Will Spurn 'Veiled Threats'

WILL REPLY MONDAY

By J. F. SANDERSON

Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Sept. 29—(CP Cable) — Russia's new pact of friendship with Nazi Germany was received coldly in London today and there was a general belief that France and Great Britain would spurn the Soviets' "veiled threat" to enter the war unless the Allies agree to Germany's peace terms.

A high diplomatic source described the accord as a desperate attempt either to drive a wedge between Britain and France or to "frighten them out of their expressed determination to fight Hitlerism to the end."

Britain and France, meanwhile, were reported in consultation over implications of the pact and the British Cabinet had it under examination.

Prime Minister Chamberlain, it was announced, will make Britain's official reply Monday in the House of Commons.

Pact Not Considered Alarming

The new trade pact between Russia and Germany, the diplomatic source said, was not considered alarming. Russia would not be able to export any large amounts of supplies because of her own needs.

The Government was believed to be in the dark as to whether a military pact between the Nazi and Communist states was implied in the clause of their accord calling for "appropriate action" in the event of the Allies carrying on their battle against Hitler's regime.

Britain and France went to war in defence of their pledged word to Poland and were fully aware of the fact that Germany and Russia had signed a non-aggression pact, the diplomatic source emphasized. In other words, London and Paris knew what they were up against and are unlikely to back down now.

HOW COUNTRIES DIVIDED POLAND

Germany Gets All of Warsaw and Russia Cities of Lwow and Wilno

(By The Canadian Press)

The new Russo-German accord partitions Poland for the fourth time in history, Germany and the Soviet sharing her territory almost equally. Poland is wiped off the map; there is to be no Polish buffer state.

The accord gives Germany more than the earlier military occupation line, which gave Russia about three-fifths of Poland's area.

Germany now gets all of Warsaw city, most of Warsaw province, the entire course of the Vistula river, the province of Lublin.

Of the six largest cities, Russia gets only two—Lwow and Wilno. Germany gets Warsaw, Lodz, Poznan and Krakow.

As described by the German communique, the boundary line begins in northern Poland at the southern tip of Lithuania and runs west north of Augustow to the East Prussian border, which it follows to the Pisa River.

It runs along the river about 40 miles south of Ostrolenka, thence southeast 40 miles, meeting the Bug River at Nur, 60 miles northeast of Warsaw.

It follows the Bug along the eastern edge of Lublin province to Krystnopol, 40 miles north of Lwow, then bends southwest about 80 miles to the San River.

It follows the San to its source at the Slovak border.

Poland was first partitioned between Prussia and Russia in 1772, a second time by the two powers in 1793, a third time by these two and Austria in 1795. The state was re-established after the last war.

Marshall, Ill., Sept. 29 (AP)—Three persons were killed and two others seriously injured yesterday in a collision between an automobile and a truck near here.

The dead: Robert Herschel McGuire, 22, Lavon, Texas, driver of the truck; Melton Forest, 20, whose address was unknown, and an unidentified youth who was riding with him in the car.

Police said they believed the youths were en route to the Central Bible Institute at Springfield, Mo.

FAVORS BAN ON RED PARTY

Toronto Alderman Will Move Petition to Ottawa Government

Toronto, Sept. 29 (CP)—Alderman D. A. Balfour announced today that at Monday's City Council meeting he was going to move that council petition the Dominion government to ban the Communist Party from Canada.

"I am also going to move that the leaders of the Communist Party in Canada be interned," he said. "This would do away with the Soviet Russia spy system in this country and ban the Communists' contacts with Communist headquarters in New York where millions of dollars are spent to carry on the destructive work of Communist Russia."

Britain to Produce 3,000 Airmen A Month to Cope With Germany

London, Sept. 29 (CP)—Part of the raw material which Britain hopes will produce 3,000 airmen a month to cope with German fliers is being put in shape at Royal Air Force ground schools.

The 1,000 boys in one camp have been there nine days, coming from all over the Empire. Among them are English, Irish, Scots, Canadians, Australians and New Zealanders. The average age is between 21 and 22 but they look much younger. The camp is under the command of Air Commodore A. C. Critchley, formerly of Calgary.

"The Royal Air Force is getting the cream of the crop just as the Navy did in the old days," one officer said. "As soon as we can teach them technique and break them of their movie ideas about the Air Force we will have the finest pilots; gunners and ground men in the world."

They emphasize discipline at this school and for a very good reason.

"The movies have fed these kids on a 'Dawn Patrol' idea of the Air Force," said the officer. "It was like that in the last war—single combat and trips to Paris! Drinking bouts all night and a dawn flight bombing enemy troops and ammunition dumps.

12 GERMAN SUBS SUNK IN MONTH BY TWO FLEETS

British Fleet Given Credit for Getting Ten and French Fleet Two

RAIDS CARRIED OUT

French Expecting War to Take Bolder Turn in Near Future

By JOHN MARTIN

Associated Press Staff Writer

Paris, Sept. 29—(AP)— An official report that 12 German submarines had been sunk by the British and the French Fleets in less than a month was disclosed today.

The President of the Chamber of Deputies Naval Commission, Jean-Michel Renaitour, told the Chamber last night British units had sunk 10 U-boats and the French two.

Observers said the rate of destruction was in excess of the rapidity with which Germany could replace submarines and train new personnel.

The official disclosure coincided with military reports that French bombing planes were carrying out missions of "capital importance" nightly against German military objectives.

The General Staff reported today the night had been "calm" along the entire western front, but that French advance guards were active in the sector west of Saarbruecken—apparently in the same zone, where a small German attack was reported yesterday to have failed.

"In spite of formidable anti-aircraft fire the attacks were pressed home at low altitude. Some of their aircraft have not yet returned."

London, Sept. 29—(CP)— The Ministry of Information announced the Royal Air Force attacked the German Fleet at Heligoland today and "some of the planes have not yet returned."

FIRST DIVISION TO GO OVERSEAS WILL HAVE 16,000

All Parts of Canada Will be Represented According to Population

A COMPLETE UNIT

Overseas Division Will be Made Up From Non-Permanent Active Militia

Ottawa, Sept. 29 (CP)—Canada's first overseas division in the second Great War will consist of complete units chosen from the non-permanent active militia of Canada and the list of the units selected will be announced later on.

In a statement amplifying previous announcements relating to the overseas division last night, Defence Minister Rogers said all parts of Canada would be represented in the division, and so far as possible representation would be according to population.

"The Canadian active service force which is now under arms includes a reserve force of two divisions with a quota of ancillary troops, said Mr. Rogers. "From this force one division will be sent overseas when required and a second division will be kept under arms as a further measure of preparedness.

"Arrangements are also being made to send abroad certain technical units from the ancillary troops which have been mobilized. It is proposed that these will eventually form part of the overseas force. The actual units to be sent will depend on discussions now in progress with the British government.

FRAUD CHARGE IS DISMISSED

Magistrate Speaks Plainly to Accused and Complainant

Toronto, Sept. 29—(CP) — A charge of fraud against William Allan, Toronto race horse owner, developing from an alleged attempt to "fix" a race at Woodbine Park, was dismissed in court today.

In dismissing the case, Magistrate F. G. Gullen told the accused "It looks like an illegal fraud from start to finish." He also admonished the complainant, Mrs. Sarah Messar of Batavia, N. Y., saying: "Anybody who comes into this court, must come with clean hands."

Mrs. Messar said she and her brother lost between $700 and $800 on a race early this week which she charged, Allan had offered to fix so his horse Jimmie Kirk would win.

Mrs. Messar charged Allan told her it was necessary to pay each of the other jockeys in the race $25 to make sure his horse would win and that she gave him $175 to use for this purpose.

BALTIC STATES APPREHENSIVE OF SOVIET MOVE

Feel Pact Puts Russia in Position to Become Boss of Baltic

STALIN AT CONFERENCE

Latvia, Lithuania and Estonia Watch With Alarm Red Warships and Airplanes

Helsingfors, Finland, Sept. 29 (AP)—Soviet Russia's shove into the German Sea "domain" through a mutual assistance pact with Estonia today sent a shiver of apprehension throughout the Baltic States.

The ten year pact permitting Russia to establish naval bases and airdromes on the Estonian islands of Saare Maa (Oesel) and Hiiuma (Dagoe) and in the port town of Paldiski (Baltiskii) put Russia into a position to become boss of the Baltic.

Latvia already has created a council of state for defence and other northern states appeared likely to take precautionary action.

Reports here that Joseph Stalin himself conferred with the Estonian delegation, and that the delegation later met with a German group now in Moscow, only added to the nervousness of observers in Latvia, Lithuania and Estonia, who have been watching with alarm as Red warships manoeuvre off the Estonian coast and warplanes skim over Estonian housetops.

The Russians, it was reported, wanted to deploy 25,000 soldiers over Estonia, but agreed to keep them at the naval bases when Estonian negotiations called a recess and telephoned Tallinn, the Estonian capital, for instructions.

GENERAL JOHNSON GETS PESSIMISTIC

Says if U.S. Goes to War, Dictatorship Would be Established Under Roosevelt Administration

Atlantic City, N.J., Sept. 29 (CP)—General Hugh Johnson, who once directed the National Recovery Act for President Roosevelt, said in an address here last night he believes that if the United States went to war it would become a virtual dictatorship under the Roosevelt administration.

"There is no difference between what Mr. Hitler is doing in Germany and what could certainly be done here," he said. "If we get into this war—goodbye democracy."

Turning to the British Empire, Johnson, now a newspaper columnist and one of the Roosevelt administration's most severe critics said that because of the war "freedom of speech and press are gone" in Canada.

Daily War Survey

By The Canadian Press

Aviation activity increases as the war on the Western Front gains momentum but so far operations have failed to disclose whether the air arm will play a greatly extended role in the present conflict as compared with the first Great War.

In that conflict the air force found its chief usefulness as the eyes of the army. Such has been its principal role on the Western Front in the present conflict although the German air arm did much more in Poland.

French planes in recent days have been ranging far into German territory, gathering information for the Allied High Command upon which shrewd guesses may be made about German intentions regarding an offensive in the west.

Air Fighting Incidental

Air fighting is incidental to air operations of any kind wherever both sides are equipped with planes. The two defences against aircraft are more aircraft and anti-aircraft guns. The war in the west has produced a fair number of air fights as German planes attempt to drive off Allied planes from their own territory and vice versa.

So far, however, little has been attempted in the way of air attack on ground forces, cities, or warships, which would bring airmen within the range of anti-aircraft guns. Hence the degree of improvement in anti-aircraft gunnery achieved since the last war has yet to be tested.

The British air force made one raid on German war vessels at Cuxhaven and Wilhelmshaven and the German air arm attacked British vessels in the North Sea the other day. Reports on both attacks are conflicting but apparently the air arm suffered loss in each case.

Federal Issue in Quebec Elections Raised, is Charge

Hon. E. Lapointe With Quebec Federal Cabinet Ministers Will Take Part Against Premier Duplessis

STATEMENT GIVEN

Charges Duplessis Sowing Seeds of Discord in Canada at a Critical Period of History

Ottawa, Sept. 29 (CP) — Justice Minister Lapointe declared today that Premier Duplessis of Quebec, had introduced a federal issue into the forthcoming provincial campaign. The minister indicated that Quebec's federal cabinet would take part in the contest.

A verdict in Mr. Duplessis' favour would be a verdict against the Dominion government, Mr. Lapointe said.

"Under such circumstances, we cannot remain indifferent and our duty is to take up this unprovoked challenge."

Mr. Lapointe said the Quebec premier had not only believed it his duty to precipitate an election "at a critical period and to sow seeds of discord at a time when national union is a sacred duty," but he had "made criticism of the federal government an issue at that election."

French Plane Causes Air Raid Warning To People of Paris

Paris, Sept. 29 (AP)—An air raid alarm, sounded here at 11.22 a.m. (5:22 a.m. EST), ended 33 minutes later when the all-clear signal was heard.

For the first time since Sept. 11, the shrilling of air raid sirens sent Parisians to their bomb shelters.

The people took the alarm calmly, generally moving without panic to designated shelters.

It was learned later that a French plane, flying high, caused the warning.

MRS. G. TAYLOR IS CONVICTED IN MURDER CASE

Sentenced to Hang on December 14th by Justice Makins

COLLAPSES IN COURT

Attendants Carry Her Unconscious to the Cells Below the Courtroom

London, Ont., Sept. 29.—(CP)—Mrs. George Taylor, mother of 11 children, was convicted of the murder of Mrs. Annie Templeton today and sentenced by Mr. Justice J. C. Makins to be hanged December 14.

Mrs. Taylor collapsed when sentence was pronounced and Court attaches carried her unconscious to the cells below the court room.

The trial opened Monday and was climaxed yesterday when Mrs. Taylor took the witness stand in her own defence with a detailed story of how Mrs. Templeton attacked first.

The body of the elderly widow was found on the road outside the Taylor home in the early hours of March 28. The head appeared to have been battered by some heavy object, later identified as a wooden club. The arms were folded over the chest as in repose.

The Crown claimed the murder was committeed because Mrs. Taylor expected to benefit from the will of Mrs. Templeton, who had an estate valued at about $1,300.

Eight Women Hanged

Eight women have been hanged for murder in Canada since Confederation. The last was on December 16, 1935, when Mrs. Elizabeth A. Tilford went to her death at Woodstock, Ont., for poisoning her husband, Tyrrel.

The case went to the jury this morning after a 40-minute charge by Mr. Justice J. C. Makins.

NEWSPAPERS PAY HIGH TRIBUTE TO POLISH DEFENDERS

Civilized Men Will Not Forget Warsaw Any More Than They Forgot Belgium

REPAY SACRIFICES

London, Sept. 29 (CP)—British newspapers today paid tribute to the defenders of Warsaw, who are to surrender the city to German arms today after a three-week siege.

"What countless human tragedies of suffering and bereavement have been endured by Warsaw's people the surrounding world can only imagine with horror," said the Daily Herald. "Herhaps Herr Hitler dare not even allow his imagination to paint the picture for him.

"But civilized men will not forget Warsaw any more than they forgot Belgium in 1914. The real victors of Warsaw, as Madrid before it, are the men, women and children, who showed themselves ready to face death rather than submit. Their heroism will be remembered and their sacrifice repaid."

Observer Tells of Seeing 600 Men Struggle for Life in Icy Water

(Editor's Note: Following is an eyewitness account of the sinking of the British aircraft carrier Courageous written for the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin by Dick Regan, late of the London Daily Mail. Regan was a passenger aboard the United States freighter Collingsworth, which docked at Philadelphia Thursday.)

Philadelphia, Sept. 29 (AP)—Aboard the Collingsworth we saw the British aircraft carrier H.M.S. Courageous sink Sept. 17 after two German U-boat torpedoes ripped open her port side, exploding her magazines. We saw 600 men struggling for life in the icy waters of the North Atlantic.

Ours was a tragic voyage. We saw the Courageous sink, rescued thirty-eight drowning men, and were present at the death of the Collingsworth's chief engineer.

I was told how the Courageous and her four-destroyer convoy had got five U-boats in a few days, how German submarine crews had surrendered, waving white flags, hands in air, shouting "Kamerad, Kamerad."

The rescued men of the Courageous crew were transferred to a British destroyer five hours later.

(In London the Admiralty has announced that 579 of the Courageous' complement were lost.)

First Sunday out we had finished supper in the mess hall and had strolled on to the deck. The second mate was gazing anxiously at the huge hulk of the aircraft carrier seven miles ahead of us. A curl of black smoke, seven minutes, and the carrier had sunk into deep waters of the Atlantic off the southwest coast of Ireland.

Captain Shouts for Speed

"Give her all she's got," shouted Captain Reynolds, our skipper. Steaming to the rescue, the engines of the little freighter banged frantically.

Silhouetted against the fading light in the western sky, two destroyers hung dark and foreboding over the oily waters where the Courageous sank. As we approached one sped away, cruising around, dropping four depth charges, which were heard and felt aboard the Collingsworth.

R.C.A.F. PLANE FORCED TO LAND

Development of motor trouble while on a trial flight over the northern part of Prince Edward County late yesterday afternoon, sent two Royal Canadian Air Force fliers down to a forced landing near Consecon.

The fliers were uninjured, and the plane escaped serious damage.

The names of the pilot and observer could not be obtained, although officials of the airport confirmed the report that motor trouble was the cause of the landing.

3 Cars Damaged In Two Accidents

Property damage resulted to three motor cars along Highway No. 2 last night following two separate accidents.

When he failed to negotiate Bradshaw's curve, one mile west of Shannonville, an automobile driven by Eugene Rosebush of this city, left the highway, went into the south ditch and struck a pole breaking it off at the base. Damage to the extent of over $100 resulted to the automobile.

Charges are pending in the matter, Motorcycle Patrolman Sam Ervine stated today after a rigid investigation. The accident happened shortly after midnight, last night.

Some hours previously and within a few hundred yards of site of the above accident, a truck driven by John Swartzenburg, Toronto, and a motor car driven by Herman Claus, Shannonville, were in collision. H.T.O. Ervine stated both vehicles appeared to be too close to the centre line of the highway. Considerable property damage resulted to both vehicles. In neither accident were there any personal injuries sustained.

3 MONTHS GIVEN ON FRAUD CHARGE

Stewart Elliott Alias A. W. McKenzie of Bracebridge Convicted

Stewart Elliott, alias A. W. McKenzie of Bracebridge, today was sentenced to serve not less than three months nor more than one year in the Ontario Reformatory when he appeared before Magistrate E. J. Butler K.C. in city police court for sentence after pleading guilty to a charge of fraud previously.

Elliott was charged with obtaining a quantity of wearing apparel and cash from a local haberdashery by means of a worthless cheque. He was also convicted of failing to pay for a hotel bill under his own admission. A three months' concurrent sentence was given in the latter case.

"This seems to have been a barefaced business. As a matter of fact I'm told this man is out on bail right now on a charge of having stolen from his employer. I can't help but recommend a severe penalty," urged Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan K.C. The three months determinate and nine months indeterminate sentence immediately followed.

MARKET BY-LAW FOUND INVALID

Magistrate Says in Giving Judgement By-Law Discriminates

Bellevilles' market by-law, pertaining to the sale of fruit which was not grown by the vendors, was declared to have been wrongly enacted and beyond the right of the municipality by Magistrate E. J. Butler K.C., in today's city police court as he handed down judgment in the matter of several cases, which were heard in a previous court.

Charges against four farmers, who displayed and exposed fruit for sale and which was not grown by them, were heard in a previous court when Charles A. Payne K.C., appearing for the vendors held that Section 2 of City By-Law No. 3421, which prohibits persons from selling fruit, other than growers, was invalid and therefore no infraction had been committed.

In his argument Mr. Payne said —"This market bylaw discriminates and leads to monopoly for a favoured few. It tends to take away the common law rights of man to trade."

Frank Cushing, acting-City Solicitor, quoted from the Municipal Laws, which enacted that only producers and agents of fruit might sell the same on the open markets.

The four farm vendors charged were Messrs. Arthur Hall, William Bedford, B. V. Hall and Henry Nelson.

In his judgment rendered today, Magistrate said—

"This a prosecution under By-Law, 3421 as amended by By-Law 3458. The case has been thoroughly argued, and it is contended that in enacting clause (2) of the By-Law, the Municipality exceeded its powers. Under the Municipal Act, Councils and Municipalities have the power to enact By-Laws for the purpose of establishing, maintaining, and regulating markets, and they have the right also, to restrict any person dealing in small-wares. There is a vast distinction, however in regulating the management and control of the market from that of prohibiting the sale of produce. I do not think under the Municipal Act and under the Authorities the Municipality has any right to enact the Legislation of the character in the clauses in question. I rule clause (2) of the said By-Law is beyond the right of the Municipality to enact, consequently, the cases are dismissed."

Cheese Board

The price of cheese advanced sharply to 14 1-8 cents on the Belleville Cheese Board last evening, a gain of 1 and 9-16 cents over the previous week's price.

A total of 3502 boxes of white cheese was offered for sale, of which 2839 were sold at the top ranging price of 14 1-8c., the remaining 663 boxes being disposed of at 14 cents.

During the meeting President George Weaver read a request from the Napanee Cheese Board, which sought to have the Belleville Board meet at 7.30 p.m. each Thursday evening in order that the Napanee Board might convene for sales following the Belleville Board meeting. The request was unanimously rejected by the factory representatives present. "We have given way to other boards too much in the past," one salesman remarked.

Secretary F. R. Mallory read a telegram, sent to the Board by S. L. Joss, secretary of the Ontario Cheese Producers Association, concerning the sale of last night's cheese.

The message read—"Prices have advanced substantially the last three weeks and I feel reasonable sure that tonight's price will show an increase over a week ago. Therefore I feel the best advice I can offer you is that you use your best judgment with your offerings."

The buyers present last night were Messrs. Hunter, McCreary, Murphy, Cook, Morton, Hart, Taylor, Styles and Fraleigh.

Nazi Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop, right, appeared to be in high spirits as he bade farewell to Soviet Envoy Schkarsew upon leaving Berlin to fly to Moscow for a conference with Soviet officials. The purpose of the visit was kept a secret but was presumed to be an effort to obtain an out and out military alliance with Russia. Observers feel that the Italian and Soviet conversations with Turkey foretell a possible peace bloc in the Balkans which may halt any German attempt to continue eastward through Rumania to the Black Sea. This picture was radioed to New York and then transmitted by Phonephoto.

Foliage Assumes Coat Of Autumn Color Despite Lack of Frost

The brilliant scarlets and golds of gradually changing foliage of woods, trees and other leafage in the rural districts is the only evidence thus far of the delicate touch of Jack Frost, according to farmers of the district at the city market today. Although the mercury has hovered dangerously near the freezing mark during the past ten days, no material damage has been suffered by crops or floral and plant life.

The magic brush of the master-painter has touched-lightly on the woods and groves of the district. Gradually changing into the brilliant Autumn hues that is Nature's apparel for the pre-winter season, foliage of trees,shrubs and woods is slowly assuming all the glorious colors that make them things of beauty at this time of the year.

Recent heavy rains ,it was reported by residents of widely separated districts, have facilitated to a great extent the fall ploughing that is now well under way.

Root crops, are showing up well, and present indications point to a good yield. Apple-picking has started in many sections of the district and although the cyclonic storm of a few weeks ago reduced crops in certain parts of the county to approximately fifty per cent. of earlier indications, yields in other parts will be fairly good.

THANKS MOSBY'S TONIC—RELIEVED OF BACK PAINS

Mr. Kelly Felt Tired and Sluggish — Complexion Sallow and Pale—Bowels Constipated — Now He Says: "Mosby's Tonic Has Relieved me. I feel Fine!"

"Oh! How my sluggish kidneys hurt me! The backache. The sharp pains. The stiffness and soreness. And all night long my sleep was disturbed, due to this kidney sluggishness. I couldn't rest. But since I got MOSBY'S TONIC my sluggish-acting kidneys are relieved. Now I can sleep. Backache relieved. Here is a Splendid Medicine!"

That is what thousands of people here in Belleville and vicinity are saying about MOSBY'S TONIC, a "New Mixture of Roots and Herbs and Other Splendid Medicinal Agents," now being introduced to the public daily in this city at Lattimer's Drug Store, 228 Front Street, your Tamblyn deoler.

And remember—MOSBY'S TONIC not only helps. Nature relieve weak, sluggish kidneys but also clears gas and bloat from stomach, cleanses bowels, invigorates the liver action, acts to relieve pains of rheumatic and neuritic trouble, caused by contaminated system. It accomplishes several things in the body at the Same Time.

For instance, just a few days ago, Mr. Bernard Kelly, of 103 Roseheath Ave., Toronto, Ont., made the following statement. This grateful man's testimonial, praising Mosby's Tonic, follows:

Was Low in Energy; Felt Weak and Sluggish

"About a year ago I began losing weight," said Mr. Kelly. "And as time went on I seemed to lose all my energy. I had no appetite and what little food I did eat wouldn't nourish my body properly and as a result, my complexion took on a sallow "muddy" colour and I simply felt worn out ALL THE TIME. My back was full of aches and pains, which was due to sluggish kidneys, and I was also a victim of bowel constipation.

"One day a friend of mine told me what Mosby's Tonic had done for him, and he almost insisted that I get this medicine and start taking it, which I did, and now I want to tell you that the first bottle has given me a great surprise. Why, do you know, within ONE WEEK I could see the colour coming back into my cheeks. At the same time, this medicine helped me to gain back my weight, and, say, what an appetite-builder this Mosby's Tonic is! Now I eat like a schoolboy, and I have gained in energy and never feel tired and worn out like I did before. It also relieved those pains in my back and regulated my bowels. I simply feel fine in general. It is SPLENDID!"

Many from Stirling and district attended Campbellford Fair on Wednesday of this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Andrews spent Sunday visiting the home of their son, Mr. Bert Andrews, Belleville and attended the special Young Peoples service at Bridge Street United Church on Sunday evening.

Mrs. W. West, Mr. Clarence West and Mrs. R. B. Duffin spent Wednesday of this week in Toronto.

Miss Winnifred Ward Reg. N., of Perth spent a day this week at her home visiting her parents Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Ward.

Miss Flossie Hulin has returned home after spending a few weeks visiting relatives in Madoc.

In the report of the prize winners in the Cheese exhibit at the Stirling fair the name of Tom Heagle appeared as the leading prize winner. This was in error and should have read Tom Heath. Tom who is well known as one of the most youthful cheesemakers of the county captured the highest honors awarded in two classes.

Workmen were engaged on Wednesday of this week removing store fixtures from the jewelry shop formerly operated by B. W. Bishop who recently announced his closing out sale. Mr. Bishop is forced by poor health to suspend business operations on a large scale for an indefinite period. He will however, carry on his repair work at his Front Street residence until further notice.

WHAT NAZIS FACE

German Nazis set the pace in past years in their agitation for Germany's expansion, they took Austria in a putsch, they swallowed Czecho-Slovakia and got back Memel, as they wanted. By the might of their arms they have now a part of Poland but Russia stepped in and assured herself a portion of that land in the name of the minorities she claimed.

In grabbing Poland the Nazis brought themselves face to face with the two empires they most feared in Europe, Britain and France. Here for the first time they are meeting great powers. The action on the west front shows that. French are in German territory to considerable depth and in places are said to be up close on the front lines of fortifications. Hitherto the Nazis have moved with speed. Now they must consider the tempo of the British and French armies and the strength of the home fronts in these two nations. Hitler and his group are believed to have desired a sudden thrust victory, but their hopes have faded as they meet the wall of the defences of France.

Prime Minister Chamberlain has advised the British people not to be over-confident, for over-confidence is very risky, and not to demand too quick action. Britain and France have much to do and in the end will have all to do with the course of events on Germany's west frontier, whatever Herr Hitler and his associates may have desired.

Meanwhile every hour as Mr. Chamberlain and Mr. Churchill have pointed out, keeps up the blockade on Germany and every hour adds to the effect of that blockade. British sea-power is playing its part along with the navy of France in destroying German submarine raiders, in sweeping German shipping off the seas, and thousands of tons of merchandise for Germany has been seized by British and French vessels.

To add to the effect of all this, Germany's clumsiness has been succeeding admiralty in shutting the door in her own face by her raids on neutral ships.

WOMEN'S WORK IN WAR

The service which the Canadian women rendered in the last war by their work at home for their sons and husbands fighting abroad was wholehearted. Again the women of the Dominion have taken on the task which is one of doing similar services for the men who carry on this war. Everywhere in Canada are to be founded newly organized societies or branches of organizations like the I.O.D.E. and Red Cross already at work. In churches and in social organizations the women are being enlisted in the cause in which work can be done which but for them would not be accomplished.

The service of women is very important and is an essential part of the prosecution of the war to victory.

FRENCH COMMUNISTS DISSOLVED

France has given one of the finest demonstrations of unity in the face of danger. All party groups are united. Since the advent of Russia into the scene, even French Communists have disassociated themselves from the International. Leon Blum, Socialist French leader urged the French Communists to formally renounce their allegiance to Moscow. Communist deputies and journalists have left the party and are said to be switching over to the Socialist.

On Wednesday the French Cabinet formally dissolved the French Communist Party, the third largest political organization in France.

This step makes for strength in the war on Naziism.

SIGMUND FREUD

Sigmund Freud is dead in London. He left Austria last year after its absorption into Greater Germany. He had looked forward to continuing his studies there and carrying on his life with his students, but death has upset his plans. He was the first of the outstanding Jews to leave his native country when Hitler's Nazis came in.

Freud was famous for his studies of the sub-conscious mind.

An outstanding figure of his era he was jeered in the Nazi press. Some of his views did not gain wide acceptance in the world of science.

Britain offered him a haven as she has offered so many of the people of various lands. Out of her great heart she has taken them in and befriended them.

Dr. Freud was honored in England and he appreciated the refuge this land had given him and his family after the storm of Nazi hatred fell upon the Jews. He, a man of eighty-two years, was during the days after the Anschluss treated in a manner which was a disgrace to the Nazis. Age meant nothing to them.

FLOYD GIBBONS IS DEAD, one of the most colorful newspapermen of his time, dead at the age of 52, after having lived more years than the majority of men in his brief span. Floyd Gibbons was a war correspondent in the Great War for a Chicago paper, and enjoyed his job to such an extent that he went beyond all rules of safety prescribed for the correspondents back of the line and suffered wounds which resulted in the loss of the sight of one eye. He returned to the United States and became a well-known and popular radio commentator, his rapid speech giving him a distinctive style of a very entertaining nature. One of Floyd Gibbon's outstanding stunts was in joining Pancho Villa's rebel forces in Mexico. Villa had sworn to murder all "gringos" but Gibbon's rapid fire speech and attractive personality and his salesmanship in selling Villa the idea of world-wide publicity for Villa gave him a standin no other correspondent ever achieved. After travelling with Villa's army for a season or two and participating in several battles, Gibbons returned to the United States and joined Col. Perishing's punitive expedition against Villa, as correspondent. More experience and more adventure came out of this but little else as Villa was too elusive for the Yanks to catch up with and they never got anywhere. When he sailed for England as war correspondent for the Hearst papers in the Great War he embarked on the Laconia which was torpedoed by a Hun submarine. He was a day and night in an open boat and when he reached land his first act was to file a 4,000-word cable of his experiences. He spent some time in Manchuria and China after Japan started her friendly gestures for Chinese co-operation with modern bombers. One of his newspaper assignments was to travel by camelback through the far east and interview shieks of the desert. This was a follow-up for Hearst papers of Valentino's film popularity in "The Shiek". He was not impressed by the desert shieks but managed to get some good copy out of it. Offered motor car transportation he declined as his contract called for camel transportation. Latterly Floyd Gibbons has linked up with Hollywood in the making of film shorts glorifying the American boy and promoting courage and resourcefulness and honesty in youth. His home was on a farm near Stroudsburg, Pennsylvania, and it is said he was preparing to go overseas again to take up his work as war correspondent when stricken. Floyd Gibbons wrote a book, "The Red Napoleon," which gives his idea of war at its possible worst in frightfulness and savagry. As an example of the modern newspaperman who counts not the cost nor the sacrifice to get the story Floyd Gibbons fitted the picture perfectly.

"WITH EVERY ALLOWANCE FOR PERSONAL BIAS, and for other possible mitigating circumstances, the testimony before the Dies committee that the Nazis hoped to have in the German-American Bund an organization at their beck and call, cannot but arouse deep indignation among Americans. It is bad enough that an alien group should thus organize in behalf of a foreign government. What hurts is the implied insult to the rank and file of Americans with German blood in their veins by the calm assumption that they are, or should be, willing to become the tools of Nazi Germany in this country. It is the old blind folly of the earlier Germany, the complete inability to realize that there is such a thing as an American nation, and an American people, and that this nation and these people have survived and grown in strength because they are a new nation and a new people. They are not Europeans. . . . . ." The above protest is made by the New York Herald Tribune in a leading editorial exposing underground tactics of Germany in the United States and South America, including efforts to divert allegiance from their adopted country to Germany with threats of trouble for relatives in Germany if the organization's hints are ignored. For years every sizable community in the United States has had its Turnverein for the physical and military education of young German-Americans and no language but that of German was permitted therein. The present "Bund" seems just a development and exaggeration of the old Turnverein, only worse, and why the United States stands for it is a mystery.

Robert Service in a New Role

Robert W. Service, the well-known Canadian writer, whose "Songs of a Sourdough" was carried by every Canadian soldier (instead of a field marshal's baton) in his knapsack, arrived recently in London from Warsaw by a very roundabout route. He thinks that he and two fellow-travellers were the first Britons to arrive out of Warsaw since the war except those who flew.

He was on an Intourist trip to Russia and arrived in Poland on the day when it was invaded. He and his companions had been told nothing of the war. Then began their difficulties in the seething crowds of soldiers, refugees, and confused population.

The travellers arrived in Warsaw in the morning and at once went to the British Consulate, where there were crowds of people applying for visas and money. The Consul had no official money available, but he was doing what he could to tackle the unprecedented conditions. He advised Mr. Service and his companions, a Canadian lady and a Glasgow left wing organizer, to go to Riga.

The station was jammed with people struggling for trains and there were many pathetic sights. They got on board and it took them 36 hours to get to Riga. Thence they went to Tallinn, in Estonia, and took a boat to Stockholm, which went by a roundabout route which took them a day and a half, then from Stockholm to Oslo and Oslo to Bergen, finding difficulties everywhere, but at last they sailed in a small steamer and reached Newcastle.

The strange and distracted cities, the besieged consulates, the swarms of Summer visitors suddenly stuck in the midst of war-driven multitudes, and the breaking down of the ordinary amenities and resources of Continental travel were a nightmare. Money was frozen. Mr. Service could not change his French notes and had much difficulty, while his American traveller's cheques could only be cashed in the big cities. Another difficulty was that when he cashed anything the change was not negotiable in the next country. He had no money on the trip from Tallinn to Stockholm and was 24 hours without any food.

At Stockholm the consulate again was crowded with people, including many British holiday parties and a theatrical company of 18 who had been in Berlin and came to Stockholm in the hope of an engagement. It was an illusionist show they were running, the last touch of wartime ironic fantasy.—Manchester Guardian.

ENEMY OF DEMOCRACY

By and large most people contribute no direct time or effort to making democratic government work. Such contribution as we do make is usually confined to criticism of those who are giving their time to make it work, whom we lump under the name of "politicians." All this is true enough. It is regrettable to note that in the case of Regina there are some people who can simply be put down as lazy. Regina has its "beefer" element—those who are forever criticizing but who, in not a few cases, are too lazy to go to the polls when voting day comes. We must be alert to our responsibilities to the state. The state is the people, collectively. The state properly has its responsibilities toward the citizen but the citizen has equal, even perhaps greater responsibility to the state. Government, in any form—municipal, provincial or national—will never be efficient and worthwhile on the basis of an uninterested society. Public apathy may be a more serious enemy of democracy than is dictatorship. —Regina Leader Post.

OBITUARY MASTERPIECE

Nunnally Johnson is revealing this story of Herbert Asbury, when he was a reporter for the New York Herald and was assigned to write the obituary for Eleanora Duse. He wrote six columns replete with flowery descriptives of her talents and of her immortality, but the city editor was not content.

"You're writing about Duse's death", Asbury was warned, "the greatest actress who ever lived. Start again." Asbury obliged, and turned in a masterpiece which was front-paged.

The city editor never knew that Asbury had searched in the newspaper's morgue for an obituary from which he borrowed, word for word, in descriptives of fame, achievement and universal grief. The obituary was that of Joe Daniel, the Gorilla.—Leonard Lyons in N. Y. Post.

A Little Indigestion May Be Cancer of Stomach

Heart disease stands first as a cause of death but thousands of individuals live 10 to 30 years after discovering that they have heart disease, in fact, some live even longer. This is because they learn to live within the limit of the power of their heart.

Cancer stands second as a cause of death and if the disease is discovered early and treated by surgery, Xray, or radium, these patients may live for many years afterwards.

Unfortunately, in most cases, cancer is not discovered early, and as there is no way of checking its growth or living within safe limits, death occurs in a few months or years.

If cancer occurs on the skin, in the breast, or where it can be seen or its symptoms definitely noticed by the patient, early removal is possible and life saved. However, when the cancer occurs where it cannot be seen and its symtoms resemble those of other conditions, it may grow so rapidly that when it is discovered it is too late. It is for this reason that cancer of the stomach is not discovered early; the patient thinks he has just "a little indigestion".

Dr. Frederick Christopher, Evanston, Ill., in Surgery, Gynecology and Obstetrics, states: "By far the most frequent site of cancer is in the stomach. Of vital importance are careful studies of the "early" symptoms. The cure of cancer of the stomach can only be affected when the patient appears normal, no anaemia, no growth that can be felt by the physician and no loss of weight". It can thus be seen how easy it is for the patient not to suspect any real trouble and so not report his "indigestion" to his physician.

Dr. Donald Balfour, Mayo Clinic, states that there is no characteristic symptom or group of symptoms to tell patient or physician that cancer of the stomach is present. The very early symptoms — discomfort, gas formation, loss of appetite—can be symptoms of ordinary indigestion or of cancer itself.

If early symptoms do not alarm the patient, how can cancer be detected in time to save life?

"A little indigestion in any patient, how can cancer be detected in time to save life?

"A little indigestion in any patient over 30 years old should be regarded seriously."

CHRISTIANITY AND THE WAR

Lord Phillimore.

—"No nation ever really feels itself compelled to fight unless its moral basis is threatened. Nations may follow false gods; but gods they must be in the eyes of the worshippers. During the last two thousand years the barbarian has attacked Christianity at irregular intervals. Christianity has always emerged triumphant. It is time we took that to heart, if our influence is to reach those elements in the countries most likely to feel the same devotion to peace and liberty as ourselves. The message itself must be irreproachable. Our genius for compromise will not serve us here. We have compromised too much. The secularization of the Christian gospel would provide no cure for the emotional materialism of the Nazi creed.

"It must not be forgotten that the whole of Western civilization rests on a Christian basis, 'the infinite worth of each soul, the essential equality of human beings of every race and condition before God'.

"Henri Bergson claims that history reveals that in the last two thousand years, whatever has proved durable and good in human society has been accomplished under the influence of Christianity. Whilst Stalin renews and renews again his anti-God campaign against the faithful hearts of the Russian people, and Hitler sets the doctrine of blood and race in the pulpit (and the Christian priest in the concentration camp), are we to have any doubt as to under what leadership we shall fight, or any hesitation in calling to our aid the whole mighty Christian sentiment of the world?"

SAVING THE BEAVER

It isn't only the trapper and the fur dealer who has an interest in the restoration of beaver.

The close relationship between plentiful speckled trout fishing and the prevalence of beaver dams was the subject of a discussion among a group of fishermen the other evening.

"We don't want to see the beaver wiped out," said one, "as beaver are an important factor in the district, something which is of increasing importance as the tourist trade increases."

He pointed out that it had been his experience that wherever he found beaver ponds he found speckled trout.

More than that, he went on, in a district like this where most of the creeks and rivers are drainage streams, the beaver plays an important part in holding up the water and maintaining stream levels so as to provide conditions favorable for the speckled trout to develop in.

"Fishermen," he declared, "should be among the leaders in the movement for the protection of beaver."

And there appears to be a good deal to that viewpoint.—Sault Ste. Marie Star.

Just One of Many Villages in England

London—(By Mail)—Picture, if you can in these worrying days, a tiny Suffolk village of 401 people, where every cottage roof is thatched.

Where every winding street has its own well and most of the villagers read their evening newspapers by oil lamplight.

It stands, miles from anywhere, in the centre of a vast acreage of newly-shorn wheat fields.

You can get to it either along a lane that is flooded in winter or along another that is flooded the best part of spring.

Every night the men gather in the taproom at the Buck's Head and talk sugarbeet.

If you can get that into your mind's eye, you have a perfect picture of Campsea Ash, which 100 young Londoners now regard as their crisis home.

"Young holiday-makers, we shall call them," says Campsea Ash, though the official term is evacuees.

The village—it's centuries old—prepared for its young visitors months ago.

"You're a reception area," said the Home Office when the evacuation scheme was first planned.

Obediently 55-year-old William Bloomfield, village harnessmaker and saddler, borrowed a bicycle and visited every cottage.

"And that's that," said William, when he arrived back. For every cottager had volunteered to receive an evacuated child.

Campsea Ash's quota arrived from London by train at Woodbridge. From Woodbridge they will be taken the six miles through narrow country lanes by bus.

Members of the Women's Institute will pilot the kiddies to their temporary homes.

And then, kindly, motherly Mrs. H. L. Boddy, the village schoolmistress, will give every one of them a picture postcard to send home to mother "just to let her know you've got here safely."

Mr. Bloomfield will have temporarily deserted his bench and his harness to collect emergency provisions from Woodbridge.

Six children, with six mothers, will stay at the huge-roomed rectory, standing beneath tall trees.

The same number will stay at the mansion of Viscount Ullswater, former speaker of the House of Commons, surrounded by a dozen acres of park land.

But most of them will stay with the villagers in the little thatched and mossy-tiled cottages.

T. J. Clarke, the senior air raid warden, stood white-coated behind the counter of the village store and post office as he said, "Of course, we are all doing our bit.

"They'll have a wonderful time."

Why I'm Enlisting for War

The issue seems simple and real to me. For thousands of years, with great difficulty and at the price of many sacrifices, the human race has been struggling in one general direction; away from bondage and towards freedom. Away from the bondage of tyrants of kings, of aristocracies, of priests, of hunger, of fear, of cruelty; the sort of bondage that made life miserable for the vast majority and gave arbitrary powers to the negligible minority. Only as, inch by inch, humanity struggled and defeated bondage, and replaced arbitrary powers and tyrannies by the sanctions and laws worked out by intelligence, compromise and consent, did men begin to rise to the conscious enjoyment of life, to the realization of the richness and grandeur of nature, the beauties of freedom, the importance and power of mind. All these discoveries have multiplied only so recently—we have begun to enjoy them so few decades ago—so much has yet to be done along this path—there are yet so many freedoms to win, so much beauty and wealth and power to share more equitably among the millions of this earth.

And now we are faced with the possibility that the whole of this process shall be stopped. An evil, reactionary force is attempting again to enslave us—again we are to be at the mercy of tyranny, of suspicion, hate, cruelty—if Hitlerism is victorious and spreads.

Attempts are made to represent this Hitler war as a war of justice for the German nation who have been denied "living space." What rot! The German worker was not conscious of suffocation any more or any less than the happy and intelligent workers and peasants of Sweden, Denmark, Finland, until the lies of ambitions of a single man bedevilled a fraction of the German people into believing that they did not have as much as they ought to have at the expense of other peaceful people; until the people of Germany were forced to give up freedom, food, life itself to serve the will of one megalomaniac and build up a ruthless machine of hatred, suspicion and destruction which threatens the whole world.

Attempts are made to represent this Hitler war as a war against capitalism—especially now that Hitler and Stalin have suddenly become friends. What friends Stalin who exterminated one by one all the genuine Communist leaders to satisfy his lust for power on the pretext that they were plotting an alliance with Fascism, and then, when a word from him to the effect that he would throw the whole weight of the great resources of tht U.S.S.R. against Hitler could have prevented this war, he chose to do the one thing that would encourage Hitler to make war, and thus shares with Hitler to the fullest extent the blame for this world catastrophe. He did it to save his tottering tyranny over the working masses of Russia. He did not hesitate a moment to condemn to death millions of workers and peasants all over the world. This is not merely a Hitler-made war—to an equal extent it is a Stalin-made war. The forces of reaction that must be destroyed are equally represented by Hitler and Stalin.

I would have preferred to fight this evil by peaceful means, by passive resistanct, sabotage, propaganda, everything short of murderous war. But now that the die is cast, every ounce of dissension, of non-co-operation, of indecision, among all those of us who hate slavery and the bondage which Hitler and Stalin are trying to impose upon the world, can only help their victory, can only increase the number of their victims.

Only if every one of us throws himself completely into the struggle and is prepared to do his all, can the downfall of these two tyrants be assured with the minimum of loss of innocent lives.

Only then will we be set free again to build whatever form of society we wish, under whatever leadership we choose—always remembering the lesson that Hitler and Stalin have taught us for all time; that gangster methods, torture, murder, arson, falsehood, can never be the agents of social progress that they can lead only to the biggest gangster seizing the machine and enslaving society. Whether we want to build Communism, Socialism or Christian brotherhood, we must always retain some control over our leaders, and they can only be chosen for leaders if they show humanness and kindness, and respect for the sanctity of the individual. If we learn even this much from the experience of the past twenty-five years, if we destroy the leadership of Hitler and Stalin, this war will be worth while and the world may breath again.—(From an article in Toronto "Saturday Night" by a "New Canadian" of German birth.)

Fall is a Cheerful Time

Summer is over and we have autumn with us—the Fall. It is the fall of the leaves that chiefly serves to give us the name, but it is the fall of temperature that brings the reality home to us. The temperature is an uncertain quantity, but when the autumn tinge settles on the leaves, and the migrating birds take wing for the south, we know the northwesters are not far away, and the icy north is preparing to freeze us up. But we have lots of fine and fair and sunny days yet before Christmas need be thought about. The Fall is really a cheerful time and the equinoctial gales that we hear about are rarely as bad as their reputation might suggest. The apple harvest comforts many a heart, and all the other harvest yields are a source of happiness to a prosperous land. Even with a desperate war across the seas, there is no need to curtail our preparations for Thanksgivings as hearty as ever have been held in the past.—Hamilton Spectator.

SONGS OF WAR

War songs are the concomitants of wars. Down through the ages men have marched to conflict to the tune of airs arranged in previous martial times, or composed specifically for the struggle in question. Civilians have kept their spirits up by playing and singing music and words with a military association.

The present conflict is less than a month old. Tunes familiar during the first Great War are becoming familiar once more. And already a new crop of songs is in the making. In London, England, the blackouts as air raid precautions are the inspiration of "Lovelight Makes the Blackout Bright." In a few months we will be whistling new tunes, singing new songs, all because nations are at war in Europe.—Windsor Star.

MORRO CASTLE

Morro Castle, across the harbor from Havanna commands the attention of visitors entering Havana. The word morro in Spanish means headland, the real name of the fort being Castillo de los Tres Aeves, or Castle of the Three Kings. This castle was designed by Don Juan Baustista Antonelli, in 1585, from Moorish plans, and was completed in 1597.

Her eyes followed the figure of her elder niece. "Perhaps—what do you think, Elizabeth? They may make it up, after all."

"Perhaps," Elizabeth said, with an effort.

"It's perfectly vile," Barbara whispered to Elizabeth as they went in to lunch. "I don't think Penelope should have stayed when she found that Kim was here."

"Oh, but why?" Elizabeth asked. "It's—all over—isn't it?"

But in spite of premonitions, lunch passed off very comfortably, and as soon as it was over, Miss Thornley declared they must go on their way.

"I dislike motoring in the country after dark," she said.

Penelope followed Elizabeth to her room before they left.

"Kim looks well," she said in a matter of fact voice, as she was powdering her nose at the mirror. "He has not altered in the least."

"Hasn't he?"

There was a short silence, and again Elizabeth was thinking, "How can she bear it and speak so calmly, how can she!"

Penelope suddenly turned around and there was an odd smile on her lips.

"I know what you're thinking," she said tensely. "You're wondering why I haven't made a scene, aren't you? Thrown myself at his feet—or burst into tears." She made an expressive gesture with her hands and then let them fall. "You can't—" she said, and now it was as if she spoke to herself. "You can't. It's only people who are not—badly hurt—who make scenes."

"Oh, Penelope," Elizabeth said, sorrowfully.

Roy's voice called through the house. "Now then you two girls!"

Penelope started, and picked up her handbag.

"Well, it's nice to have seen you," she said in her usual voice. "I don't think you're looking too fit. I suppose it's a hectic life down here. Are you coming to see us off?"

They went downstairs together, and joined the group at the front door.

"Thank you so much," Miss Thornley was saying. "I feel it's been rather an imposition. Good-bye, Kim. I am glad to have seen you again. Come and see us when—" She broke off in confusion with a quick glance at her elder niece, but Penelope calmly echoed the invitation.

"Yes, do come and see us when you are back in town."

It was just as the car was moving away that she suddenly leaned forward as if to say something she had forgotten or had deliberately left till the last moment, and Elizabeth saw her eyes go to Kim's face with a tragic question before she sank back again. Then in an instant the car was out of sight. Elizabeth would never forget that look.

"Nice of them to have called," Mrs. Selby said. "I always wish I knew your aunt better, Elizabeth."

Roy came up to them frowning.

"The guv'nor wants me to drive him into Bridgelake," he grumbled. "Why can't he drive himself or take the chauffeur?"

"It's Smith's day off," his mother reminded him. "And surely my dear boy, just for once."

"Don't be a bear, darling," Elizabeth said lightly, and when with a growl he followed his mother into the house, she would have gone after him, but Kim Lawless stopped her.

"No, Elizabeth," he said. He was between her and the door, and as she did not speak, he went on. "If you try to run away, I shall prevent you by main force."

She flushed crimson.

"You wouldn't dare," she said in a stifled voice.

He met her eyes calmly.

"Wouldn't I? Try me and see." And then, as her eyes fell, he said casually, "I should like to show you the roses, Miss Challoner, there is one particularly fine bush—"

"Very well," she said, and she turned and went back with him down the steps and across the lawn.

No sunshine now. Grey clouds scudding up from all directions, as if they were in a hurry to keep an appointment, and the leaves of the tall trees were showing their backs as if in eager anticipation of rain.

Elizabeth tried to think of something to say, but her mouth felt dry and her lips cold, though at last she managed to ask:

"Where is Barbara?"

"She has gone over to the Beaseleys' for tennis. I was invited, but I pleaded a headache, and so I am afraid I am not very popular with Barbara at the moment."

They were out of sight of the house now, but when Lawless would have turned towards the sundial, Elizabeth stood still.

"Not that way." As he did not speak, she went on flippantly. "I don't know why you are suddenly behaving as if you were my keeper, and in case you imagine it is my idea of happiness to spend my afternoon with you, let me tell you—"

She broke off with a stifled cry as he caught her wrist in fingers of steel.

"You can stop that, Elizabeth," he said roughly. "You've had it all your own way so far, and now it's my turn, and for a change you are going to do as you are told."

She struggled against him ineffectually.

"Let me go. You're hurting me. Please let me go."

A wave of emotion crossed his face but he did not release her.

"I'm sorry if I hurt you," he said, "but you have hurt me enough during the past few weeks. No, we'll go this way, if you please. My car is close by and, in case we should be interrupted, I think a country drive this glorious afternoon is the wisest thing to do. I hope you agree."

His voice was bitterly sarcastic and Elizabeth broke out furiously:

"I will not go with you. You can't make me—I won't go. How dare you behave like this!"

Lawless glanced over his shoulder, and then, stopping, he abruptly picked her up in his arms.

"Better go quietly," he said.

Elizabeth beat at his shoulders with impotent hands.

"Let me go. How dare you!" Suddenly she relaxed. "I'll never forgive you as long as I live," she said, with the quietness of despair. "If you knew how I hate you—"

"If you knew how I love you," he answered.

She made no more resistance and, when they reached the car, he set her down on her feet, but she did not move until he asked, "Shall I lift you in?"

She looked up at him.

"I'll never forgive you—never," she said again. "And if Roy knew—"

Lawless laughed. "Roy!" he said contemptuously.

Neither of them spoke again until they were some way from the house. Elizabeth sat stiffly beside him, her hands clasped in her lap, her lips tightly pressed together, and presently she said, "I'm not afraid of you. I hope you don't think I am."

"You have no cause to be afraid of me," he answered, and the silence fell once more.

INSTALMENT 29

"Where are we going?" Elizabeth asked when Kim did not break the silence.

Kim did not answer, but presently he turned the car into a little byroad which was overhung with trees and which seemed to lead nowhere, and stopped the engine.

Elizabeth looked at him and tried to laugh, though the quick beating of her heart seemed to be choking her.

"If this is your idea of a country drive," she said lightly.

Lawless was opening his cigarette case.

"Will you have one?"

"No thank you."

"Do you mind if I smoke?"

She answered icily, "Please yourself—as usual."

But though he lit a cigarette, he quickly allowed it to go out and flung it through the window.

"How long are we to stay here admiring the view?" Elizabeth enquired with sarcasm, and he answered:

"Until you have told me what I intend to know before I take you back to the Selbys'."

She made a swift movement as if to open the door, but Lawless said quietly:

"I can run faster than you can."

Another silence until Elizabeth broke out unsteadily: "What will Mrs. Selby think? Please let us go back—oh, please let us go back."

"When you have told me what I want to know."

She gathered her failing courage and laughed.

"Then we shall stay here till tomorrow morning."

"I shall be quite content," he answered.

It was so quiet everywhere, as if they had outrun the world. From above the thick hedges, Elizabeth could see a crooked line of grey hills topped with clouds, and the skeleton of a deserted windmill raising jagged broken arms to the sky.

Presently it began to rain. Patter, patter, softly went the raindrops everywhere, and she watched them bouncing off the dried leaves with a queer feeling of unreality, and then suddenly she knew that there were tears on her cheeks, difficult tears which had for many weeks been denied. She turned her face away, but not before Lawless had seen them, and presently he said gently, "I am waiting, Elizabeth."

"You can wait—forever," she answered brokenly, and then she felt his hands on her shoulders, forcing her to turn to him.

"What has Penelope told you?" he asked hoarsely, but she would not answer, and he took his hands away.

"I can wait," he said again, but there was a line of pain around his mouth as he saw her furtively wiping her tears away. It was raining heavily now and the world was growing dusk before Elizabeth spoke again.

"Mr. Lawless—please take me home. This can't do any good to either of us—you know it can't—and when the Selbys know—"

"I have no objection to the whole world knowing."

A passionate anger rose in Elizabeth's heart, a longing to hurt him—to make him angry—anything, if only she could rouse him from this calm determination. The desire seemed to seethe and grow until her whole body felt as if it were on fire and, at last, unable to control herself any longer, she broke out passionately.

"I think—after all—Penelope was lucky when you threw her over. If she knew you as well as I do—"

"She probably knew me better," he said evenly. "And as I am determined that today we shall be strictly honest with each other, Elizabeth, allow me to correct the statement that I threw Penelope over. I did nothing of the kind."

She turned her distressed face to him.

"That is not the truth," she answered sharply. "Penelope told me—"

She stopped, realizing that Penelope had told her nothing except the one tragic fact of her marriage.

"Penelope told you—" Lawless said questioningly.

She made a little gesture of weariness.

"What does it matter? I don't care what happened. It is nothing to me."

There was a little silence before he said with great deliberation: "Nothing to do with you except that I hope—and I believe you love me as dearly as I love you, Elizabeth."

She tried to laugh in scorn, but she wept instead with her face hidden in her shaking hands.

Lawless sat very still, his hands clenched on the driving wheel until at last, unable to bear it any longer, he turned and drew her into his arms.

At first she tried to resist, but she was too emotionally spent, and she just lay still with her face hidden against his shoulders. Her sobbing had died piteously away before Lawless spoke.

"I have never betrayed a trust in my life, Elizabeth, until now. But—it seems—quixotic madness—to risk my happiness and perhaps yours for the sake of a promise which should never have been made. I don't know what you have been told, but this is the truth about my engagement to your sister. When I first met your sister, there was nothing more between us than just an ordinary acquaintanceship—friendship. I liked her, and I suppose she liked me. At any rate, we went about a good deal together. I think I realized that she was different from other girls—more emotional and perhaps moody, too! It was almost as if there were something in her life which she was trying to hide—and to forget. We knew each other for some months before—

"Well, I had called at the house one day to take her out. I forget where we were going. I found her in tears. She would not tell me what was the matter, only that she was lonely, and—and—I suppose I can't hope to make you understand how it came about—another man would undertsand— I asked her to marry me and we were engaged."

He was silent for a moment, as if looking back on a memory which was not a happy memory.

"Our engagement lasted for a few months—and I hope you will not misunderstand when I tell you that before the end of the first week I knew it was a mistake. We quarrelled badly, and at last I tried to tell her—but we patched things up and our wedding day was arranged and then I got an anonymous letter. I loathe anonymous letters, but this—for one thing it read truthfully, and for another—perhaps I was glad of some—loophole— excuse. At any rate, the letter said that she—Penelope, was already married."

Elizabeth gave a little broken exclamation, but Lawless went on steadily.

"I showed her the letter and—after denying it—she broke down, and admitted it was the truth. Some man—when she had only just left school, apparently they only lived together for—well, just at week-ends, when it could be safely arranged—and then, I suppose

Weddings

CAVERLY—COLDEN

Christ Church was the scene of a pretty wedding on Wednesday afternoon, September 27, at 3 p.m. when Dorothy Colden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Colden, Boswell Street, became the bride of Carmen Allen Caverly, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Caverly, John St., this city. The ceremony was performed by Rev. G. G. Wright.

The bride wore a becoming frock of sky blue with navy and cream accessories and a corsage of Tea roses.

Miss Marion Orr of Trenton, as bridesmaid wore a dusky rose suit with blue accessories and wore a corsage of white roses.

Mr. W. H. Campbell was groomsman.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Caverly will take up residence in Belleville.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Thanks For Shower

Dear Mrs. Beeckman

1—After attending a shower I have always thought how much nicer it would be if the person wrote a thank-you-letter to each girl, even after thanking the person personally for her gift.

Now I have just had a stork shower given to me, and if you concur with my idea, will you please give me a few ideas as to the remarks to make after the actual words of thanks?

2—Would it be proper for me to use correspondence cards for my thank-you notes, or would this white, double-sheeted paper, with my initial, be better?

Reader

1—Indeed I do agree with your idea of writing notes of thanks to these kind kivers-of-gifts at your stork shower . . . as I have said many times, and most enthusiastically, in my column.

In your notes, chat informally about the gift, its beauty, its usefulness, and thank for your friend's thoughtfulness and generosity. And don't forget to mention the gift definitely. . . . not just refer to it vaguely as "your gift".

2—I am not enthusiastic about using correspondence-cards for these notes. The space on these cards appears cramped . . . .and this gives the impression that the number of words you use is limited by the abbreviated size of the card.

The letter-paper on which you wrote to me would be in good taste for these notes of thanks.

Name on Mail Box

Dear Mrs. Beeckman

When a young married couple living in an apartment house wish to place their name on the door and mail box, which is the proper form to use Mr. and Mrs. James Black or James Black?

Reader

Usually it is the name of the man of the house only that is used on these cards . . . .just as it is usually his name that is used for listings in the telephone book and so forth.

Personal Pronoun

Dear Mrs. Beeckman

I would like to know if it is incorrect to commence a letter with the pronoun "I".

T.

In the old days there was a suggestion that it was not correct to begin a letter with "I", but, since this suggestion didn't have very much sense, it has fallen into the discard.

I can see no real reason why we shouldn't begin a letter with "I", since it is correct for us to begin conversation that way, and since it is a perfectly natural way of beginning a letter.

Lump Sugar

Dear Mrs. Beeckman

When lump sugar is served and there are no sugar tongs provided, is it permissible to pick up the lump of sugar with your fingers, or should a teaspoon be used?

Gertrude

It is permissible to pick up the lump of sugar in your fingers, if no tongs are provided. When we do this we should try not to touch any of the other lumps of sugar. If you wish to be extra-punctilious, you may use a teaspoon.

Tip For Waiter

Dear Mrs. Beeckman

When a person dines at a restaurant where the check and money are given to the cashier, is that person supposed to leave a tip, and if so, where?

S.

Yes, the fact that payment of the restaurant check is made at the cashier's desk, rather than to the waiter at the table, does not mean that we do not tip the waiter. The tip for the waiter is either given directly to the waiter, or left on the table.

The Stars Say—

For Saturday, September 30

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

A FAIRLY deep-seated and drastic upheaval may mark this day, judging by the lunar aspects. There may be a tendency to rush recklessly into some untried situation, which would but heighten the disastrous culmination of the matter. If such energy and indomitable will were directed toward the breaking-up of a crystalised or stagnant state of affairs, there would be more advantage in the effort. This is shown by a friendly Jupiter force—expansive, warming, progressive and promising. Grasp it.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves suddenly precipitated into a muddle of fruitless circumstances which are exaggerated by impetuosity and strife. With the enterprise and aggressiveness directed to breaking up static and frustrating situations, there might be much progress especially through the friendly support of a powerful and generous friend.

A child born on this day may be energetic, bold, industrious and capable, with much practical, constructive ability. But it may become impulsive and wayward unless given early training and discipline.

Consistency in Face Care

By HELEN FOLLETT

INCONSISTENT is the girl who washes her face with extreme care, using an expensive and luxuriant soap, rinsing, drying and creaming, and then messes up the facial premises with a powder pad that has seen cleaner days. Just dumb, that's what it is.

Miss Smartie will purchase her pads by the half dozen so she can be extravagant with them. She will also provide herself with a featherweight container that is adaptable for home or purse use. Some containers are dust proof and, as they are also leakproof, a little powder can be kept in them.

About the best mean sof collecting blackheads and causing eruptions to spread and multiply is to use a soiled lamb's wool pad. Keep in mind that it is only after the facial tubbing that the skin surface is free of atmospheric dust it keeps picking it up all the time.

LINDA DARNELL

Knows danger of using soiled powder pads

One of the blessings of the age is the permanent wave. Time was when a woman wrestled with a curling iron for half an hour, got caught in a rainstorm, tagged around with a head of stringy ragtags and bob-tails. When the first permanents were given, much agony was endured and the result was—frizzy floormop.

Now there are many methods. All are good and there is almost no discomfort. The heating period has been reduced to a few minutes. The croquignole is an improvement on the old methods of spiral winding because it insures ringleted ends. If the work is done skillfully, there should be a perfect undulation much like that of the marcel. Everything depends upon tight even winding.

If any coloring agent has been used, the cash-customer should make a full confession to the operator. Dyeing with some agents does not interfere with the hard-boiled treatment. With other dyes it is not safe; the hair may take on weird colors or the shafts may be weakened. When tresses have been overbleached, they are disqualified. No hard-boiled wave for them.

HOW BEARDED MEN MAY WEAR GAS MASKS

London, Sept. 28—(CP)—From Cornwall, which has not known the hand of an invader since the days of the Phoenicians, came this homey gas mask hint today in a letter to the Times:—

"May I put forward a suggestion for the comfort of those bearded men who do not wish to lose their desirable adornment?

"Four curling pins may be bought at the stores and the beard tightly rolled up in these and tucked under the chin. The gas mask is then drawn over the face, beard and all, and is perfectly airtight.

"This discovery has been the means of preserving my husband's magnificent beard and I submit it to you in the hope that it may save others.

"I am, sir, your obedient servant,
"Peggy Pollard, The Ropewalk, Saint Mawes, Cornwall."

Fashion Flashes

Topping her black dresses, one woman wears a tiny hat of black velvet with rose and rust colored ostrich feathers twisted into a tall upstanding feather fancy posed at the front of the hat.

An early arrival, according to the stores, will be the fur hat to wear with matching fur jacket. With a beaver bolero, one woman will wear a cap of beaver with a pompom of clipped ostrich in light brows, and two gilt pins.

Here to stay is the cloth coat luxuriously trimmed with good silver fox, many women preferring this type of garment to an ordinary all-fur coat. A beauty has the fox applied to stimulate a bolero, while another model has a big collar and wide hip panniers of the silvery pelt. A sailor collar of the fur with matching muff is another favored style.

You will see that many of the new coats go in for back fullness. A model in black woolen has the back fullness beneath a waist-deep U-shape yoke. A mink capelet adds fullness to the shoulders.

Advice to the Lovelorn

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage.

Her Parents Object

Dear Miss Fairfax

Finally I've met the man I had hoped to meet for ages. It seems as if he were waiting also, because he made a date right away, or asked me for one. But I had to refuse him because I have that kind of parents. When a girl can't accept a date she's just a "flat tire". Since then he has invited me out twice, but I have had to refuse him each time. Now I avoid him, which is a tough break for me. He's a fine upright young man, and I don't see why I can't have him over.

N. O.

Age may have something to do with your parents' refusal to allow you to have a boy friend. If you are 14 years of age, I must say your parents have something to say about letting you make dates, but if you are 17 or 18, I think it's too bad that you are not allowed to bring young men to the house to call.

As I have said many times in this column, and will probably say many times more, I think it's a great mistake for parents not to know their sons' and daughters' friends.

Why Are Some Girls Not Popular?

Dear Miss Fairfax

We are two girls in high school, in our last year. Something is troubling us and we've come to you for advice. Why is it that some girls are popular and we are not? We meet a lot of nice boys; they speak to us politely, are very nice to us, but never ask for a date. We dress well, and are always neat in appearance. Both of us play tennis, swim, dance and take part in almost any kind of outdoor sports, but still we don't seem to get dates.

There are two girls in our school, who just come to our minds, and they smoke, even drink occasionally, use too much makeup, and their way of dressing isn't exactly proper. And we've heard they pet to the limit. They get all the breaks with the men, have dates almost every day of the week, and we girls, not inclined to do such things, never get a chance to go with boys. We are both 16 years of age. Do you think we are too young to associate with boys or men?

High School-ers

At your age you still have plenty of time to acquire some of the technique of popularity. You are, perhaps, so conscious of not making good that it reacts on your circle of friends. They feel the strain—your sense of failure — and they leave you and go to girls who are easier in their manner and less self-conscious. As for girls who pet, you've seen a lovely peach fall from a tree and a dozen bees, wasps, blue-flies and ants cluster around and enjoy its sweetness. Well, that peach has had its day.

Can't Find a Loyal Woman

Dear Miss Fairfax

I've been a married man, and have also had plenty of experience since our ship of matrimony went on the rocks. I believe in being loyal to one woman, and am naturally honest. But I seem to be one of those men who has never been able to find a woman upon whom I can depend. Is there really such a woman, with fairly good looks, who could be true to one man? I'd surely like to meet one who isn't too old, fat or ugly, and who would be capable of fidelity in return for love and kindness. I'm afraid to take another chance, but I so much want a wife and a home and children. But I can't stand for disloyalty. I'm 36 years.

Unfortunate

I can't understand why it is that your acquaintance with women has proved so universally unfortunate. From my experience in running this column for many years, it seems to be the other way around — that women, more than men, have a monopoly on the homely virtues. I hope, however, that your luck will turn, and that you will meet the right woman before long, and that she will be worthy of your love.

CLERGYMAN REACHES MADEIRA ISLANDS IN SAILING CRAFT

Toronto, Sept. 28 (CP)—Word has been received here that Rev. (Capt.) John C. Antle, 73-year-old British Columbia clergyman who set out from London, in a 12-metre sailing craft on a transatlantic voyage, has reached Madeira, about 500 miles southwest of Lisbon.

The veteran churchman and navigator reported in a letter to Church of England Missionary headquarters here that he left England late in August and it was not until he arrived at the Portuguese island Sept. 7 that he learned of the war. With his crew of one, an English youth he engaged at Plymouth where he purchased the boat, he called at Lisbon en route to Madeira.

The long journey through dangerous waters was made without incident but on the advice of the British consulate at Madeira.

FIRST DIVISION

Great Care Taken

"Great care has been taken in the mobilization of the Canadian active service force to ensure equitable distribution throughout the Dominion so as to give reasonably equal representation to every part of Canada on a basis of population. Thus the desires and aspirations of each province have not been overlooked."

The plan of creating the force from complete militia units differs from that followed in 1914 when new units were created from personnel of existing militia units and newly recruited men. Mr. Rogers said the use of the existing militia units as the basis for the active service force made it possible to mobilize smoothly and without confusion.

Long View Taken

While members of some units not called upon to mobilize might be disappointed a long view of the situation should be taken. The course adopted conserved the resources of the militia to the utmost.

The minister gave no details of the actual organization of the division but it will probably follow the pattern of the first Great War when a division consisted of about 16,000 men and the following units: One cavalry squadron; three brigades of artillery each containing four batteries; one heavy artillery battery; three companies of engineers; one signalling company; three infantry brigades, each containing four battalions; three field ambulances.

Statement Issued

Mr. Rogers issued the following statement: (600)

The Canadian active service force which is now under arms includes a reserve force of two divisions with a quota of ancillary troops. From this force one division will be sent overseas when required and a second division will be kept under arms as a further measure of preparedness.

Arrangements are also being made to send abroad certain technical units from the ancillary troops which have been mobilized. It is proposed that these will eventually form part of the overseas force. The actual units to be sent will depend on discussions now in progress with the British government.

Great care has been taken in the mobilization of the C.A.S.F. to ensure equitable distribution thruout the Dominion so as to give reasonably equal representation to every part of Canada on a basis of population. Thus the desires and aspirations of each province have not been overlooked. Consideration had to be given to the following alternatives:

(A) To follow the procedure adopted in 1914 when the existing structure of militia units was largely disregarded and entirely new units were formed from personnel of the then existing militia and newly mobilised men.

(B) To base the C.A.E.F. on the maintenance of the integral existing units of the militia. This is what has been done now.

Disadvantages Evident

While the adoption of the first course would have given every militia unit an opportunity to participate immediately in the initial mobilization, certain disadvantages were evident. In the last war the procedure adopted was followed by the haphazard organization of many battalions. Many of the units, upon reaching England, had to be broken up to provide reinforcements for units already in the field. In the infantry alone, some 200 battalions were disbanded in this way, causing much heartburning and discontent. The effect was that Territorial Associations were disregarded to a great extent. Further, this procedure disrupted the existing militia organization, with the result that the militia units were of comparatively small value to the country throughout the war, having been denuded to a great extent of their officer and N.C.O. personnel through voluntary enlistment.

Long View Taken

The decision was therefore taken to create the C.A.S.F. from complete militia units. Undoubtedly keen disappointment has been felt by the officers and men of many splendid regiments and other corps which have not yet been called upon to mobilize but a long view of the situation must be taken. The plan which has been followed has enabled the mobilization of the C.A.S.F. to be carried out smoothly and without confusion, since it was based on units whose organization existed in peace and did not require to be hastily improvised. Units were enabled to make preliminary plans in peace, thus making possible a large measure of decentralization of authority when the emergency arose. Problems of administration have been made much easier to solve; for example the documentation of the force, and the keeping of its records, has been greatly simplified. But particularly has it to be emphasized that the course adopted has conserved the organized resources of the militia to the utmost.

Equitable Distribution

The principle of equitable distribution and of representation for all parts of Canada which guided mobilizing of the C.A.S.F. has been applied in the organization of the first division for overseas service.

The general plan which the military authorities have put into effect is one that has already been explained to the public. It is the product of lengthy and careful study. It provided for immediate mobilization, in emergency, of rather less than half of the units of the militia in order to give effect to the following defensive measures:—

1. The maintaining of all our coastal defences, together with the raising to full establishment, as quickly as possible, of the units required for that duty.

2. The guarding of certain vulnerable points whose security is essential to the defence of Canada.

3. The mobilization of a reserve force of two divisions, with a suitable quota of ancillary troops.

Immediately Available

Collectively, all of these forces are termed the Canadian Active Service Force.

The primary motive underlying the mobilization of the reserve of two divisions and their ancillary troops was to create a force which would be immediately available for action anywhere in Canada should the necessity arise. The mobilization plan, however, was built within a framework that was designed to serve as a means of providing a force for service abroad if, in the light of all the circumstances, the decision was reached so to do.

That decision having been announced! The course now pursued is in accordance with what has been set forth in this statement. The list of units comprising the overseas division will be issued in another statement.

DEFENCE CHIEFS HOLD CONFERENCE

Some New Developments in Canada's War Plans May be Possibility

Ottawa, Sept. 29 (CP)—Possibility that some new developments in Canada's war plans both military and economic might be imminent was seen in the announcement last night, following cabinet council, that a long conference had taken place Thursday of those primarily responsible for defence and supplies.

There was no announcement respecting what was discussed in council in the afternoon but the government spokesman said Prime Minister Mackenzie King had held a three-hour conference, preceding council, with the defence sub-committee of cabinet, departmental experts and defence branch chiefs, and with offices of the War Supply Board.

Organization for War, Supplies

It was intimated the conference had to do with new and important stages in organization for war and for supplying the allies.

Those who gathered with the Prime Minister in his east block office included Defence Minister Rogers, Finance Minister Ralston, Justice Minister Lapointe, Postmaster General Power, Resources Minister Crerar and Hon. Raoul Dandurand, government leader in the Senate and Minister Without Portfolio.

These ministers constitute the defence sub-committee and they had as advisers at the conference departmental experts and chiefs of the military, air and naval branches of the defence department. After the conference had been in session for some time, those present were joined by Wallace R. Campbell and R. C. Vaughan, chairman and vice-chairman of the War Supply Board now in process of organization.

No Details Given

The cabinet press liaison officer said he had no details of the discussions which took place and that there would be no immediate announcement but that results of the conference might be reflected in press statements later this week.

The cabinet was divided into several sub-committees early in the conflict each charged with studying and making recommendations on a particular aspect of the Dominion's war responsibilities, such as defence, internal security, censorship and publicity.

It was assumed Thursday's conference was to co-ordinate the armed forces program with the all important task of those charged with responsibility of organizing supplies not only for the field operations by Canadians but for the British and French as well.

COLLEGIATE NEWS

Red Cross Club.

Early last week the Red Cross Club held its organization meeting for the year 1939-40 in room 218 under the leadership of Miss Dwyer. We are expecting a very busy year, and plans for war work are already under way. A number of the girls have been knitting all summer, so we already have a good start on our year's work. The Red Cross is sponsoring a class in Home Nursing to be held in the school during the winter, and the majority of the members have decided to take advantage of the opportunity to learn a little practical nursing. Wool was assigned to the more energetic members of the club.—P. B.

Girl's Athletic Society.

On Tuesday at 4 p. m. the Girl's Athletic Society held its first meeting of the school year. On Monday its officials were elected by ballot by the girls in the school. The newly-elected executives include:—

Honorary President — Miss Saunders.
President—Jean Archibald.
Secretary—Helen Scott.
Treasurer—Jean Sherry.

All the grades are represented and there are directors for the various sports such as volleyball, softball, track and field and basketball. The undersigned was fortunate—or should I say unfortunate enough (?)—to be elected the Society's reporter.

Miss Allison will continue to give aid and advice, we hope.

The Society intends to sell school colors to those who desire them, as they did last year.

Our annual field day will, it seems, pop unexpectedly out of the blue any time in the near future, perhaps on Friday, September the twenty-ninth.

The club will meet regularly on every second Monday and from the plans discussed at this meeting, we are going to have a very full year. —M. E. C.

The Stamp Club.

The Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational Philatelic Society (or to those who can't master such a mouthful—The Stamp Club) held its first meeting on Friday, September the twenty-second.

The President of this worthy club, who had broad dreams of a boardroom overflowing with members and a complete complement of officials came to earth with a bang—and what a bang!—when only a few of the vast number of stamp-collectors throughout the school turned up. She is still weeping bucketfuls of tears in her disappointment.

As only fifteen members were present, the election of officers, which was to take place, was postponed until the next meeting.

We hope that at the next meeting, the president's dreams of an overflowing boardroom are fulfilled.—M. E. C.

Thursday morning at Assembly, Jack Zufelt directed the band in words and music (adapted from an old polka) of a proposed school song. Instruments, except for one or two to lead, were dropped, and manly voices were upraised in the following song:

Strive on to victory—
We'll make the grade or die!
Strive on to victory—
Fight for the old B. C. I.
Rah, rah, rah! Let's sing it!
Shout out a cry of good cheer!
Now's the time to show some spirit,
For the gang's all here.

Other songs are being considered for the official song. If you think you have a better one, hand it in.—R. W.

Russ Collins, Veteran Second Sacker, Named Leading Batter Of Belleville Baseball Team

Collins Leads 'Orfuns' With Amazing Batting Average of .493 During League Play

TEAM BATS .255

Collins Gets National Billiard Cup as Only Three Regulars Hit Over .300 for Locals

Russell Collins, veteran second baseman of the Belleville "Orfuns" in the Bay of Quinte Baseball League, was the club's leading batter during the regular Bay of Quinte League schedule for the 1939 season. Collins finished the league with an individual batting average of .493, the best batting average attained by a Belleville ball player in many years.

As a team, the "Orfuns" batted slightly higher than they did last year, the club's 1939 batting average being .255. However, of their regular team the locals only boasted of three batters to finish in the covetted .300 class. The three leading regulars being Collins .493; Weeks .373 and McQuaid who batted one out of three for an average of .333. Weeks and Collins were with the Belleville nine in 1938, while McQuaid was playing his first year in the intermediate O.B.A. ranks.

Helped in Play-offs

In the league and provincial playdowns, however, both Lorne Jarrell and Jack Empson hit well for the Belleville team, but during the regular season these two players did not participate in sufficient games to be considered regulars during the playing season.

Coach Bud Wilkins used a total of 23 players during the 1939 Quinte loop season, of these five were used as pitchers at one time or another. Chuck Barriage, who joined the local team late in the season, finished as the club's leading pitcher with three wins and no defeats to his credit.

Throughout the league schedule Belleville had a total of 616 official men at bat, they scored a total of 87 runs in 16 league games and counted 157 hits, for a team batting average of .255.

Collins Wins Trophy

To Russ Collins, for being the club's leading hitter, goes the National Billiard Parlour trophy, given each year to the Belleville baseball player having the best season's batting average. In 1938 the trophy was won by Jack Empson.

The individual batting averages of the Belleville team for 1939 were:

CINCINNATI REDS CINCH PENNANT BY TAKING CARDS

Paul Derringer Strikes Out Two in Ninth on Six Pitched Balls

SCORE IS 5-3

By JOHN FRYE

Associated Press Sports Writer

Cincinnati, Sept. 29—(AP)—No longer do they sigh, "Remember when......?".

No longer do they yearn for Pat Moran; for Sallee, Groh, Bressler, Kopf.

Gone are the lonesome years of being kicked from back bay to the shores of Lake Michigan.

Hail to the champions and write these names large—Werber, Frey Goodman, McCormick, Lombardi, Craft, Berger, Myers. Write these names in gold—Derringer, Walters. And write this in letters of fire—McKechnie.

Hail to Champions

Hail to the champions and salute St. Louis Cardinals, who gave nothing and, by a 5-3 score, stepped out of the National League pennant race as game a club as ever fought its way through a season and lost only when it met a team and a man who wanted victory the worst way and got it the best—taking the breaks.

They won as more than 17,000 people alternately lived and died in the gathering shadows of yesterday's afternoon. They won as Paul Derringer fought back a tide of St. Louis basehits big enough to win any two ball games this season.

Cards Secure 14 Hits

This man from Kentucky, who always gives four to five times as many hits as runs, saw 14 balls go singing past his ears and saw three more Cardinals get on base on errors by Billy Myers. He walked Johnny Mize (on purpose) once.

There was that seventh inning, when the Cards got four whole hits with nothing to show for the trouble but improved batting averages. And when the game was over, no matter how you held the box score, the St. Louis runs added only to three.

With baseball history depending on every sweep of his arm, he struck out two of the heaviest sluggers in the league, Joe Medwick and Johnny Mize, on six pitched balls in the ninth to end the ball game.

STRATFORD NATS BEAT DANFORTHS IN FIRST GAME

Eddie Bush Ace-in-Hole for Aces Drops Opener by 6-4

CHATHAM WINS

Windy Wilton, Junior Hurler, Pitches 22nd Victory of the Season

(By The Canadian Press)

Stratford Nats had about all the edge a baseball team could wish for as they waited today to resume their best-of-five series with Toronto Danforth Aces for the Ontario senior title—a title now held by the Intercounty champions.

Nats defeated the Toronto team on its own grounds in the series opener yesterday, winning 6-4. And in doing so, beat the Aces' top-ranking hurler, Eddie Bush.

The smooth-working righthander, an ace-in-the-hole for the Aces all year, stopped Niagara Falls cold after the Cataract team won first of the semi-finals. So his defeat yesterday is bound to have repercussions, if only psychologically.

In other games yesterday Guelph juniors opened their title series with Chatham with a 9-4 victory and Stanley Park of Toronto gained the juvenile finals with a 7-3 triumph over Hamilton at Toronto. The junior game at Chatham was just another victory for Windy Wilton who has won 22 games this year.

Shared Hurling Honors

Carter Kerslake and Earl (the Schoolmaster) Craig shared honors in the Stratford victory. Kerslake held the Aces to five hits and three runs in seven innings and Craig did a fine relief job in the last two innings.

Nats got all their runs from Bush in the 5 2-3 innings he worked. His teammate, Eddie Geraldi, was the chief swatsmith of the contest. The Toronto shortstop hit three for four, two of which were triples.

The teams play in Stratford in the second game Saturday.

Ten errors were marked up in the Guelph-Chatham contest, each team making five. The Chatham miscues were more costly, however. Southpaw Bobby Grant struck out 16 of the Guelph players but yielded 11 walks. Wilton walked four and whiffed nine.

Stanley Park rallied to take the measure of the Hamilton nine. The visitors scored three in the second to take a one-run lead only to have the Parkers bag three in the fourth and two in the sixth to clinch the verdict. Chatham will be the Toronto team's opponent in the finals.

JOEY ARCHIBALD STILL CHAMPION

Featherweight Title Holder Awarded Decision Over Harry Jeffra

Washington, Sept. 29 (AP)—Joey Archibald is still the featherweight boxing champion, but the howl of of protest which started when he was awarded a decision over Harry Jeffra of Baltimore continued unabated today.

Fight fans greeted the 2-to-1 verdict last night with boos and catcalls. They hurled newspapers at the ring and then hooted the officials.

Referee Benny Leonard voted for Archibald at the end of the 15-round bout, as did, Judge Frank Schuyler. Judge O. U. Singer cast his ballot for the challenger.

The fight was close all the way. Neither man was floored. Jeffra forced the champion to break ground repeatedly with his sharpshooting to the head and body and shook him up with stiff shots to the chin. Archibald's jumping tactics were ineffective, but he rocked Jeffra twice with hard rights to the head.

Archibald, who is from Pawtucket, R.I., weighed 124 3-4, and Jeffra scaled a half pound less.

PICARD LEADING MONEY WINNER

P. G. A. Champion Also Holds 5-Point Margin for Memorial Award

Boston, Sept. 29—(AP)— Henry Picard, the P. G. A. champion, has a five-point margin over open titlist Byron Nelson for the Harry Vardon Memorial Award, according to final results of the summer tournament campaign compiled today by Fred Corcoran, the P.G.A.'s tournament manager.

Picard has piled up a total of 459 points since Jan. 1, but, Corcoran pointed out, there were too many fall tournaments on the list to count Nelson out of the running for the honor won last year by slammin' Sam Snead, who now ranks fifth, behind Ralph Guldahl, recent two-time Open winner, and Dick Metz of Chicago.

Picard also is the leading money winner of the year, for he has collected $10,202 out of the $150,000 prize money that has been at stake in the 28 tournaments decided since Jan. 1. Guldahl has won $9,377, Metz $8,600, Nelson $8,386, Snead $7,212 and Harold (Jug) McSpaden of Winchester, the Canadian Open Champ, ranks sixth on the list with $5,554. Snead set an all-time high last year when he collected winnings of $19,600.

COLONELS GAIN SECOND VICTORY

Misjudged Fly in Ninth Gives Louisville the Game by 3-1

Rochester, Sept. 29—(AP)—Three straight victories in International League turf is the objective of Louisville Colonels, who beat Rochester Red Wings of the International League last night in their second junior world series engagement.

Manager Bill Burwell will bank on young Woody Rich to achieve it when the clubs meet tonight. Opposing will be Rochester's promising rookie, Herschel Lyons.

Paul Campbell's home run in the ninth on a misjudged fly ball gave the Colonels and Big Jim Weaver a 3-1 verdict over Si Johnson in last night's pitching duel. Until the ninth Johnson allowed but one hit, Fred Singleton's fifth-inning single, and held a 1-0 lead as a result of two errors by Sherlock and a walk in the first.

But Fabian Gaffke pinched-hit for Weaver to open the ninth and beat out a single off George Kurowski's glove at third. Campbell then rammed a towering fly to deep left. Jim Asbell "broke in" on the hit, then slipped on the wet grass as he turned to go back for it and the ball rolled to the fence as Gaffke and Campbell circled the bases.

Two more singles, boosting the Colonels' total against Johnson to five, a walk, a fielder's choice and an infield out added another run before the side was retired.

Johnson struck out four and walked two, while Weaver, the winning pitcher, fanned six and issued the same number of passes. He gave but four blows and stranded 10 men. Fred Shafter pitched the ninth and retired the Wings in order.

After tonight's game, the teams will leave by special train for Louisville, resuming the four-of-seven series there.

TIGERS GET PLAYER

Hamilton, Ont, Sept. 29—(CP)—George Ward, six-feet, two-inch snapback with Royal Military College of the Intermediate Intercollegiate Rugby Union the past four years, turned out with Hamilton Tigers of the Interprovincial Senior Union yesterday and may perform in an exhibition game here Saturday against Sarnia Imperials.

YANKEE OUTFIELD AS UNIT COVERS REDS' GARDENERS

Joe DiMaggio in Class by Himself at Centre Field Post

HITTING .385

Ival Goodman is Trump Card McKechnie Will Have to Play

(By Sid Feder Associated Press Sports Writer).

New York, Sept. 29 (AP)—In any comparison of the outfields of New York Yankees and Cincinnati Reds, the world's series rivals here next week, one man must be left out—Joe DiMaggio. The great Yankee centre fielder is beyond comparison.

For a long time this season, DiMaggio appeared headed for the first .400 batting average in the big leagues in nearly a decade. The heat on that one is off him now, but his current mark is about .385.

Otherwise, the two outfields balance up nicely. In left field, Twinkletoes George Selkirk, the old rasslin' man from Huntsville, Ont., gives the Yanks a wide edge over either Wally Berger or Al Simmons. Over in right field, where the Yanks rely on Charley Keller, the Reds have a trump in Ival Goodman.

A Better Unit

As a unit, however, the Yanks cover the Reds. They're fielding better, they're hitting near the .325 mark as a group, and they've driven in more than 300 runs for the year, compared to about 190 by the Cincinnati trio.

Yet, when all is said and done, the situation comes back to Joe.

Back last season, the folks in the Bronx, who see the most of him weren't taking kindly to the Frisco kid at all because of his holdout campaign.

Turning to the other outer gardening sections, the Reds' left field collection fits right into the jig saw puzzle started in the infield. Wally Berger, a Boston favorite of some time ago, landed with New York Giants and then shifted to Cincinnati. Of course, you remember Al Simmons, the foot-in-the-bucket belter who was quite a lad with the Athletics back down the years ago.

Al has been kicked around the American League quite a bit these last few seasons, and like all good men when their service runs out in the American League, he landed in the National loop. Now, the story is he has a mad on against his old league, and he'll be out there to do or die for dear old Cincinnati—and a slice of world series money.

Goodyears Will Play in O. H. A. Again This Winter

Toronto, Sept. 29 (CP)—Toronto Goodyears, champions of the Senior "A" Division of the Ontario Hockey Association last winter, will compete again this season, the O.H.A. sub-committee announced at a meeting last night.

Previously Goodyears had intimated they would retire from the O.H.A. but their bids to enter the Michigan-Ontario Amateur League and the Quebec senior circuit failed to materialize.

O.H.A. officials said it was uncertain how many teams would enter the Senior "A" League, which was made up of six teams last year. Teams last season were Toronto, Brantford, Port Colborne, Oshawa, St. Catharines and Niagara Falls.

Whether Port Colborne will have an entry will be determined next Thursday when the town will vote for or against supporting a senior "A" team. Oshawa will not compete this season.

Secretary W. A. Hewitt said it was most unlikely that army teams would function in the senior series since they would not be able to organize in time. Another meeting will be held in Hamilton, Oct. 10.

Goodyears proposed to last night's meeting that as a means of aiding teams in smaller centres to obtain more and better players, the number of players each club could sign be reduced.

It was suggested the rosters be cut to 12 or 14 players, thus releasing the overflow and giving poorer clubs a chance to sign the best players.

In the release of the official batting averages of the Belleville "Orfuns" today it should be borne in mind, that the figures shown elsewhere are for the Bay of Quinte League scheduled games only and do not include play-off games. In all recognized baseball leagues the season's individual batting averages are computed from only the official league games as play-off games are not considered in the regular season's play. The same practice holds good for major league clubs gaining world series posts. As a team the Belleville nine batted somewhat better in 1939 than they did in 1938. This season the locals batted .255 as a team, which is about 35 points below what is usually considered a good team batting average for a league winner. Belleville had 616 batsmen officially at bat, who scored 87 runs and collected a total of 157 hits, for a team batting average of .255. The locals played 16 league games, winning five, tying one and losing ten. Later Belleville replayed the one tie game and won it, but they had already been placed in the league play-offs.

Russ Collins, veteran second baseman of the "Orfuns", was the No. 1 hitter of the Belleville club, Collins slapping the spheriod for the amazing average of .493. Collins played 16 games, was at bat 69 times, scored 12 runs and collected 34 safe hits. In being named the club's leading batter Collins won the National Billiard Parlour trophy, given each year to the leading batter in Belleville baseball. Perhaps the outstanding individual feat accomplished by Collins was during a doubleheader at Picton last July, when the locals split with Roly Rorke's charges. Collins was in rare form that day getting ten hits in 11 official times at bat. In the first game Collins had a perfect average, getting six for six, while in the second game he collected five hits in six tries, which is punishing the apple in any man's league. Taking the play-off games into consideration, Chuck Barriage was the club's leading pitcher with four wins and no defeats. Incidentally Collins left the team at the end of the regular schedule and did not take part in any play-off games.

Only three of the Belleville's regulars hit over the covetted .300 mark, Collins .493, Lefty Weeks .375 and Bill McQuaid .333. The latter player is a first year intermediate. After leaving these three hitters, strangely enough there wasn't a single regular player to hit within the .200 to .300 range on the Belleville team. Among those to play eight or more of the club's 16 games, Riggs with a batting average of .185 followed McQuaid among the regulars. The fact there weren't any .220 to .300 hitters proves the locals were weak on the attack. One feature that might be worth mentioning was Joe Kelleher's no run no hit pitching effort of June 15th against the Flyers. Regardless of the fact that the Airmen were far from potential pennant winners, pitching a no run no hit game is always news in the baseball world. Unfortunately Kelleher never could manage to beat the Flyers afterwards, however. Defensively Belleville booted the ball for 52 errors in 16 games and finishing up with a fielding average of .898, which is also much too low for a potential flag winner.

This lad Joe Maich, who wrestles Rudy Epps in the main bout of tonight's professional wrestling show at the Hume Arena, comes from an athletic and sports-minded family. For instance Joe's older brother Don Maich is a professional fighter of parts and has several ring victories to his credit in Michigan, Ohio, Penn and New York States, as well as around Windsor. Joe's younger brother, Bill Maich, also leans towards amateur boxing, but is also recognized as a star hockey player in his native Brantford. Actually tonight's Maich-Epps bout should be listed as a grudge fight, as Epps gained a rather questionable decision over the former Canadian amateur champion and Maich has been seeking a return bout ever since. However, Belleville grappling fans will really go for the Tiger Daniels-Young Griffins bout, as Daniels is one of those rough-house gents, who asks and gives no quarter while in the ring. Professional wrestling has been as dead as last summer's summer love affair in Belleville of late, but with new faces supplied by a new circuit, wrestling should boom once again in Belleville.

Harold (Pie) Traynor resigned as manager of the Pittsburg Pirates yesterday after having held the job since June 1934. President Wm. Benswanger, of the Pirates, stated "it was with regret" he accepted Traynor's resignation. "Pie" will remain with the Pirates as head of their farm system. In all probability Frankie Frisch, former Cardinal skipper will be named as Traynor's successor, as Frisch is slated to return to the majors as manager in 1940.

Thanks to Paul Derringer's fine pitching, the Cincinnati Reds are 1939 National League champions and they will meet the New York Yankees in baseball's classic, that opens next Wednesday. Derringer was in rare form yesterday, as a matter of fact he had to be as the Cardinals out-hit the Reds, but the Rhinelanders scored 5 runs to the Cardinal's three and naturally won. Derringer struck out two in the ninth to terminate a great day's chore on the mound. It was just 20 years ago, in 1919 that Cincinnati was last represented in the world's series and that terminated in the still-talked of "black-sox" scandal. We doubt if there'll be any scandal after the Yankees go to work next week.

Sport Spice—Winkie Smith, who has been playing hockey in Oshawa for some years, will work out with the Detroit Red Wings this fall... If you see Newt Wilbur smiling today think nothing of it, his Tip Top tailor trundlers won four points at the opening of the Major bowling league last night....Actually Wilbur's quintette was the only team to win four points in the league opener......Despite the fact that nearly all their senior classes will leave for active service soon, the Royal Military College intends to carry on with its conventional sports programme....Stratford beat Toronto Aces in the first game of the senior O.B.A. finals 6-4 yesterday....It was just 20 years ago this week that the old Belleville Grand Trunks disposed of the Toronto Oslers in the senior O.B.A. semi-finals....We were just getting over four years of war then and now we're right back at it again—"Oh! it's a lovely war."

"THE STAR MAKER"

A bright, melodious host of grand old songs, known to oldsters and youngsters alike because they have become increasingly popular through the years, and four songs destined to rank in the hit class, will be sung and danced to in the great new Bing Crosby comedy drama, "The Star Maker" which Paramount will present next at the Belle Theatre.

The old songs are the work of Gus Edwards, the famous showman whose amazing career suggested the story of the picture. Bing will be heard singing such tuneful Edwards' numbers as "School Days", "In My Merry Oldsmobile", "Look Out For Jimmy Valentine", "If I Was a Millionaire", "I Can't Tell Why I Love You But I do", "I Wonder Who's Kissing Her Now", "Tammany" and many others. In several of the numbers, he will be accompanied by outstanding groups of child singers, assembled especially for the picture.

The new songs which Bing will sing in the picture are the work of Johnny Burke and James V. Manaco, ace song writing team. Entitled "Still the Bluebird Sings', "An Apple for the Teacher", "Go Fly a Kite" and "A Man and His Dreams', they already ranks in the hit class. As in the case of the old songs, Bing will have child singers furnishing vocal background.

New Singer and New Song

Linda Ware, who is a discovery of Charles R. Rogers, producer of the picture, renders an "Apple for the Teacher" and other numbers in the picture, too—numbers ranging from the catchy "Darktown Strutters Ball" to Tschaikowsky's "Waltz of the Flowers". According to all reports, her voice has tremendous range, rare quality and great power marking it as one of the most exceptional voices to be heard in years.

Lovers of classical music will not be disappointed in "The Star Maker", for Walter Damrosch, the "grand old man of American music, will be heard conducting The Philharmonic Orchestra of Los Angeles in Beethoven's Symphony. The orchestra, under Damrosch's direction, also accompanies Miss Ware in several of her numbers.

"The Star Maker" which was directed by Roy Del Ruth, tells how Bing, a tin-pan alley song writer and small time hoofer rises to the top in the entertainment world by making stars out of talented children. The cast of the picture also includes Louise Campbell, Ned Sparks, Laura Campbell, Laura Hope Crews, and Janet Waldo. The screen play was written by Frank Butler, Don Hartman and Arthur Caesar. It was based on a story by Arthur Caesar and William A. Pierce, suggested by the career of Gus Edwards.

The popular Belle world news events, Popeye in a funny cartoon "Ghosts is Bunk" and Popular Science in Technicolor will also be exhibited. A thrilling chapter of "The Lone Ranger" will also be presented over the week-end.

"On Borrowed Time"

Heart-warming laughter, homely drama, gripping suspense and youthful romance join to present one of the most unusual and memorable motion pictures ever produced in "On Borrowed Time" now being presented at the Belle with the fun-filled romantic hit "Night Work" featuring Charlie Ruggles, Mary Boland and Denis O'Connor.

RESOURCES BOARD TO BE ORGANIZED

Premier Hepburn Says Leaders Will Add to Personnel

Toronto, Sept. 28—(CP)— Early organization of the "Resources Committee" created by one of the war measures passed at the special session of the Ontario Legislature was promised today by Premier Mitchell Hepburn.

Lieut-Governor Albert Matthews, the Premier and Col. George Drew, Conservative Opposition Leader, form the nucleus of the Committee but Mr. Hepburn indicated that they will proceed almost immediately to add representatives of industry, agriculture and labor to the personnel.

The Premier is communicating with Col. Drew today to make arrangements for the first meeting and for the visit to Ottawa which has been postponed until next week at least.

"We want them to get settled down into their job at Ottawa first so when we go there they can tell us what they want us to do in Ontario," Mr. Hepburn explained.

The Premier called a session of the Ontario Cabinet for tomorrow.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Golden Boy"

"Golden Boy," which is now playing at the McCarthy theatre, is given 100 percent entertainment rating by Canadian Motion Picture Digest and you too when you see this outstanding production will consider it to be the most pleasing film you have seen in a long, long while.

In the title role appears a total newcomer to the screen, William Holden, who will be a new favourite for your star gallery. He is a boy that has looks, personality, a beautiful build, plus dramatic ability, a real find, for Hollywood.

The theme of "Golden Boy" is a fight picture, but it cannot be compared with any previous fight pictures, for it contains elements foreign to any previous film of fistiana. Young Holden plays the role of a young Italian, who has a promising future as a musician. He is persuaded to lay aside the violin for boxing gloves by fight manager Adolphe Menjou and his girl-friend Barbara Stanwyck, defying his father, whose greatest wish is to see the boy a famous violinist. The story from this point is one of the most powerful dramas that has reached the screen and almost to the letter follows the lines of emotion that made it such a tremendous Broadway stage success.

Miss Stanwyck turns in a magnificent performance, as the girl in the case, and Adolphe Menjou has a perfect role as the fight manager. Comedy relief is provided by Sam Leveneas Holden's taxi-driving brother-in-law, and Edward Brophy as Menjou's partner. Lee Cobb, with the aid of clever make-up is a standout as Holden's father. His is a striking performance. Joseph Calleia, one of Hollywood's most popular heavies also turns in a performance that surpasses his "Five Came Back" and "Algiers."

Preceding the presentation of "Golden Boy" the McCarthy theatre programme also includes an excellent "Screen Snapshots" a clever Walt Disney Donald Duck-Mickey Mouse, technicolor cartoon entitled "Good Scouts" and for thrill-lovers another exciting episode of "Mandrake the Magician" featuring Warren Hull.

WOMAN TESTIFIES IN OWN DEFENCE

Mrs. Taylor Says Mrs. Templeton Grabbed Her by Hair Before She Struck Her

London, Ont., Sept. 29 (CP)— The murder trial of Mrs. George Taylor approached a climax today and by nightfall the 50-year-old mother of 11 children is expected to know her fate. Accused of slaying Mrs. Annie Templeton for benefits accruing from the 67-year-old widow's estate, Mrs. Taylor has been on trial since Monday.

Addresses by Crown and defence counsel were heard before adjournment yesterday and when Mr. Justice J. C. Makins delivers his charge at the opening of court today, the case will be given to the jury.

Mrs. Taylor testified three hours in her own defence yesterday. Accused said she liked Mrs. Templeton too much to kill her intentionally.

In recounting the events that preceded the death struggle between the two women, Mrs. Taylor said she and the elderly widow had attended an evening service at a nearby Gospel Hall.

Criticized for Card Playing

On their return to the Taylor home, accused said Mrs. Templeton criticized Mr. Taylor for playing cards with the children.

Later after other members of the family retired, Mrs. Templeton resumed her criticism and followed it up by grabbing her by the hair, Mrs. Taylor said.

Witness said the elder woman then picked up a slab of kindling wood and backed her into a bedroom off the kitchen. In the scuffle that followed, Mrs. Taylor said she got hold of the wood and struck Mrs. Templeton over the head "until she fell limp in my arms."

Struck Head on Stove

Accused said as she tried to carry the unconscious woman into another room she fell from her arms and struck her head on the stove.

A few hours later she dragged Mrs. Templeton's body from the house because she "didn't want the children to see her," and laid it on the curb outside where it was discovered by passersby.

After Mrs. Taylor finished her evidence, two psychiatrists testified that from examinations the woman was not insane but "of borderline intelligence."

Baseball's Old-Timers Show Prowess in Waning Season Hoping for Better Contracts

Waner, Grove, Leonard and Hildebrand on Top of Heap

A THREE-HITTER

Vito Tamulis of Dodgers Quite Sharp in Beating Bees

By JUDSON BAILEY

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

While Cincinnati Reds and St. Louis Cardinals have been busy deciding the National League pennant, some of baseball's old-timers have been occupied in establishing platforms for their 1940 contract negotiations.

Take Paul Waner of Pittsburgh Pirates, who streaked from nowhere in one of the season's most spectacular hitting sprees; take Lefty Robert Moses Grove of Boston Red Sox, Emil (Dutch) Leonard of Washington Senators and Oral Hildebrand of New York Yankees—take 'em, if you can.

The eyes of the world may have been on that classic at Cincinnati—which the Reds won yesterday, 5-3, to clinch the National League pennant—but there were other fish to fry on the baseball front.

For one thing old man Mose—contrary to the legend of song writers—ain't dead. The fellow who has been pitching 15 years with great success in the American League and has been a mainstay of the second-place Boston Red Sox all season won his 15th game yesterday, 4-2, from Washington Senators with a six-hit pitching job.

Leonard Wins 20th Game

For another, Leonard, the knuckleball specialist whose name was never so much as breathed in early season calculations, took the second game of the doubleheader, 6-1, for Washington on a similar six-hit performance. It was his 20th victory of the season.

Oral Hildebrand, discounted as a probable World Series starter for the world champion Yankees, came up with a six-hit hurling chore yesterday to beat Philadelphia Athletics, 8-4, in the first game of a doubleheader. Sam Chapman hit a home run in the ninth to win the second game for the A's 5-4.

Rookie Babe Young hit a two-run homer and later scored the run that won the first game of a bargain bill for New York Giants from Philadelphia Phillies, 4-3. Bill Jurges batted in five runs with a pair of doubes to take the nightcap, 8-3, for the Giants.

Tight Pitching Duel

Boston Bees and Brooklyn Dodgers divided a pair of tight pitching spectacles. Dick Errickson's four-hit work taking the first for the Bees, 3-1, and Lefty Vito Tamulis shutting out Boston in the second, 3-0, on three hits.

At Cincinnati, Derringer gave 14 hits in getting his 25th victory, but the game was so wild anyone could have won. The Reds did, ending pennant speculation.

ITALY HOPES PACT WILL END WAR

Rome, Sept. 29 (CP)—Italian officials said today they hoped the German-Soviet accord would lead Great Britain and France to end their war with Germany. Italy was regarded as among the "friendly powers" which last night's German-Russian declaration said might aid in bringing about a settlement.

TORONTO ARGOS FAIL TO ATTEND PRACTICE DRILLS

Lew Hayman Unhappy About Whole Thing With Opening Near at Hand

EXHIBITION GAMES

Westmounts Playing Ottawa Will be Handicapped Through Injuries

By the Canadian Press

It certainly isn't anything to give a football coach cheer when some of his star players miss drills with the opening of the regular season almost at hand. This is one thing that has Lew Hayman worried these days.

Hayman sent his Toronto Argonauts—champions of Canada through a running, blocking, charging and short scrimmage drill last night. Hayman has been worried most about the continual absence of his backfielders. Two of the regulars, Art West and Red Storey, have attended only one session this week.

McGill Redmen of the Intercollegiate Union were driven through a strenuous signal drill last night in preparation for an exhibition game Saturday at Montreal against Royal Military College of Kingston, Ont. The cadets, although an intermediate team generally can be counted on to provide tough opposition.

Montreal's Ontario Union Westmounts, scheduled to play Ottawa Rough Riders of the Big Four in an exhibition game Saturday at Ottawa, had five players on the sidelines as they went through practice last night.

Ed Burton, lanky outside, and Cliff McClay, a backfielder, are suffering from colds; Jimmy Riddell, a kicker and quarterback, had a twisted ankle; Ray Mullins, another punter, missed the drill because of a stiff neck; and Norm Rettie, regular snapback, is out of action with a torn cartilage in his side.

At London, Ont., coach Bill Storen pared his University of Western Ontario squad to 25 players and turned over the castoffs to the Intermediate team. The Mustangs, preparing for an exhibition against Dundas Intermediates, went through a tackling and signal drill.

Winning Plowmen To Visit Old Land Salada Tea Donates

A new feature of the International Plowing Match which will be held at Brockville this year is the Trans-Atlantic Class, sponsored by Salada Tea Company. As a result of the generous contribution of that company, the Plowmen's Association plans for the first time in its history, to send Canadian representatives overseas to compete in matches in the British Isles. Consequently, much new interest has been aroused among farmers throughout the Province. In addition to the trip and Gold and Silver medals to the two Trans-Atlantic winners, Salada is donating twelve cash prizes for this event totalling $150.00.

Furthermore branches throughout the Province will each have a Salada Special event, the first prize being $10.00 in cash and the right to compete at the subsequent International Match.

A Hole in One

By Daphine A. McVicker

It was one of those parties. Jake had dully suspected it when the boss had asked him, "Why don't you come out of the house this afternoon? My wife and daughter are having a gang of young people."

It sounded simple. But Jake knew with every fibre of his long lazy six feet of weary muscle that it would mean exercise. Tramping a thousand miles over the hills. Romping through the woods. Playing croquet, or tennis, or, worst of all, that armchair hero's dread, golf. There would be girls, but they would not be dressed like girls. They would wear shorts, or pajamas, or trousers. They would be bursting with energy.

Many of Jake's friends insisted that his pose of unspeakable laziness was just a pose. Girls tried to attract his attention only to get a weary look from lazy light brown eyes and to find the next date postponed indefinitely. Men who had known a football playing Jake in school said he was just getting his breath back. Jake had no alibi. He said he was lazy. Simply and wholly lazy.

So he dreaded what he would find when he decked his long legs in appropriate white flannels with a tiny gray stripe and pulled on a blue flannel coat. He peered anxiously out from the cupped depths of his scarlet roadster and sighed with relief. He saw some big hats and long dresses. That was reassuring.

But he had scarcely nodded over his hostess' hand and saluted her tow-headed daughter when a screaming contingent bore down upon him.

"Tennis!" they shouted. "We need another man. Introduce us, Natalie. Bring him on, quickly."

Jake seized Natalie's hand in despair. "No tennis," he implored. "See—I've got a broken leg. I've got two broken legs. Honest I have."

Natalie peered down at them gravely. "Well, so you have!" she exclaimed. "How brave of you to come to my party. And I have just the person to console you. Over here in the wicker chair. She won't stir and I've needed some one to entertain her. Come along." She placed a sustaining arm under Jake's and led him across the green velvet lawn—straght to his doom.

It was a very lovely doom. It sat upright in an hourglass chair. Wide, billowing skirts of some soft violet fabric floated about her and one great, green, crushed velvet flower marked the tininess of her waist. A drooping hat of rough violet straw dipped about hair that was the color of strained honey. And eyes too violet for belief looked up at him from under golden brown lashes.

"Rosemary," Natalie said, "let me present Jake Burns. Jake, this is Rosemary Stewart. Darling, Jake h s two broken legs and he wants comfort and consolation. You said you wouldn't stir out of this chair until sundown, so here he is. Treat him gently."

The violet eyes darted a look at Natalie that was very nearly venomous, and deeply meaning. Then they were lowered before the frank admiration in Jake's for once wide awake brown eyes, and a low, lovely voice spoke.

"How dreadful about your wounds" she said softly. "Won't you pull up a chair and tell me about them?"

The afternoon waned but still the pair sat on—a man and a girl caught in the web that is woven only once—talking, talking. Trying to crowd into one afternoon the confidences of a lifetime.

Natalie came at last and spoke to them pertly. We're getting a couple of Saint Bernards ready," she confided. "What flavor do you like your hot soup—chocolate, or vanilla?"

Rosemary sprang up with a cry. "Heavens," she said. "How perfectly awful! And I had a very important engagement at seven."

Jake rose too, but his eyes held hers. "Very important?" he asked.

She shook her head. "Not so — very."

She would not let him see her home but consented to an engagement for the following afternoon.

The roadster made time of its own and Jake pulled it up before the long low brick house at last, his heart beating in an extraordinary fashion for the heart of a lazy mn. Then his mouth flew open.

She had come down the steps to meet him. She wore a blue skirt buttoned down the front over a shorts suit that framed her face with a sailor collar banded in bright yellow. She wore a blue and yellow knitted toboggan cap—and she carried a bag of golf clubs.

"Hello," she said joyously, and at the sound of her voice Jake's heart stopped completely. When it resumed again it pounded under the bag of clubs that he had seized. It had happened. Tennis—golf. Jake would never be a stranger to them again. The voice and face that he would pursue had set off ahead of his lazy pace and he could do nothing but follow.

"But why," he asked her later, "did you stay in the chair all afternoon?"

She gurgled. "I had a hole in one," she said. And then, laughing at his uncomprehending face, "Don't you know who I am? I'm Tommy Stewart. Nobody ever calls me Rosemary. I've the reputation of being a tomboy, you know. My aunt made me get all dressed up yesterday, and the minute I got to the party, I tore my brand new chiffon heel on that wicker chair. All to smithereens. I didn't dare get up 'till dark/ I couldn't move. I had a hole in one—stocking."

Little Benny's Note Book

I was in the front hall practicing throwing my cap on the hallrack pegs without missing, and pop came in with his doorkey, saying, High there, young man, fancy seeing you here. What the dooce is all this, what's been going on with my umberella? he said.

And he took it out of the stand, saying, If there's one way I like to find my umberella, it's rolled and fastened neetly the way I invaribly leave it. Whoever rolled this thing last must have hands consisting of 14 thumbs, all with a touch of arthritis. And what the dooce anyway, it hasn't rained for 2 weeks. Say, young fellow, I suppose you had something or everything to do with this, didn't you? he said.

Sir? Yes sir, no sir, it was Glasses Magee and Skinny Martin, I warned them but they just wouldn't listen, I said, and pop said, Listen to what? What the mischiff do you mean by letting them have my umberella in the first place? he said.

They didn't actually have it, pop, I really was the one had it, but we were all having air raid defence practice, and Glasses and Skinny were in Skinny's house dropping pebbles out the 2nd story window, and me and Shorty Judge were down on the payment standing under umbrellas for air raid shelters, and Glasses and Skinny started to throw the bombs instead of just dropping them, and I warned them to take it easy but they wouldn't and one of the pebbles must of been sharp, I said, and pop said, Yee gods, the worst is apparently still to come.

And he went to the front steps and opened the umberella and saw the medium size hole, saying, Now isn't that nice. You and your air raids. O well, considering the real damage that's going on in the world, maybe I should be like Mr. Chamberlain of England and say what's one umberella more or less as long as we have our health? he said.

And he rolled it up again as neet as if it didn't have a hole in it, making me feel lucky.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Sept. 29 (CP) — The market hesitated in today's operations on Toronto exchange, to await the result of German peace overtrures. Trading dwindled to 128,000 shares in the first hour. Prices moved downward.

Steels were the weakest of the industrial groups, which were inclined to firm up slightly in early afternoon. Losses were limited to small fractions in the senior base metal list and the cheaper issues showed minor losses. Preston was a strong spot in the golds, advancing to 133.

Western oils fluctuated within a narrow range with Royalite a fraction higher.

Easier Undertone In Butter Prices

Toronto, Sept. 29—An easier undertone developed in butter, while eggs held steady at Toronto yesterday.

Continued quiet trading, that was barely sufficient to establish a market, weakened butter prices slightly, even though offerings were still on the light side. Ontario No. 1 solids to the wholesale trade eased to 27 1-2c per pound. An odd lot of fresh make was reported sold at 27 3-4c, but this was not general.

Poor demand prevailed on the egg market and receipts proved excessive to the amount of trading that appeared. Good quality eggs were reported moving readily in the afternoon session, however. All sections maintained former values.

May Influence Strategy

The German-Soviet agreement on partition of Poland and the possibility of greater co-operation between Moscow and Berlin may influence the Allies' future strategy.

Informed French circles said they expected a German "peace ultimatum" as the result of the agreement. The same circles made it clear they believed France and Great Britain would refuse any such offer.

Indications the French were expecting the war to take bolder turn were seen in repeated warnings through the press that all who were able should leave Paris. Thousands of Parisians returned to the capital last week.

Paris defences now include a balloon barrage. The newspaper Le Matin said the sausage-shaped captive balloons could ride out a 50-mile-an-hour gale at an altitude of more than 30,000 feet. It declared the cables could withstand a 2,640-pound pull each and were "certain death" for colliding air attackers.

Formation Flying

"That day is done. It's going to be formation flying and Heaven help the man who gets lost. They will be flying the best planes we can make and the men will have to be as good as the planes."

The boys get the discipline. They tramp up and down to the orders of an old-line sergeant. They march to games—soccer, rugby and baseball. There is a tremendous emphasis on physical condition.

"It takes a perfectly conditioned man to fly a pursuit plane at 351 miles an hour or read a bomb gauge while anti-aircraft guns spatter the sky," said an officer.

Ready in Year

"They'll know a lot more about aerial warfare when they leave here than some of the top pilots did in the old war," said a sergeant. "But it will be theory. They will get a further test at Flying School Then, maybe in a year, maybe less, they will be ready for it."

Perhaps 40 per cent of the 1,000 will become gunners, pilots, aerial photographers and bombers. The other 60 per cent will go into the less dashing work on the ground.

The boys get everything from psychoanalysis to mild lessons in the conduct expected of an officer and a gentleman. Through all their training, at this school and the flying school, runs the advice: "You're not going to a picnic or a modernized version of the 'Three Musketeers'—you are going to a job that has to be done by highly trained, physically perfect young men."

OBSERVER

A Holland Amerika liner arrived there before us, lights blazing in contrast to the destroyer and an unidentified British freighter, neither of which showed a light.

We noticed pieces of floating wreckage. Was that a man? Yes, there were hundreds of them, shouting at the top of their voices, "Ship ahoy" and "Help."

Their pitiful cries for help, the gentle bump as the lifeless body of a sailor drifted against the sides of our ship, struck deep into our hearts.

Already eight husky members of our crew were out in two boats on the moderate sea, pulling toward the drowning men. The ship's private store of whiskey and cigarettes was looted for the survivors; tea and coffee were made by the women.

Pass by Dozens

It was now completely dark over the sea. One of our boats had picked up thirty-eight men and the four sailors were struggling to pull their shivering, helpless load toward the Collingsworth. The other boat dragged fifteen sailors from Davy Jones and was taking them to a destroyer.

"We had to pass by dozens of men calling feebly for help," one member of the crew said on their return. "One able seaman dragged to our boat his best pal, who could not swim. When we got him aboard we found that his pal was dead. The sailor told us he had been carrying his friend for an hour."

The courage of eighteen men on a liferaft was sustained by the spirit of a 19-year-old aviator, D. J. Cook, who yelled to us: "Go on and get some of the other chaps first."

Shaking with cold, but with a smile of gratitude quivering round their lips, the survivors were brought aboard and their blue skin massaged with alcohol by strong hands.

Some of the survivors were made sick by salt water they swallowed.

Six hours after we hove to over the spot where the carrier sank the survivors trooped off the Collingsworth to the destroyer which drew alongside to collect them.

They all remained steadfast in their fight against Hitlerism. They went back more determined to sacrifice their all.

As the destroyer drew away a single light flickered, "Good bye, good luck, and thanks."

Cook "Got One"

On board the Collingsworth Airman Cook of the Courageous told me: "The last of our planes had just come in. We were feeling particularly satisfied for a night or two before we had lost one of our planes. We had sunk two submarines during the day, and had had five in a few days. I, myself, got one.

"Three German subs we were chasing surrendered. They rose above the surface and allowed us to commandeer them. When one U-boat came up in full sight of us all, men scrambled out of the conning tower and hatches, waving a white flag, hands in air, shouting: 'Kamerad, Kamerad'!"

The following Wednesday Collingsworth's loved chief engineer, Mr. Henry E. Williams, died after a long and painful illness. Doctor and friends advised him to stay in England, not to risk the sea voyage. But he said: "I must get back to America."

But he did not see his native land, and a simple sea burial service was held the following day.

ECONOMIC

Under this bargain with Estonia, Moscow and Tallinn pledged mutual aid in case of "direct aggression or menace of aggression arising on the part of any great European power" against the sea frontiers of Estonia, or through Latvia. The pact will run ten years.

Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop of Germany and Premier-Foreign Commissar Vyacheslaff Molotoff signed their agreement early today in the presence of Joseph Stalin in the Kremlin—36 days after they first startled the rest of Europe with conclusion of a German-Russian non-aggression pact.

Von Ribbentrop left Moscow at 12.40 p.m. (4.40 a.m. E.S.T.) by airplane after receiving Augusto Russo, Italian ambassador to Russia, to give him a text of the agreement.

He also paid a brief visit to the Moscow agricultural exhibition before going to the airport, where an honor guard brass band played and Swastika flags flew.

BERLIN OFFICIALS

"Both governments, therefore, will concentrate their effort, if necessary in co-operation with other friendly powers, toward reaching this goal.

Hold Allies Responsible

"Should, however, the effort of both governments remain unsuccessful, the fact would thereby be established that England and France are responsible for a continuation of the war, in which case the governments of Germany and the U.S.S.R. will consult each other as to necessary measures."

Informed sources here said it was too early to say how Germany and Russia might try to re-establish peace in Europe, whether the Berlin-Moscow agreement forecast proposal of a peace conference to which such neutrals as Italy and the United States might be invited was not yet known, these sources said.

The second part of the accord was called "the German-Soviet Russian border and friendship treaty." It delineated a "mutual frontier" which, the news agency said, was amplified in an attached map and a detailed, supplementary protocol.

"The German Reich's government and the government of the U.S.S.R., after the disintegration of the former Polish state," the foreword to this section said, "regard it as their task to restore peace and order in these territories in order to secure for nationalities, living here peaceful existence according to their national individuality."

Five Articles

It was divided into five articles. They announced agreement on a border, rejected any interference by third powers in the settlement, apportioned the territories west of the line to the German sphere and the territories east of it to the Russian and agreed that the pact—called "a secure foundation for a progressive development of friendly relations' between the German and Russian peoples—would be ratified as soon as possible at Berlin.

The third phase of the treaty, labelled "great German-Soviet Russian economic planning," was in the form of a letter from Molotoff to Von Ribbentrop. It said "the government of the U.S.S.R. on the basis and in the spirit of general political understanding reached between us is willing to develop all economic relations and the exchange of goods between Germany and the U.S.S.R."

It continued:

"For this purpose an economic program will be drawn up by both sides by which the Soviet Union will deliver raw materials to Germany, which Germany on her part will compensate with industrial products to be delivered over an extended period. Both partners will give effect to this economic program in such a way that the volume of the German-Soviet exchange of goods will again attain a high peak.

"Both governments in execution of the aforementioned measures will immediately make the necessary arrangements and take care that negotiations will be brought under way and concluded as fast as possible."

Plans for Surrender

Plans for the formal surrender of Warsaw were said to have been concluded late last night.

Military quarters said many details had to be arranged — for example, measures for the safety of the Germany army of occupation, roads on which the Germans would enter the city and the exit of the Poles.

The understanding was said to have specified depots where the Poles must surrender their arms, and to have taken into account German requests for special precautions against sabotage at important concentration points within the city.

Adolf Hitler was at Wilhelmshaven, Germany's Baltic naval base. A dispatch said Hitler heard the personal report of a U-boat commander who claimed he sank the British aircraft carrier Courageous. It said he also bestowed iron crosses on the entire crew.

(In London at the time of the Courageous sinking it was indicated the attacking U-boat was destroyed.)

PACT RECEIVED

Terms of the new pact were received in London in the early hours of this morning.

"Our general purpose is well known," the diplomatic informant said. "Mr. Chamberlain told the House of Commons a week ago that it is to redeem Europe from the perpetual and recurring fear of German aggression and to enable the peoples of Europe to preserve their independence and their liberties."

Britain and France Must Carry On

Fuehrer Hitler's new pact with Joseph Stalin makes "the perpetual and recurring fear of German aggression" even more menacing, more threatening and infinitely more real and tangible than it was the day Britain and France went to war to smash it, according to opinion here. For that reason alone it is impossible to see how the British and French Governments can do anything but push on in their resolve to smash Hitlerism once and for all.

Germany's economic gains under the new agreement may prove illusory. For two years the Nazis have been operating on credit and apart from a few items of machinery and tools—which Berlin may have great trouble in sparing during war time—they cannot give Russia very much in the way of barter. Observers here find it difficult to see how Germany could receive from Russia, and pay for in German products, greater quantities of war essentials than was possible under the non-aggression pact.

Stalin Now "Top Man"

One thing the pact does, according to one prevalent viewpoint, is make Stalin the "top man."

In fact Hitler, according to this view, now occupies the role that Premier Mussolini used to have in the days when the Rome-Berlin Axis was a model of economic and political solidarity.

One way the situation today is described is this: Russia now is master of the Baltic and Britain master of the North Sea—which leaves Germany master of the Kiel Canal.

While full implications of the Moscow-Berlin Pact are yet to become known, there is an impression that no specific military alliance between Germany and Russia has been made. Some observers say that a military pact is the last thing that Stalin would accept.

The provision in the pact for joint consultations between Germany and Russia to consider measures to be taken if the war continues is taken as either a "bogey man" gesture of frightfulness or an indication that Joachim Von Ribbentrop failed to persuade Stalin to enter a full military alliance.

A Healthy Sign

Meanwhile, British official circles still hold it a healthy sign that Russia has declared her willingness to negotiate a war-trade agreement with Britain. They also are confident that Turkey will not desert Britain and France. In fact, they say, the carving up of Poland by Germany and Russia should have the effect of driving all small nations into the allied camp.

The new Berlin-Moscow accord came shortly after an authoritative announcement last night that Ivan Maisky, Soviet Ambassador in London, had assured the British Government Russia is willing to start negotiations for a war trade agreement.

German Planes Driven Off

Meanwhile, British fighter planes were reported to have driven off two attempts by German aircraft to raid the coast of Scotland. For the second successive day, the Press Association said, Royal Air Force planes foiled a German attack yesterday, beating back a squadron of bombers that flew across the North Sea.

Details of the reported air battles were not disclosed, but the Press Association said "Not one bomber pierced our defence."

Although acknowledging a British destroyer had been attacked Wednesday, the Admiralty declared no ship of the Navy had been damaged.

"In view of the continued and reiterated misstatement of the German broadcast to the effect that units of the British Fleet in the North Sea have been damaged by German aircraft," it said, "The Admiralty reaffirms that in the actions referred to no British ship has been damaged, nor any casualties incurred from German aircraft."

Ark Royal Safe and Sound

German reports had enumerated British casualties Tuesday and Wednesday as an aircraft carrier "destroyed", a battleship damaged and a heavy cruiser "successfully attacked."

The press retorted to German intimations that the "destroyed" aircraft carrier was the Ark Royal by denouncing them as a ruse to get the Admiralty to disclose the warship's whereabouts in a denial. The Ark Royal, an official statement said, "is safe and sound at her allotted station."

Sir John Simon, Chancellor of the Exchequer, followed up his war budget message with a promise to the House of Commons last night that the Government would wield the economy axe.

Sir John said he had instructed all departments to avoid unnecessary expenditures, and that an investigation of "both the organization and the staffing" of the Ministry of Information is in progress.

Gratified With Reception

The Chancellor told the House he was gratified by the reception accorded "the very severe impositions" of the 2,000,000,000 pounds ($8,800,000,000) war budget.

The Chancellor assured the nation the Government would avoid inflation and would see that every penny is used wisely.

The Government's borrowing plans will not be announced, he asserted, until the budget is passed.

"Our object is to borrow from the genuine savings of the people at the lowest rate we can," he added. "That is an essential part of the elaborate financial plans which are one of the most important parts of our arrangements in connection with winning the war."

The heavy taxation, he said, would counteract inflationary tendencies and prevent spending abuses.

Intends to Maintain Policy.

A Reuters diplomatic correspondent said he learned from authoritative Soviet circles that Maisky had told Foreign Sescretary Viscount Halifax only two days ago that:

"1. The Soviet government intended to maintain its policy of neutrality in the war between Germany, Britain and France, and

"2. The Soviet government was prepared to accept British proposals to open trade negotiations envisaged when Hudson (R. S. Hudson, British Secretary of Overseas Trade) visited Moscow (last winter)."

The correspondent listed four points which he said were made in well-informed quarters as a reply to the new peace gesture:

"1. That Mr. Chamberlain in a recent statement said Russia's action would not influence the determination of Britain and France to prosecute the war until their aims are realized.

"2. That while suggesting consultations among friendly powers for settlement of the state of war, the Russian-German pact excludes any interference in the Polish settlement.

Have To Pay For Help.

"3. That although the pact envisages a continuation of war it only provides for consultations between Germany and Russia; in other words Germany would have to pay for Russia's eventual military help by further concessions.

"4. That although it is obvious whom the Germans and the Russians have in mind by the expression 'friendly powers' it would not be easy to get many neutrals to take the proposed initiative, as it would amount to endorsing or a least condoning the rape of Poland."

Lord Beaverbrook's Evening Standard said editorially that Hitler does not wish to engage himself in a single-handed war with the west, "yet it is to Stalin's interest that he should do so".

"Hitler wants a triumphant Germany; Stalin must deny all history if he connives at such result," the paper said.

Britons were kept well aware of the war on the home front. By midnight tonight every household in the nation had to fill out a blank for the national register prior to issue of identity and ration cards.

POLICE COURT

John Thompson, Rossmore, today appeared before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., in local police court charged with the theft of a motor car, the property of Bruce May. At the recommendation of Chief Kidd, Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C., reduced the charge to that of unlawfully taking a motor car with intent to drive the same, to which Thompson readily pleaded guilty.

The accused was given a three months' sentence upon the payment of the costs of the proceedings, which amounted to $16.25. On a second charge of intoxication Thompson was also convicted and assessed $16.35, which included the costs. His father was present and assured the court the fines would be paid.

Ralph Cannon, Corbyville, was convicted of drunken driving and sentenced to serve seven days in the common jail. Cannon's motor vehicle licence was cancelled for three months.

John Monk, Belleville, appeared charged with assaulting and beating his wife and was convicted after evidence of the inflicted injuries sustained were told in detail by Dr. G. S. Cronk. Monk was given a year's suspended sentence, ordered to pay his wife a stipulated sum each week and also pay the costs of the proceedings.

A H.T.A. case concluded the proceedings.

THREE NORWEGIAN FREIGHTERS SUNK

Two Are Torpedoed, Third Strikes Mine — No Lives Lost

Oslo, Norway, Sept. 29 (AP) — Three Norwegian freighters were sunk today, and yesterday in the North Sea, but no lives were lost.

Survivors of two sinkings said their ships were torpedoed—the first losses of Norwegian shipping ascribed to submarines since the war began.

The third ship was said to have struck a mine, as had the Norwegian motorship Ronda on Sept. 13. Seventeen lives were lost in the Ronda disaster.

The latest ships sunk were:

The Takstaas, 1,830 tons, reported torpedoed early today off Marstein on the Norwegian coast. The crew rowed to shore.

The Jern, 1,200 tons, sank yesterday off Kristiansand. Members of the crew of fifteen said the commander of a submarine gave them fifteen minutes to get into their lifeboat before their ship was torpedoed. They were picked up by the Swedish ship Caledinia.

The Salaas, 2,000 tons, struck a mine in the North Sea. The crew escaped before she went down.

Both the Takstaas and the Jern were loaded with woodpulp. The German legation announced that all sorts of wood now are considered by Germany to be contraband. The cargo of the Sallas was not disclosed.

LIECHTENSTEIN FEELS PINCH

10,000 Inhabitants Forced to Graze Cattle in Own Meadows

Vaduz, Liechtenstein, Sept. 29 (AP) —Liechtenstein, Europe's "postage stamp" principality, felt the pinch of war today.

While most of Western Europe mobilised or took military precautions when war began, Liechtenstein, her 65 square miles sandwiched between Switzerland and Germany, did little more than thank her lucky stars that she was linked closely with Switzerland after Austria became part of Germany.

Armed Swiss customs guards patrolled Liechtenstein's mountainous frontier today. Liechtenstein has no army.

Germans, tightening their border control, last night forced those of the principality's 10,000 inhabitants who have been accustomed to graze their cattle in German fields to remain in their own meadows.

War has hit the principality's two main sources of income —the sale of postage stamps and taxes from great holding companies drawn to Liechtenstein by liberal corporation laws.

MRS. G. TAYLOR

"A killing in the heat of passion caused by sudden provocation may also be manslaughter, the Judge explained.

"The Crown alleges the accused had a most powerful motive for ending the life of this woman that she was being left a substantial legacy in the will of Mrs. Templeton.

ed in the way Mrs. Taylor told you yesterday? Is that a probable story? There are some things that speak very eloquently in favor of the crown's contention."

The judge remarked that Mrs. Taylor's husband and children, sleeping upstairs in the home on the night of the slaying, were not disturbed by a scuffle or outcry.

Disbelieved Story

Referring to Mrs. Templeton as aged, frail, gentle, his Lordship observed: "She couldn't be violent if she wanted to, according to the evidence."

Dealing with Mrs. Taylor's story that she attacked Mrs. Templeton in self-defence, the judge said: "Have you noticed the robustness of this woman (the accused)? She is a woman used to doing hard work. She could have twisted that womans hand out of her hair in a moment."

The reference was to Mrs. Taylor's claim that Mrs. Templeton grasped her hair and held on to it for some time, simultaneously beating her with a piece of fireword.

Mrs. Taylor, the judge charged the jury, would be justified in repelling an attack with force if she used no more force than was necessary to repel the attack.

His Lordship prefaced his charge by saying the jury was the sole judge of the case regardless of how his observations might indicate his views of the evidence.

MORE MONEY FROM POTATOES

Toronto, Sept. 29—(CP)—Ontario's potato crop will net growers considerably more money than it did last year, J. T. Cassin of the potato branch of the Ontario Marketing Board announced today. Prices already have advanced about 30 per cent when compared with values at this time last year.

Crop prospects have been reduced in practically all parts of the province. In some sections not more than 50 per cent production will be realized as compared with last year. ## LIEUT.-GOVERNOR VISITS AIRPORT

Col. A. E. Matthews of Toronto Sees Display of Aerial Strength Today

With ten of Canada's fighting and observation planes hurtling through the air in single and mass formation, the Hon. Albert Matthews, Lieutenant Governor of Ontario paid an unofficial visit to the Trenton base of the Royal Canadian Air Force this morning.

The aerial display that thrilled the official party and gave ample demonstration of the ability of Canada's wartime pilots followed an inspection of the base quarters by the Lieut Governor.

Three Hurricane Hawkers, three Harvards, three heavy bombers and an observation ship, whirled, swooped and dived high in the air over the base, while the Lieut. Governor's party watched with keen approval.

The Lieut. Governor was en route to Picton where he officiated at the opening of the Picton Fair this afternoon.

Belgrade, Sept. 29—(CP)—The German economic mission which was received yesterday by Foreign Minister Alexander Cincarmarkovic was reported unofficially today to be demanding immediate delivery by Yugoslavia of $5,000,000 worth of meat, grains and fats.

Yugoslavia owes Germany more than $13,000,000 for long-term credit purchases of machinery, due in six to eight years. Germany was reported to be asking that more than one-third be paid immediately in goods.

LIST COMPILED OF CIVIL JOBS

Occupations From Which it is Desirable Not to Accept Recruits

Ottawa, Sept. 29 (CP)—Compilation of a list of necessary civil occupations, from which it would be undesirable from the national standpoint to accept army recruits, is steadily progressing, it was learned today, but it will be some days yet before a list is ready for public announcement.

Since Defence Minister Rogers announced a week ago that certain general categories of workers should not be enlisted, a sub-committee on reserve occupations, acting under the Cabinet Committee on Internal Security, has been engaged in a detailed analysis of such occupations.

While the sub-committee has before it the list of essential industries and organizations in the United Kingdom, it has the large task of reviewing all Canadian industries and the basically necessary jobs in each.

Some industries are so essential and so organized that all occupations in them must be included in the list while in other essential industries only certain jobs must be continued by trained men. Then the question of determining borderline cases provides its own difficulties.

FEDERAL ISSUE

He and his cabinet colleagues would ask Quebec "to give us a testimony of confidence." The election is to be held October 25.

Text of Statement

Following is text of Mr. Lapointe's statement: (360)

I am being asked from many quarters whether the federal ministers from the Province of Quebec will take part in the pending provincial campaign. The following is my answer: That fight is and should have remained a provincial fight. The main question to decide is the choice of an administration at Quebec. The electors of the province will have to state, on October 25, whether they prefer Mr. Duplessis or Mr. Godbout (Adelard Godbount, Quebec Liberal leader) as leader of the government.

In Critical Period.

If the controversy had remained purely provincial, we should have strictly abstained from any intervention. But Mr. Duplessis has believed it his duty not only to precipitate an election in a critical period and to sow seeds of discord at a time when national union is a sacred duty, but he has made the criticism of the federal government an issue at that election and more particularly the criticism of the measures taken for the purpose of assuring the effectiveness and the success of the effort of Canada in the present conflict. A verdict in his favor would be a verdict against us.

Under such circumstances, we cannot remain indifferent and our duty is to take up this unprovoked challenge.

Government Needs Confidence.

My colleagues and myself who are representing the province in the government of the country need the confidence and the support of our fellow countrymen in order to have and to keep such authority as is necessary to the defence of their ideas and the safeguarding of their interests.

Our first duty at this time is to accomplish the intense work which the security and the interest of Canada request from us. In that work we shall not fail. But Mr. Duplessis having made us an issue in his electoral appeal, we shall ask the Province of Quebec to give us a testimony of confidence. I wonder who Mr. Duplessis would like to have in Ottawa to replace us, but the province will have the occasion to declare whether she prefers to keep us in her confidence or to give it to the friends of the premier of Quebec.

I shall respectfully accept the decision of the people of my province; my colleagues from Quebec will accept it.

CANADA'S TRADE CONVOYED ACROSS

Shiploads of Vital Commodities Regularly Leave Canada's Ports

Ottawa, Sept. 29 (CP)—Canada's trans-Atlantic commerce with the United Kingdom goes on despite the war and, with the convoy system in operation, shiploads of vital commodities regularly leave Canadian east-coast ports and arrive safely at their destination.

So far no attack has been reported by a German submarine on convoyed freighters, the U-boats apparently finding it safer to stalk lonely ships.

The movement of convoys was arranged jointly by the Canadian and British destroyers and while British warships escort the merchant ships across the Atlantic Canadian destroyers take part in the work of forming part of the escort for a certain distance off the Canadian coasts.

Participation of Canadian vessels in the work was announced some time ago in a government statement which said "we are assisting in the protection of departing convoys for a considerable distance from the Canadian coast."

NEWSPAPERS PAY

THE TIMES said: "The hearts of lovers of liberty everywhere have been beating more proudly in these weeks for the thought of what free men and women can endure in defence of their freedom."

"The German conduct of the siege has been without mercy and without respect for the humane usages of civilized nations at war," The Times added. "There can be little doubt that a few brigades of infantry, detached for the purpose from the German millions, could have carried the city by assault against the pitifully inadequate resources of defence. Their losses would no doubt have been severe but the fighting would have been between soldiers on both sides.

"Instead, it seemed good to the German High Command to wage war upon the whole population by indiscriminate bombardments from afar, and by continual bombing, and even by short range machine-gunning of food queues from the air."

GREAT WAR VETERAN IS READY TO SERVE

Denton, Md., Sept. 29 (AP) — Arthur Grattan Croke, 45, Canadian war veteran decorated for bravery in the last war, may serve Canada again.

Croke, who moved here 20 years ago, received notice from the Canadian government to be prepared for a call to service. By airmail he replied he was ready.

Private Croke, serving with the Seventh Canadian Infantry, was wounded and captured while sniping at the second battle of Ypres and spent four years in a German prison camp.

Croke said he expected to be sent to Vancouver, where his father lives to help train Canadian soldiers.

Ottawa, Sept. 29 (CP)—A National Defence Department officials said today that no notice had been sent out to Arthur Grattan Croke of Denton, Md., a Canadian war veteran, to prepare for a call to service but the official indicated Croke's old army unit might have asked him to return to Canada.

Croke served overseas during the first Great War with the Seventh Canadian Infantry. "We have not sent out such notices to any old soldiers in Croke's position," it was stated.

BRITISH PLANES

Berlin, Sept. 29 —(AP)— The High Command claimed today that five of six British warplanes attempting to attack a German naval unit off Heligoland had been shot down by German pursuit planes.

The announcement said the air attack was fruitless. Heligoland is Germany's island naval base in the North Sea.

The communique claimed that when the six British planes, after unsuccessfully attacking the warships, flew away to the west German fighters attacked them.

"In a brief battle five of the British planes were shot down and plunged into the sea," the High Command declared.

The battle, it said, occurred this morning.

Why The Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen ..

Science Service Meteorologist

Latitude and climate! Everybody knows that latitude is the most important factor governing climate. But this is so only in a general way. For instance, in January the 30-degree temperature line runs through Iceland eastward to the northern part of Norway, and then southeast to Bulgaria. Thus for over 2000 miles the mean January temperatures are the same in a nearly north and south direction. Again, the 30-degree below zero line in January begins in northern Canada about 1500 miles south of the Pole, runs northward nearly crossing the North Pole, and then southward about 2,000 miles into Siberia.

FRANCE TO MEET ANY THREAT OF GERMAN DRIVE

Country Will Never Accept Partition of Poland by Germany and Russia

STRENGTHEN POSITIONS

By JOHN MARTIN
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Paris, Sept. 30 (AP)—The French government, apparently turning a cold shoulder to German-Soviet peace-gestures, intensified preparations today to meet any threat of a German offensive to back up the peace offer.

The French general staff reported the night was "without incident", but said patrols were active throughout the region east of the Saar river on the northern half of the western front. Apparently the zone referred to is south of Saarbruecken.

Premier Daladier summoned the commanders-in-chief of the army, navy and air force for a national defence conference shortly after this morning's war communique was issued.

While French troops sought to strengthen positions gained in a month of fighting, both government and press indicated France never would accept as a basis for peace the German-Soviet pact partitioning Poland.

Canadian Soldier to be Comfortable In New Issue of Khaki Uniform

Ottawa, Sept. 30 (CP)—The Canadian soldier of 1939 will be more comfortable and have fewer worries about his personal appearance appearance than the soldier of 1914.

This became clear today as the first samples of the new khaki service uniform were displayed at the Department of National Defence. Infantrymen will look more like civilian skiers or marines.

The main items in the outfit are a pair of high-waisted, roomy trousers and a wide-sleeved blouse which replaces the old tight-fitting tunic. On his ankles the new soldier will wear six-inch canvas gaiters in place of the old-style puttees, and on his head a wedge-shaped forage cap in place of the old stiff kepi.

The complete absence of brass buttons from the new uniform should bring whoops of joy from men who know something of soldiering in the old fashioned uniforms.

No more will men exercise their arms at night polishing buttons or struggle with long coils of puttees as reveille sounds in the morning.

Gaiters Worn on Duty

Trousers will be worn with gaiters on duty but may be worn without, and as ordinary slacks when the soldier is off duty. The bottoms are fitted with tabs and buttons on the inside which enable them to be buttoned tightly about the ankles for the gaiters or opened up loose for use without gaiters.

The new uniform is well supplied with pockets. The blouse has two large ones, and in addition to the usual side and hip pockets the trousers have two on the thighs. On the left thigh is a large flat pocket in which the cap may be carried while the steel helmet is worn on active service. On the right thigh is a smaller pocket to hold the field dressing kit.

Contracts have been let for the manufacture of the new garments in Canadian factories and they will be issued to the troops as fast as they can be delivered.

Officers' uniforms in the Canadian Active Service Force will be of the same pattern as those of the men in the ranks.

Pope Gives Consolation To All Polish People In Frightful, Tragic Hour

Castel Gandolfo, Sept. 30 (AP)—Pope Pius gave his consolation today to the Polish people "in this frightful, tragic hour".

"As you shed bitter tears for your dead," the Pope told Polish residents of Rome in an audience, "remember that Poland is not going to die."

He asked his listeners to place their trust in God, to look forward to the future with hope and, especially, to pray that Poles would not be deprived of the comforts of religion by "enemies of God".

August Cardinal Hlond, Primate of Poland, stood beside the Pope as he bestowed his Apostolic blessing upon the Polish people. Many of those in the audience of 200, mostly priests and nuns, wept.

When he finished speaking, the Pope stepped down from his dais and stood in attention as the gathering sand "May God Protect Poland", the hymn with which Poles have comforted themselves in previous partitions of their homeland by foreign powers.

"May Christ, who wept at the death of Lazarus and over the ruin of his fatherland, gather and some day compensate you for the tears which you spill over your dead and over this Poland which does not want to die," said the Pope.

"In the present distress there nevertheless still remain riches to the Poles.

POLICE SEEKING FOUR ARMED MEN FOR BANK HOLDUP

Bank of Montreal at Merlin Robbed of $1,700 by "Foreigners"

FARMER LOSES CAR

Merlin, Ont., Sept. 30 (CP)—Search continued through Western Ontario and border points today for four armed men who held up the Bank of Montreal branch in this Kent County village and escaped with $1,700 in an automobile later abandoned and found to be stolen.

The bandits, said by Bank Manager J. M. Strange to be "foreigners" entered the bank late yesterday, herded the four members of the staff into an office, bound their wrists and made them lie on the floor. Then they grabbed the money from the teller's cage, overlooking a batch of bills totalling $1,800.

Strange said he and the teller, Fred Standing, refused to open the bank safe. Other staff members were W. Johnson, ledger-keeper, and Georgia Mifflin, stenographer. Robert Pratt, who entered the bank as a customer during the holdup, also had his wrists taped but his small son, who accompanied him was not touched.

R.A.F. Pilot Tells How He Was Able to Bomb and Destroy German Sub

TWO ATTACKS

London, Sept. 30 (CP)—Destruction of a German U-boat by a Royal Air Force reconnaissance plane which located its prey from a tell-tale trail of oil along the water's surface was reported today by the Ministry of Information. The pilot's log, made public by the Ministry, said:—

"A very fine trail of oil was observed coming to the surface in a series of bubbly patches. The trail led due north. Markers were dropped and the oil was seen to be moving slowly ahead of this point at two knots.

"After 15 minutes of careful observation, bombs were dropped slightly ahead and across the foremost oil patch. In the centre of the group of white circles made by the bombs a great quantity of oil suddenly gushed to the surface.

"Soon a much wider trail of oil began to move slowly forward, now at about only one knot. A second attack was made. In the centre of new white patches of foam created by the explosion oil again gushed up, this time for 30 seconds. No further movement of any sort was seen."

Daily War Survey

By The Canadian Press

One of the ironies of the second Great War is the changed position of Russia. That Communist-ruled nation, for a time regarded as an outcast from the community of civilized governments, now basks in the sun of world interest.

Moscow is a world capital to which flock foreign ministers and emissaries of other nations. Not since the Tsars ruled at Petrograd in the calmer days before the first Great War has the Russian capital exercised such an influence in world affairs.

Until recently Soviet influence was felt abroad only through the undercover activities of the Communist Party and the Third International.

Now in the space of a few months Russia's bitterest enemy, Nazi Germany, has become a friend and partners in conquest. Hungary, which refused to maintain relations with Russia following a bitter experience with a Communist Regime just after the first Great War, has resumed relations. Ministers and ambassadors of Turkey, Estonia and Bulgaria hasten to the Soviet capital for conferences and to conclude new understandings.

All this leaves the spectator of the shifting diplomatic scene a bit bewildered particularly if he cherished strong sympathies or antipathies for either Communism or Naziism. It also makes him wonder whether other no less startling shifts in alignment may not be in store before the second Great War ends.

In the Far East Japan maintains a discreet silence about the new alignments in Europe and along the Mediterranean Italy adheres to neutrality while pleading for peace on terms favorable to Germany, both nations were partners with the Reich in the anti-commintern pact. Both have yet to voice either approval or condemnation of the new Berlin-Moscow axis.

25 YEARS AGO TODAY

Sept. 30, 1914—Russians reported successes along entire battle-front; captured Augustowo in Russian Poland and set up civil government in the east. British cruiser Cumberland captured German liner Arnfield and several other vessels in West African waters.

Oct. 1, 1914—British War Information Bureau announced Indian Expeditionary Force had landed in France. Antwerp's southern forts held off German attacks. Russians launched attack on Krakow in Poland.

GERMANY CLAIMS BRITISH PLANES ARE REPULSED

Communique States 12 Planes Try to Penetrate Germany Along North Sea Coast

"LITTLE LIVELIER"

Artillery Activity on Western Front Heightens as Armies Come Together

Berlin, Sept. 30 (AP)—A communique from the German High Command today claimed twelve British planes had been repulsed in an attempt to penetrate German territory along the North Sea coast.

German airmen shot down five of six British planes which they engaged over the Frisian Islands, the communique claimed. Crews of two German pursuit planes, said to have made emergency landings on the sea, were reported rescued by German warships.

Six other British planes attacked a destroyer "in a German bay" but were driven off by anti-aircraft guns without scoring a hit, according to the communique.

The High Command said 45 vessels had been searched for contraband in the Kattegat and Skagerrak, and "a number of them were captured."

A "Little Livelier"

Artillery activity on the Western Front was reported "a little livelier." In the East, approximately 5,200 Polish troops were said to have surrendered south of the Vistula after the capitulation of Modlin.

HITLER WEAKENING IS VIEW EXPRESSED BY ENGLISH PRESS

Britain is Said Likely to Reject What is Called 'Peace Threat'

NO PEACE WITH HITLER

London, Sept. 30—(CP)— Authoritative sources declared today Great Britain would reject emphatically Adolf Hitler's offer of peace at the price of a partitioned Poland.

The Government went ahead with mobilization of its entire fighting power for a finish fight with Germany. An army of 65,000 census takers completed a register of some 46,000,000 persons in England, Scotland and Wales to provide the basis for food rationing and conscription of manpower for war.

A formal reply to what the press called Hitler's "Peace Threat" was deferred by the War Cabinet, pending consultation with France. (Paris dispatches told of official indications of a French rebuff to the German-Soviet overture).

Prime Minister Chamberlain is expected to give the official reaction to the German-Russian agreement in a statement before the House of Commons Monday or Tuesday.

The Times led the press in demanding rejection of any peace proposal based on the partition of Poland. The Times declared Britain "would rather go down to defeat and destruction than compromise the essentials of our national being and the hopes which we now hold in trust for others."

R. A. F. Photographs Siegfried Line, Pilots Fly as Low as 600 Feet

London, Sept. 30 (CP)—An Air Ministry statement today said photographs snapped by Royal Air Force pilots flying along Germany's Siegfried line at a height of 600 feet have provided British headquarters in France with close-ups of gun emplacements, camouflage and communication lines along the western wall.

None of the British planes was attacked by German anti-aircraft guns or pursuit planes and the Air Ministry said the machines may have been mistaken for German aircraft by the German garrison. In one case, it said, Germans working on camouflage "stopped working, looked up and waved in greeting."

The flight crossed and recrossed the frontier, building up a series of photographs of the German defences and stores in the area beyond the Siegfried line, the ministry said.

An earlier reconnaissance flight flew over the line at about 21,000 feet but heavy banks of clouds made photography difficult at this height. These aircraft were spotted by German anti-aircraft batteries which opened fire.

Despite anti-aircraft gunning, which the Air Ministry called "very accurate" the second flight managed to photograph huge expanses of country beyond the Siegfried line. These pictures were added to the other more detailed ones of the line taken at the lower altitude.

Report Turkey Neutral If Soviet And Allies Clash

NEUTRAL BLACK SEA?

Ankara Reports State Turkey is to Insert Proviso in New Agreements Being Prepared With Britain and France to Void Them in Event of Their Clash With Soviet

Ankara, Turkey, Sept. 30 (CP)—Turkey, ready to consummate pacts treaties in the event of Russia bewith Great Britain and France for mutual assistance in the Mediterranean, was reported today to have inserted a provision voiding the treties in the event of Russia becoming involved in war with the western democracies.

Long a friend of the Soviet as well as Britain and France, Turkey was understood to have decided to remain neutral if war involving the Soviet and the democracies spread to the Mediterranean.

Foreign Minister in Moscow

Turkey's Foreign Minister Sukru Saracoglu, has been in Moscow since early this week discussing Turkey's role in the Near East. Informed sources here said he had discussed with the Soviet leaders a Black Sea pact which would neutralize that strategic sea dominated by Turkish-held Dardanelles.

The proposed Black Sea pact would involve Russia, Rumania and Bulgaria as well as Turkey.

Informed persons asserted that a proviso releasing Turkey from her oligations in the event of war between the Allies and Russia had been put into definite mutual assistance and economic agreements between Turkey and Britain and Turkey and France now ready for signature.

BUND LEADER HELD IN JAIL

Bond Raised to $50,000 to Prevent Him Fleeing the Country

New York, Sept. 30 (AP)—Fritz Kuhn, German-American Bund leader was held in Tombs prison today under $50,000 bail to ensure his remaining in the United States to face grand larency and forgery charges.

Defence lawyers tried to free Kuhn on a habeas corpus writ.

The Bund master was locked up last night after his $5,000 bail on a charge of stealing $14,548 from Bund funds was increased ten-fold at the request of District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey's office.

"We have authentic secret information that Kuhu is planning to flee the country and may not be available when his case comes to trial," said an assistant District Attorney, Milton Schilback.

After Judge Cornelius Collins ordered the higher bail, Kuhn tried in vain for four hours to raise the money.

Italy Stands As 'Friendly Power' To End Hostilities, Says Rome Despatch

Rome, Sept. 30—(AP)— Italy stood today as a "friendly power" ready to co-operate in bringing the war to an end.

Whether Premier Mussolini would be able to maintain Italy's delicate non-participation policy remained a major question.

Fascist circles say Mussolini alone will make the ultimate decision, with Italy's own interests in mind.

The press has been extremely cautious. There is no longer public mention of the German-Italian alliance, so often described previously as the "pact of steel." Newspaper attacks on France have been stilled.

WANT A NEUTRAL POWER TO HANDLE PEACE PROPOSALS

Von Ribbentrop Declares German - Soviet Friendship Firmly Established

GOOD NEIGHBORS

Moscow, Sept. 30 (AP)—The next step of the Moscow-Berlin axis was expected today to be a search for a neutral power which would place its peace proposals before Great Britain and France.

Evidence of closer ties between the Nazi-Communist partners was seen in an interview Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop gave exclusively to the Soviet press yesterday and also in an editorial in Pravda, the Communist party newspaper, today.

Von Ribbentrop declared "German-Soviet friendship now is firmly established." He said the two nations desire peace, asserted neither would "permit the interference of third powers with the problems of eastern Europe" and added that "if, however, the instigators of war gain the upper hand in those countries, then Germany and the U.S.S.R. will know how to reply."

Pravda said "The treaty of amity between the two largest states in Europe—the U.S.S.R. and Germany—is fresh, brilliant proof of the policy of peace which consistently, firmly and sincerely has been pursued and is being pursued by the Soviet government in conformity with the principles of the party of Lenin and Stalin."

COAL SHIPMENTS OFF

Lucerne, Switzerland, Sept. 30—(AP)—German coal, which poured through Saint Gotthard Tunnel en route to Italy at the rate of nearly 25,000 tons a day the first three weeks of the war, has dropped to only a few hundred tons a day.

Some observers ascribed this drop partly to neutral Switzerland's desire to have such shipments routed through the Brenner Pass, outside Swiss territory. But even the Brenner shipments have been small.

EXPECT SLOVAKIA TO AID GERMANY

Spokesmen Say 'We Are Not Engaged Against Britain or France'

By DANIEL DE DUCE

(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Bratislava, Sept. 30 (AP)—Spokesmen for Premier Josef Tiso and Foreign Minister Ferdinand Durciansky of Slovakia said today their country probably would give economic support to Germany in return for continued protection.

At the same time, the spokesmen said that since the German victory over Poland "we are at peace with all the world; that means we are not engaged in any fight against Great Britain and France."

Slovakia now holds more than 3,600 square miles of former Polish territory. Informed sources said Slovakia waged war on Poland in conjunction with Germany to regain 2,250 square miles inhabited by approximately 25,000 people and which Poland acquired from Slovakia in 1920 and 1938.

Iron Crosses For Slovak Generals.

Three Slovak army leaders, decorated with the German iron cross, were directing military rule of the Polish area, a rule subordinated to the German army command which has been empowered by Premier Tiso to extend German martial law into Slovakia.

A cabinet member who declined to permit use of his name said today: "I believe most Slovaks regret that our new frontier probably will be fifteen miles from Russia, instead of a common frontier. The Slovaks have always felt a kinship with the Russians, even more so than with other Slavic races such as Czechs and Poles."

"I believe," he added, "that not more than 15 per cent of the Slovaks would vote for another union with the Czechs, but more than 60 or 70 per cent might favor Russian incorporation, if the subject should be broached."

Argylls Authorized to Start Recruiting for Local Training

Young Men of Ability Wanted as Work in Tank Battalion is Highly Specialized and Mechanical Nature

TO START ON TUESDAY

The Argyll Light Infantry (Tank) will begin recruiting for local training on Tuesday evening next, October 3rd. Authorization has been given to train on a voluntary basis for the next few months or until such time as the Department of National Defence may decide to mobilize the unit.

Since reorganization in 1936, the Argylls have held to a very restricted personnel in keeping with the small numbers which could be accommodated at camps of instruction. It was felt that no greater numbers should be recruited than could be given the opportunity of attending the summer camps. This policy is now changed and the unit will recruit up to the numbers allowed in the peace-establishment. Only those within the ages of 18 and 41 and who are physically A1 will be accepted. All new members of the unit will be taken on with the understanding that they intend to remain with the unit in the event of its mobilization.

Highly Specialized Unit

Lt.-Col. A. B. Gribble E.D., officer commanding, points out that the work in a tank battalion is of a highly specialized and mechanical nature, which demands that the personnel be composed only of young men of initiative, intelligence and industry. This is very evident when one considers the syllabus of training and finds it to consist of such items as Map Reading, Revolver practice, Musketry, Internal Combustion Engine, Tractor Construction and Maintenance, Tank Tactics, Vickers Machine Gun Training and a dozen other activities of no lesser importance.

Besides the training of recruits, at least two evenings per week will be devoted to conducting qualifying courses for sergeants and junior officers. These courses extend over a period of twenty-five weeks. It looks like a stiff winter's work for the present Staff of Officers and N.C.O.'s but they are looking forward to it, knowing that at last they will have sufficient personnel and equipment to make it possible to turn out a first class mechanized unit.

BARN IS STRUCK BY LIGHTNING

Cherry Valley Property Destroyed Along With Hay and Grain

Picton, Sept. 30 (Special)—A severe electrical storm swept parts of Prince Edward County yesterday morning. A barn near Cherry Valley owned by Steven Oseida, was struck and burned. Mr. Oseida had left the building only a short time before the building was struck. All the season's grain and hay was lost and several pigs. A number of horses and cows were saved.

In a few sections, hail fell, doing some damage. Other sections experienced no rain at all.

In Picton the rain fell heavily until ten o'clock and it was feared the last day of the fair would have to be cancelled but it cleared up and the track which was sodden in the morning, dried up and was in good enough condition to permit Lastic Grattan to set a new track record.

ROBT. W. LIPSETT DIES IN OTTAWA

Representative of Toronto Star at Capital Veteran Newspaperman

Ottawa, Sept. 30 (CP)—Veteran of the newspaper world at 49, Robert W. Lipsett, parliamentary correspondent of the Toronto Daily Star and president of the Parliamentary Press Gallery, died in hospital here early today following a brief illness.

A talented writer and able newspaperman, "Bob" Lipsett worked for various Canadian newspapers in Winnipeg, Calgary, Edmonton, Vancouver, Montreal, Toronto and Ottawa.

Native of Toronto, Mr. Lipsett moved to Winnipeg with his family and was educated at University of Manitoba. He opened his newspaper career with the old Winnipeg Telegram, later going to Calgary, Edmonton, Vancouver and Montreal where he was city editor of the Vancouver Star.

Publicity Director.

After a brief time on the Montreal Harbor Commission Mr. Lipsett rejoined the Montreal Star. He was made publicity director of the Conservative party in 1929 but went back to newspaper work in 1931 as representative here of the Toronto Mail and Empire and the Toronto Saturday Night. He declined an invitation to return to his old job with the Conservative party in 1935, following his appointment as correspondent of the Toronto Daily Star.

"I was deeply shocked to hear of the death of Bob Lipsett, president of the Parliamentary Press Gallery, and former public director of the Conservative party.

"A veteran of the newspaper world, his genial personality had gained him a host of friends in every section of Canada. His intimate contact with parliamentary life had made him one of the best informed men on all public questions and his loss at this time will be keenly felt not only by the press gallery to which he had given such excellent leadership, but by all men in public life.

"I extend my most sincere sympathy to his wife and family."

Cardiogram Records Heart Action as Man Punished for Crime

Canon City, Colo., Sept. 30.—(AP)—Two convicted murderers died in the lethal gas chamber and a cardiogram—a record of heart action—showed that one of them died without fear.

Pete Catalina, 41, a pool hall operator convicted of shooting a man in an argument over a 50-cent stack of poker chips, agreed to meet death wearing equipment recording his last heart beats.

Angelo Agnes, 31, Denver negro convicted of slaying his estranged wife, declined to wear the device.

I. D. Price, electrical expert who operated the heart recording instruments, said Catalina's heart beat appeared strong and even for one minute and 10 seconds, then stopped abruptly when he inhaled the poison fumes.

PUBLIC INVITED TO INSPECT NEW FUNERAL HOME

J. R. Grant Converts Northrup Residence on North Front St. Into Modern Funeral Home

Transformed by the magic touch of the decorator from a drab-appearing structure to a residence of modern requirements the former W. R. Northrup property at 68 North Front street, recently purchased by the J. R. Grant Funeral Home, adds a touch of dignity to its immediate environment.

The spacious grounds which shortly will go into the hands of a landscape gardener, the proposed white gravel circular drive and the homelike atmosphere that permeates the rich colorings of the interior, go to make a funeral home that will compare with the best in the city and district.

Rich cream, ivory and white form the color motif of the airy rooms. In the reception room, wine-colored rugs offset the quiet beauty of the furnishings. White marble fireplaces add a touch of the former splendor that was the pride of the Northrup residence.

New hardwood floors bespeak the modern touch. Rich cream hangings nhance the beauty of the tall windows. In the chapel the same color scheme predominates. At the head of the stairway that leads to spacious rooms above, the beautiful tints of a stained glass window depicting a Biblical scene, reflects the afternoon sunlight.

The new funeral home in its entirety reflects not only the rich warmth of the modern home, but also the quiet simple dignity that is part of the modern mortician's place of business.

Mr. Grant brings a wealth of experience to his new environment. Born in Mountain View, the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Grant, now resident in Bowmanville, he lived for some time in Wellington, before moving to Bowmanville. He graduated from the Canadian School of Embalming, Toronto, and has had sixteen years of experience in Toronto funeral homes including Bates and Dodds, the Stone Funeral Home and the Hopkins-Golden Funeral Home.

Mrs. Grant is a Hastings County girl, born in Ivanhoe the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Moore. Mr. Moore is cheese and dairy instructor for Peterborough and is well-known in dairy circles here. Mrs. Grant's grandfather was the late Nicholas Fleming, member of one of Hastings County's proudest families. She is a sister of Mrs. Robert Miles, of Clark and Miles, Front street provision firm.

A cordial invitation to the general public to inspect the new funeral home is extended by Mr. and Mrs. Grant.

SINKING ENEMY SUBMARINES

Success of the British and French fleets in sinking twelve German U-boats in 26 days of war is a most encouraging achievement. It proves that the confidence which the two peoples have in their navies is not misplaced and it goes far towards the Allied objective of tightening the blockade by sea so as to prevent materials reaching Germany and to restrict Hitlerism in its war efforts

Throughout the world which is not associated with the Germans and the Russians, there must be a feeling of relief and particularly throughout the British and French empires there is satisfaction that the sea menace of the German U-boats will continue to shrink as the blockade and the convoy systems approach their full stride until the shut-off of Germany is complete.

The loss to Germany in the sinking of the submarines must be heavy for the German navy depends largly on submarines, owing to the fact that Germany is not a sea power and can be shut off. The use of the German navy of other types of ships was not effective in the Great War. Germany, to fight the blockade, must depend on her "wolves of the sea" but it is claimed that her losses are far greater than she can replace and that the loss of personnel will prove a very heavy handicap.

The other day Hitler went to Wilhelmshaven and it is reported he extolled the heroism of the German submarines which, Berlin said, were returned to port after their wandering activities. Of course Hitler might be expected to praise the German U-boats, for they were carrying out the Nazi Government commands in their raiding operations.

Crimes against international law have been perpetrated by submarines of the German navy, and the fact that the class which has angered neutral nations is suffering so heavily will be good news to the neutrals.

The navy is one of the most potent arms of the Allied service and will have a great part in bringing Hitler to his knees.

BUILDING UP THE AIR FORCE

A newspaper despatch from England yesterday gave the information that Britain planned to produce three thousand airmen a month.

This force is an Empire force for every part of the empire is represented at the R.A.F. ground school. The men are young and look younger.

This will become the finest body of pilots, gunners and ground men in the world, is the confident expression of one officer, whose opinions are shared by the Empire.

The Empire, the greatest political unit in the world, is proud of every branch of its service at the battle front, on the sea and in the air, at the training school and at the home front. It has confidence and energy to develop the vast resources of the far-flung Empire which is held together by the Kingship, and not by domination. So to the air force, Canada and other Dominions contribute, the smaller navies of the Dominions play a hand in the great game of defence and the Dominions are preparing divisions to assist.

NAZI PROPAGANDA

German propaganda is working hard, it claimed a success by air attack of a squadron of British ships and cheerfully marked down a direct hit on a carrier. In the British Commons, Mr . Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, gave a statement which shows that there was no truth in any British loss in this incident, and he stated that the Germans suffered losses in this attack.

The Nazis of course would impress the people at home who have little chance to learn in any way other than through the inspired press of Germany, unless there be those who dare listen to foreign broadcasts, contrary to orders and unless through the pamphlets of messages translated into German which British fliers succeed in dropping over German cities and towns to give the home front in Germany the truth, Germans come to know what is going on.

The Nazis would also influence, if they could, neutral countries, particularly in those parts of Europe so close to the German borders.

English and French readers will not be too easily impressed with German stories which the Nazi news sources consider good from the Nazi standpoint and send out to the world. They will read them but they will look for the British and French authoritative accounts for authentic information.

British and French reports will be followed by the people of these countries as the true version of what is going on in the various theatres of war, for the French and British statements will be based on fact. Britain gave out the news of the sinking of her carrier, the Courageous, even before the Germans could give it out.

HARVEST

Now when the time of harvest and grain is come,
When apples hang above the garden wall,
And from the tangle by the road-side stream
A scent of wild grapes fills the racy air,
Comes Autumn with her sun-burnt caravan,
Like a long gypsy train with trappings gay
And tattered colors of the Orient,
Moving slow-footed through the dreamy hills.
The woods of Wilton, at her coming,
wear
Tints of Bokhara and of Samarcand;
The maples glow with their Pompein red,
The hickories with burnt Etruscan
gold,
And while the crickets fife along her
march,
Behind her banners burns the crimson sun.

SOME PEOPLE ARE JUST BUBBLING OVER WITH SUGGESTIONS, how to win the war, how to run the war, how to do everything, except interfere with their business in any way.

Suggestions are fine, when constructive, but the suggestion to mind your own business is still the most constructive suggestion possible to make in most circumstances. Some one has suggested that a committee on public information be set up at Ottawa to sift the news of the various government departments in war times and feed out to the press what it considers real red hot news. Trouble is any such committee would not be likely to know red hot news until after it was cold and dead, and the Canadian reading public has no stomach for cold or warmed over official news. The Canadian press is quite competent to gather and handle news in wartime as in peace time, and has a lively recollection of the Great War when such an official was appointed, Hon. N. W. Rowell, a man who knew not the news and the whole experiment died aborning upon protest being made by the Canadian press to Wartime Premier Robert Borden who promptly abolished the office and let the newsgathering job return to the people who knew how to do it and when, the newspapermen. In any event there is a board of censors headed by a newspaperman who will see that wartime rules are lived up to—although the Canadian board of censors will find little or nothing to censor in the Canadian press.

WOMEN GO TO NEW YORK CITY ON SHOPPING TOURS, but one woman who recently visited Manhattan on a shopping tour differed from her sisters in that she did not visit the stores. She was shopping for two baby elephants, a rhinoceros, a panda and anything else not too expensive in the live animal line. Mrs. Belle J. Benchley is the director of the San Diego, California, Zoo, and has made good as an animal specialist. She is particularly proud of her two gorillas, which she says are gentlemen, friendly and gentle. She does not go into their cages because they are so strong that even in play they are liable to injure a person. She says her gorillas are bigger and better than the Ringling circus Gargantia, over which such a fuss is made. One of her gentlemen gorillas weighs 503 pounds and the other 496. Says this lady zoo director:

"The gorilla is a very dignified and sensitive animal, I visit our two every day. And we call each other by our first names. I feed them, reaching my hands into their cage, and I've never had one try to hurt me. Of course they beat their breasts and they bang on the cage wires in gestures some people mistake for ferocity. Really these gestures are efforts at conversation, and they have a lot of different ones that mean different things."

Mr. John R. Matheson, son of Mr. Robert Matheson, Bursar at the D. and D. Institute, who for some time has been engaged as a bookkeeper in the office of the Daily Sun here, will shortly leave the city to reside in New York and last evening his friends tendered him a farewell banquet at James Wallace's restaurant. The chair was most capably filled by Mr. C. C. Leavens. After due justice had been done to the good things provided, the following toast list was carried out: "The Queen", the National Anthem by the company and short addresses by Mr. J. N. Doyle and Mr. Philip Harrison; "The British Empire," song "The Red White and Blue" and address by Mr. George McLeod of Montreal; Songs, "The Palms" by Mr. George McCleod, and "Don't get funny, Mr. Johnson", by Mr. Harry Lake; "Our Fair Dominion of Canada," responded to by Messrs. ## What it Costs to Get the News

From Editor and Publisher

The European War, now four weeks old, has already doubled the normal foreign service costs of the three major American newsgathering agencies, their executives have told Editor and Publisher. Prospects are that the expenses of war coverage, now about twice the cost of reporting the World War, may follow the 1914-1918 upward spiral and more than triple peacetime budgets if a prolonged struggle ensues.

"At the moment", Earl J. Johnson, general news manager for the United Press, stated in discussing the expense situation, "all I can tell you is that we are taking it right on the chin and praying for some sort of break that will enable us to make reductions. With such a tremendous story on our hands the only thing we can do just now is keep the throttle wide open."

Mr. Johnson said the U. P.'s European war's expenses "have exceeded our worst fears".

"The accounting department came up with part of the bad news Wednesday showing that expenses had averaged $3,000 a day above normal since the beginning of the last week in August. Our normal expenses in Europe in peace times run approximately $3,000 a day, or $21,000 a week; so we figured that the war has just doubled that figure.

"Cable tolls represent part of the increase, of course, but by no means all of it. Tolls, alone have passed the $3,000 mark on a few days. The lowest daily tolls bill has been $810. That was a relatively quiet Sunday. Yesterday, when we brought over the entire text of Hitler's speech at Danzig, the figure bounced up to $2,000.

"But the bulk of the bulge in expenses is in increased man power in Europe and expense accounts of staff men who are moving from country to country, hiring automobiles, etc. As usual during a crisis of this kind, there are lots of expenses being incurred by staff men all over the map that may not be reported for weeks or perhaps months. That was the case in Ethiopia, where the final shakedown showed that we had spent $150,000; but we didn't get the final figure until more than two months after Addis Ababa had fallen. The same was true of the Austrian Anschluss, Shanghai, and the Sudeten-Munich crisis last year.

"One reason, for the big bulge in tolls is that continental correspondents who usually telephone or teleprinter their stuff into London or Paris where their files are edited and relayed to North and South America are now not able to pour their despatches into the London and Paris newspools because of the strict censorship in England and France. The continental correspondents now have to file to North and South America direct at sometimes twice or three times the per-word press rate from London or Paris. This has made it necessary to transfer our European headquarters from London to New York, and the war desk here now has to do the city-editing for all of Europe.

"During the World War (1914-1918) we had an expense problem, naturally, but nothing to compare with the one we are up against now."

Foreign news coverage costs are today the largest in history, according to Barry Faris, editor-in-chief of International News Service.

"The foreign news budget of INS", Mr. Farris said, "has been steadily increased ever since the Ethiopian and Sino-Japanese conflicts. And, of course, the present European war has sky-rocketed our expenses and has caused us to revise our foreign budget entirely.

"Of course, one of the biggest items has been and will continue to be cable and telephone tolls. Judging from the figures we have available to date, we estimate roughly that our present expenditures are running about $10,000 a week above normal. And this does not include many of the personal expense items of the various roving correspondents who really haven't had time to file their expense accounts.

"Undoubtedly, we can expect many 'unexpected' expense items, such as, for example, when H. R. Knickerbocker was in Ethiopia during that situation, he had to purchase mule packs and, at one time, he had to charter an airplane both to cover a story and get his despatch out of the country".

The Associated Press said it will be at least a month before any definite indication of what the total increase will be, because bills are paid by the European executives, but the cable tolls alone are now running at more than $5,000 a day, up about $3,000 over normal.

In some instances, Mr. O. S. Gramling said, important despatches have been sent through six channels to insure delivery and this factor alone has added greatly to transmission costs.

Some of the traditional adventure associated with the life of war correspondents has begun to crop out in despatches from Europe. Richard Mowrer, correspondent of the Chicago Daily News foreign service, escaped from the Russian-occupied section of Poland on the night of Sept. 19 by wading the Dneister River. Mowrer, formerly stationed at Warsaw, previously had been arrested as a suspected spy by Polish police at Zaleszczyki, frontier town. He was detained at a police station three and a half hours, and his passports were returned after prolonged questioning. Later he was arrested by Soviet soldiers and finally was compelled to wade the river because he was unable to get Russian permission to enter Rumania.

Mowrer, reported missing, was found walking along a dusty road nine miles inside the Rumanian border on Sept. 20 by Lloyd Lehrbas, AP correspondent from Bucharest, and Frank Morton, an American cameraman. They accompanied him into Cernauti, Rumania, from which point Mowrer filed a detailed account of his experiences and the occupation of Zaleszyzyki. He wrote that he stripped to wade the river and then climbed a steep bluff on the Rumanian side of the Dniester, barefoot, in his efforts to get his despatches through.

Coronary Heart Disease More Common in the Well-To-Do

It has been amply proven that children of well-to-do parents are more nervous, more anxious, than those of poor parents. This is due to the fact that children of poor children meet so many cares and difficulties that they learn to "take" them as a matter of course.

It has also been shown that those who have always been poor in this world's goods, the parents of these children, have better nerves than have adults who live in better circumstances.

An interesting study of how the economic status, the financial condition or position of individuals, has an influence on what is called coronary heart disease (disease of the arteries supplying the heart muscles) is reported by Drs. W. H. Gordon, E. F. Bland and P. D. White, Boston in the American Heart Journal. They examined the records of 600 well-to-do patients, and, for comparison, 2800 patients from the public wards of hospitals.

The public ward patients came largely from the low middle class of wage earners, many of whom were able to pay a part of their hospital expenses.

These physicians found that the number of cases of coronary heart disease and the severity of the disease was much greater in the 600 patients (private) than in the 2800 general ward patients. The greatest difference occurred in the middle-aged patients, in whom the coronary spasm or stoppage (which causes the symptoms) was found to be twice as frequent in the group of private patients. The difference was most striking in middle-aged men.

I believe the lesson for all of us is very evident. All men and women have about the same amount of infections—teeth, tonsils, intestine—which damage the bloodvessels supplying the heart. In fact, the well-to-do should be able to get rid of infections sooner than those who are not so well off. What then causes more cases of coronary heart disease in the well-to-do than in the less well-to-do?

The explanation must be the tenseness, the worry, the anxiety of trying to keep pace with one's ambitions in this civilization. Tenseness and anxiety cause spasms of these vessels.

More rest, less worry, a better philosophy of life, would appear to be what the middle-aged well-to-do but struggling middle-aged man needs if he is to ward off dangerous attacks of coronary heart disease.

There's machines you can buy, that will tell if you lie,
If yourself you can't trust with the truth,
If you're filled with deceit, this machine can't be beat,
It's a trap for the aged and the youth.

There's another machine no doubt you have seen,
That will multiply, add, and divide,
Subtract and explore, the figures before
Your brain has a chance to decide.

There's a gadget I'm told, the news will unfold,
Every happening this gadget will glean,
Why ruin your shoes to gather the news,
It's free with a ticker machine.

I'm almost afraid a machine will be made,
To this thought I've always been wed,
That will change the whole race, bring all to the place
Where you won' need a brain in your head.

Weather Will Worry Warriors

Almost everything promises to be contraband in the present war, including weather forecasts. In all belligerent countries these already are closely guarded secrets. The familiar weather map printed in "The London Times" has vanished without trace. Our own Weather Bureau reports handicaps from scarcity of European data for its own reports. Once the whole duty of a soldier was to fear God and keep his powder dry. Nowadays the generals fear the weather and do their best to keep anybody else from knowing whether it will be dry or wet.

What happened in Poland might have been very different had the rains been earlier and heavier. One wonders if the skillful German forecasters knew in advance that they would not be. Far from foolish is the suggestion that this war may be won not by the heaviest battalions but by the ablest predictors of weather.

The weakness of mechanical warfare is its dependence on Nature. Not only must there be continual supplies of fuel, lubricants, spare parts and skilled mechanics, but potent enemies are storms, bad roads and unexpected heat or cold.

Aircraft are essential, but their effectiveness is at the mercy of fog, head winds, ice-forming clouds or destructive storms.

Radio is no less necessary, even for field communications between tank and tank, but radio may be slowed or ruined at crucial moments by weather accidents such as static-breeding cold fronts or thunderstorms.

Military science still knows little of the strengths or weaknesses of the Blitzkrieg, but this seems not unlikely to be dangerously vulnerable to too much Blitz, in the form of Nature's lightning strokes instead of man's.

If it be true that Herr Hitler's astrologers set the date for hostilities, perhaps it was barometers these gentlemen consulted rather than stars.—N.Y. Herald.

OLDEST ELEPHANT

Jessie, the elephant in the Taronga Park Zoo, New South Wales, is fast going blind. She is now 77 and is reputed to be the oldest elephant in captivity. She has been the favorite of several generations of children. The superintendent of the Zoo, Major Patten, fears that she has not many years to live. "This faithful old animal," he said "was the gift of the King of Siam to the Zoological Gardens in 1882. She is a wonderfully framed animal and, according to old photographs, she went to work as soon as she arrived here. She could not have carried children until she was 20 years old, so that a rough calculation shows that she is about 77 years of age. Every year she has carried an aggregate of about 60,000 children—and many adults." Major Patten refutes the popular notion about the longevity of elephants. The idea that they live to immense ages is fallacious, he says. The average age, in his opinion, is about 70 years.—Montreal Gazette.

ENGLISHMAN IN ITALY

A straw—but one of many. An Englishman, whose fortune it is to be large and blond and whose misfortune it is to look in consequence Teutonic, has just returned from a motoring trip in Italy. Wherever he was known to be British he was received with open arms; wherever he was mistaken for a German he was cold-shouldered. The climax came when he called one day at a garage for some repair. He failed to make himself understood in Italian, so tried French. That was no good either, so he turned to German. The proprietor broke into execrations and drove him off the premises.—London Spectator.

STILL COULD GRUMBLE

A farmer who seemed to enjoy grumbling had an extra fine crop of potatoes. A neighbor said to him: "Ah, for once you must be pleased; every one is talking about your fine potatoes this year."

"They aren't so bad," admitted the man grudgingly; "but where are the bad ones for the pigs?"—Calgary Albertain.

I AM A JEW

Sir,—I am a Jew. Also, I am a Canadian and, now, a soldier. It is four years since I left Germany. Now I am a naturalized Canadian. Though I see some neighbors do not much like me, I am free here to work as I want. I know that if Hitler wins in this war things will be here like they are in Germany; so I want to fight to stop that.

The boys say I hate too much. I must hate for the things done to my father and mother and sister and me. I want to fight, too, because of them. Three hundred years have my family lived in Germany and we were Germans. My father was an officer and fought in the war of 1914, winning a medal. My sister was a hospital doctor and I was a youth with examinations passed into a civil service. My father sent me to Canada soon after the Nazis commenced to persecute the Jews; he was afraid that there would be no life for me in Germany.

He and my mother went to Austria; of course all our money and business was taken from us. There, they opened a boarding house for summer visitors in our old mountain home. My fair-haired sister married a German jute merchant and stayed in Germany with her husband and their baby.

When the Nazis captured Austria my father was taken away and we have not heard anything about him since. He must have died in a concentration camp, for he was an old man, though he looked strong and worked.

My mother is dead. She was fair-haired, too, like her children. In three hundred years, many of our family have been Christians and married blond German Christians. My mother's home and all of her property was taken from her. She was very hungry and died in the winter. Our one-time friends were afraid to help because the Nazis wish Jews to die.

My sister could not be a doctor any more and her husband divorced her; the black police say it is shameful for a German to marry a Jew and if a grandparent is a Jew the grandchild is a Jew. So my sister is dead, too. She was frightened and ashamed and hungry. Of my family, only I am alive; I and the men who did these things to us. We all worked and did no wrong. May God give vengeance.—Written by Eitel Isaac to the Montreal Star.

NAME TITLES

In referring to a controversy over the use of quotations as titles for books the London Times. Literary Supplement cites Harold Child's "A Poor Player" as an example of a title taken "from a passage that has probably provided more book titles than any other of its length in our literature." The full passage to which the Literary Supplement refers, from "Malbeth", is as follows:

She should have died hereafter;
There would have been a time for such a word.
Tomorrow, and tomorrow, and tomorrow.
Creeps in this petty pare from day to day,
To the last syllable of recorded time;
And all our yesterdays have lighted fools
The way to dusty death. Out, out, brief candle!
Life's but a walking shadow, a poor player
That struts and frets his hour upon the stage
And then is heard no more; it is a tale
Told by an idiot, full of sound and fury,
Signifying nothing.

Literary detectives can amuse themselves by trying to identify the products of this rich mine of book titles. Nobody can blame the authors for lack of originality, for Shakespeare said many things definitely.—New York Sun.

KARL SELTER

KAAREL EENPALU

GENERAL LAIDONER

Already giving in to certain Russian naval demands, Esthonia fears that Soviet troops may soon cross her border and rob the tiny post-war Balkan republic of its independence. Karl Selter, Esthonian foreign minister, is at present in Moscow in conference with Soviet foreign office officials. It is reported that the Soviet does not consider the government of Premier Kaarel Eenpalu friendly enough to Moscow. General I. Laidoner, head of the tiny Esthonian army has announced his country will defend itself if attacked.

Little Benny's Note Book

Sattiday morning I was sitting on our front steps waiting for some thing to happen, and ma and pop came out, ma saying, Benny, I'm going downtown with your father, and Nora has gone to the market for me and I expect some packages to be delivered from Hookbinders, and I want you to sit right here until they arrive or at least until Nora gets back, do you understand?

Well aw G, ma, this is Sattiday, I said, and ma said, Now I know that as well as you do, so there's no use changing the subject.

But jimminy crickits, ma, anything's libel to happen on Sattiday, and I'd have to miss it, and holey smokes ma, on a swell day like this, feel that wind, ma, look at those clouds, I said, and ma said, Very poetical I'm sure, but somebody has got to be there when those packages come. Here, I think I have some pennies in my bag, you can have them to keep you company, it proberly wont be long.

And she looked to see, saying, Yes, here's 3 cents, and I said, Well aw heck, ma, G roozlem what good's money when I just have to sit here and sit here forever as far as I know.

A very sound filosophy, pop said. To the slave in his shackles the rattling of his chains makes the clink of gold coins a hollow mockery, he said.

Wich just then what drove up but Hookbinders delivery truck with ma's packages, and ma said, Thank goodness, all's well that ends well, you're as free as a bird on a twig for land sakes, and I quick said, Well jimminy, ma, I'll stay here a while in case any more come if you want to give me the 3 cents anyways just a same.

Yee gods I was wrong, the chink of money makes the slave's chains sound like music, let's go, pop said.

Wich they did, me not knowing whether to feel lucky or not.

An amazing tribute has just been paid to the Faculty of Medicine of McGill University. This Summer, it is announced, more than 800 applications for admissions have been received, but only a small proportion, a little more than 100, could be accepted, 60 percent of these being Canadians. That so many medical students should seek to study at McGill does, indeed, speak volumes for the excellence of the university's Medical Faculty. This faculty is the oldest at the university, and has been training medical students in the lecture rooms and in the local hospitals for more than a century.—Canada's Weekly.

H. & P. E. REGT.

Volunteers will all be re-attested before going overseas, as had been announced in Parliament.

Famous Regiments Chosen

The units chosen for overseas service include several with glorious records in the first Great War, such as the 48th Highlanders of Toronto, the Royal 22nd Regiment of Quebec, Princess Patricia Canadian Light Infantry and the Royal Montreal Regiment.

The plan draws upon the Permanent Royal Canadian Artillery for each of the three artillery brigades. Non-permanent force batteries will come from British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba, Quebec, Ontario and New Brunswick.

Headquarters units for divisional engineers, divisional signals, and divisional army service corps, all come from the permanent force.

Permanents to Assist

According to the plan, one battalion from each of the infantry brigades will be from the permanent force.

Permanent force unit of the First Brigade will be the Royal Canadian Regiment, companies of which are stationed at London, Ont., Toronto; St. Johns, Que., and Halifax.

The Princess Patricia Canadian Light Infantry of Winnipeg and Victoria leads the Second Brigade, and the Royal 22nd Regiment of Quebec the Third Brigade.

Ontario provides the First Infantry Brigade. Non-permanent units designated for overseas service are the 48th Highlanders of Toronto, the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment and the Toronto Scottish Regiment (machine-gun).

Second Brigade from West

Western Canada provides the Second Infantry Brigade, headed by the Princess Pats. Other units will be the Seaforth Highlanders of Canada, Vancouver; the Edmonton Regiment, and the Saskatoon Light Infantry (machine-gun).

The Third Brigade comes from the Maritime Provinces and Quebec. The permanent unit is the Royal 22nd Regiment, reinforced by such non-permanent units as the West Nova Scotia Regiment, the Carlton and York Regiment of New Brunswick and the Royal Montreal Regiment (machine-gun).

POLICE SEEKING

Elude Pursuers

The bandits eluded village pursuers in automobiles after heading toward Wallaceburg. They were unwittingly aided in their escape by Bernard Hind, a district farmer, after their car went into a ditch near Paincourt.

Hind saw the car in the ditch and believing the occupants were stranded motorists drove to the scene to offer aid. He was met by a gun in the hands of one of the bandits and pushed aside as the robbers fled in his car.

A total of $90, believed part of the bank loot, was found in the car. The car later was established to have been stolen in St. Thomas, Ont. Inside the machine were United States' licence plates and a copy of a Detroit newspaper.

Plans Carefully Laid

Police believe plans for the holdup were carefully made. It was said four men were seen in the village, 15 miles southwest of Chatham, earlier this week and that plans may have been laid at that time.

The bandits went out after the holdup with no signs of nervousness and cursed while hording together the staff.

"I thought they were customers and did not look up from a letter I was writing," Strange said. "Then I heard some one say 'Put up your hands.' I looked up and saw a man pointing a gun at me. It would have been suicide to resist."

Letters to the Editor

Belleville, September 28th, 1939.
"The Ontario."
City.

Gentlemen:—

At this time, when people are working for the Red Cross, do you not think that it would be a good thing, if every person, who is a Member of The Red Cross Society, Life or otherwise, would show that he or she is a member, by wearing their Red Cross Pins. If this was started, it would probably bring many more into the Red Cross Circle, and would bring in more money, as I understand, that Members have to pay a small enrolment fee.

Merely a suggestion,
Yours truly,
A MEMBER.

BRIGHTER MOTORING

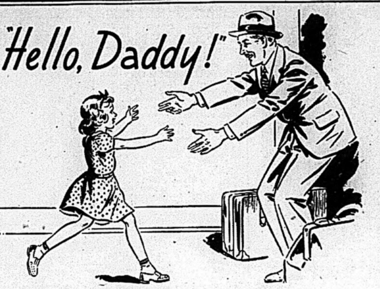
Incidents in which a lioness made off with a bundle of bedding belonging to a tourist and an elephant chased a motor-car are described in the annual report for 1938 by the National Board of Trustees of the Kruger National Park.

In the northern section of the park, where elephants are to be found, a motorist repeatedly blocked the road with his car in the vicinity of a herd in the hope of obtaining a close-up photograph. One of the animals, apparently annoyed, bore down upon the car. The only way of retreat left to the motorist was to put his car in reverse, and racing back he nearly came into collision with another elephant coming up from behind.—London Times.



"Hello, Daddy!"

Daddy was just back from a sales trip to the Magdalen Islands on Canada's eastern doorstep. To him it was routine. To little Ruth it was a chance to stay up late and hear stories . . .

"Twice as many people live on that ridge of Davy Jones' Locker as in the Yukon", he told Ruth and her mother; "yet they have no newspaper, no movie, few roads. It takes real seamanship to bring a ship in safely. Wrecks? Why, years ago a shift in the wind put 37 schooners ashore there in an hour! The islanders used to be cut off from the world for months. They got so peeved about it that they filled a barrel with letters to the Governor General and everybody, and set it adrift with a sail marked 'Winter Magdalen Mail'. It had the desired effect. Today the islands are one of Canada's most difficult air mail landings; but the intrepid airmen get in . . ."

His wife said, "So do Imperial salesmen!" She might have added that Imperial salesmen visit all the out-of-the-way regions in the Dominion from Labrador to the Yukon. No outpost is too remote, no hardship too great; for it is their mission to see that no one anywhere is without tobacco, the solace of solitude.

Belleville Women Convene To Hear of the Voluntary Registration for Service

Organizing for the purpose of ascertaining the woman-power of the nation, representatives of all women's organizations in Belleville convened at the Y. M. C. A. yesterday for the purpose of learning the fundamentals of the newly instituted Voluntary Registration of Canadian Women. Upwards to 150 women of this city heard stirring messages of the necessity of voluntary service during times of strife and need.

Mrs. A. Birdsall of Peterborough and Chairman of the Voluntary Registration of Canadian Women for the district of Hastings, Prince Edward, Northumberland and Lennox counties, explained in detail the aims and ambitions of the organization. "The fundamental reason, for the Voluntary Registration of Canadian Women is to ascertain the woman-power of Canada and pass such information along to the Government, Red Cross and sundry organizations. Ours is not an organization but merely a committee formed to assist all organizations that serve the country in times of need and emergency and for the purpose of preparedness," explained Mrs. Birdsall.

"Questionnaires have been provided by our committee which we urge the women of Canada to fill out in detail, regardless as to ability for service. This is purely a voluntary service with no remuneration for anyone. However, if a woman replaces a man in the business world through our committee of course that woman will receive remuneration for her work," added Mrs. Birdsall as she continued to explain that courses in home nursing, first aid, motor mechanics and even to drive tractors would subsequently be included on the program proposed by the Committee. There are fifteen districts, such as Mrs. Birdsall heads in this area, throughout the province of Ontario.

Mrs. Fowlds, Hastings, emphasized the need for registration and explained in detail the form for service in national emergencies, which all Canadian women are asked to fill out completely and in every detail. Mrs. Fowlds urged the immediate opening of booths throughout the city in which the womanhood of this district could register for voluntary work in case of emergencies. All women's organizations in the city were represented yesterday and signified their intentions of full co-operation, the Women's Canadian Club agreeing to supply the questionnaires needed by the Belleville branch.

Mrs. Roger Porter, who acted as chairman and introduced the speakers, stated that a downtown or central office would be necessary immediately, while as soon as possible four or five branch booths would be opened throughout the city in an effort to have all women in Belleville and the surrounding suburban area sign the questionnaires.

The committee named to start organization and which will act as a nucleus for subsequent committees needed in the registration of Canadian women, includes Mrs. R. Porter, chairman, Mrs. Archie Cameron, Mrs. C. E. Argue, Mrs. H. O. Trusdale, Mrs. G. M. McElhiney, Mrs S. Lazier and Mrs. A. B. Collins. Mrs. McElhiney was named secretary pro tem and will receive the names of those who will immediately volunteer to assist in the booths with the registration.

An appeal was launched for donation of a site for a central office, booths, a typewriter, telephone, stove, fuel and whatever office furniture that is needed.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

People With Food Notions Are Bores

To me there is nothing more downright boring than people with food notion. Spoiled children they are, whether adolescent or adult.

Their uncontrolled prattle runs on interminably: "I will not eat this" . . . "I will not eat that" . . . "I cannot eat this" . . . "I cannot eat that" . |. . . "I don't like this" . .. "I don't like that" . . . "I can't stand this". . . "I can't stand that" . . . "This doesn't agree with me" . . . "That doesn't agree with me" . . . "I can't eat this, unless it is fixed that way". . . "I never eat this if it is combined with that".

"So what?" I'd like to answer.

The "what" may be one of several reasons, or it may be a combination of several reasons.

The usual reason is that a mother is allowing her child, or has allowed her child to grow up disliking this or that food. Foolishly she has catered to ridiculous caprices about foods. She pays too much attention to his likes and dislikes. Continually she talks it over with him and, in his hearing, she talks it over, often brags about it, to the rest of the family and to the neighbors and to guests. Jack's or Jill's dislike of spinach is dramatized . . . . and this is precisely what Jack or Jill wanted. Now Jack is a hero and Jill is a heroine.

It's all pretty silly and thoroughly unnecessary. And, to everyone but the doting mother, completely boring.

What is the mother doing to her child? Most assuredly she is letting him form a habit that may make him miserable all his life.

If you want to do your child a great and lasting favor, teach him to eat anything that is edible. Of course he will prefer some foods to others, but don't be so namby-pamby with him that you'll permit him to say "I don't like this', or "I can't eat that."

Of course if he really and truly dislikes a certain food, he should not be forced to eat it. But, on the other hand, he shouldn't be permitted to talk about his dislike of the food, and thereby become a martyr. When that food is offered to him, he should be taught to say, "No, thank you". Don't let your acceptance or tolerance of his dislikes grow to a loud insistence of his dislike of several foods. For this is the beginning of food notions.

Many a mother has been taught the error of her lack of eating-discipline through outside forces. For example, how many little Willies who couldn't be driven to eat spinach by their doting mothers have had their spinach-resistance completely broken down by the mighty Popeye? Popeye's robust "Arf, arf, arf" after showing Willie what marvels of strength spinach will accomplish is worth a million of Mothers plaintive, "Eat your spinach, please, Willie. You need it".

Camps too have shown mothers that their children's food notions are ridiculous and unnecessary. They may "hate" this and that at home, but they are given these foods at camp. . .and watch their whims disappear when nobody at the camp table pays the slightest attention to them. They eat their string beans . . . and like 'em! And that's that.

By early discipline, by wise example, by tact, by pleasant "associations", children can be led into the gentle path of being amiable. They will develop will-power to eat what other people eat. This will lead to consideration for other people. And this is one of the grandest and most alluring of virtues.

And when children so schooled grow up, they will be pleasanter people to live with, pleasanter people to have around, pleasanter hosts and hostesses, pleasanter guests. Instead of being sissies about foods, they will be adaptable and civilized and cosmopolitan in their food tastes.

PRESENTATION

On Wednesday evening, Sept. 27, a goodly number from the fourth and fifth concessions of the Township of Sidney assembled in the Town Hall at Wallbridge to do honor to Mr. Alfred Platt who for several years has resided in this vicinity and who has recently signed up for active service and will soon be leaving for training at Trenton.

The meeting was called to order by Mr. C. F. Bowers who asked Mr. Platt to come forward and occupy a seat provided for him and after speaking of the many sterling qualities of Mr. Platt he called upon Mr. Clarence Wood who read the following address and Mr. Sam Chisholm who made the presentation.

Wallbridge, Sept. 27, 1939.

Dear Alfred: We, your, friends and neighbors have gathered together tonight to express to you our esteem and appreciation of the steps you have taken in signing up for active service in order to do your part to uphold democracy and to forever do away with dictatorship and thus free the world from the tyranny of despotism.

We feel assured that in the course you have taken that you have not been actuated by a spirit of adventure, but rather by a spirit of loyalty to the country of your birth, and also by a strict adherence to what you consider your duty.

The civilized world at the present time is facing a crisis such as it has never faced before, not even in the world war, and although we are confronted by fearful odds, our faith in a power that is greater than man, makes us confident that in the end our cause will triumph.

Peace by all honorable means has been sought by our leaders but without avail, and no other course remains but an attempt through modern warfare to curb and destroy those who through lust for power are willing to sacrifice the lives of countless millions.

Our enemies will find that in the words of the poet:

"We have yet the same breed of men indeed
That bore nobly the Waterloo wreath.
We have more of the blood that formed Inkerman's flood
As it flowed in a whirlpool of death,
And the foeman will find neither coward or slave
'Neath the Union Jack of Old England, "the flag of the brave".

We commend you and all others who have so freely offered their services to maintain a world free from the hand of the oppressor.

In conclusion we would ask you to accept this watch as a slight token of our regard for you and we assure you that our prayers for your safety will follow you wherever you may be called to go.

Signed — Morley Phillips, Sam Chisholm, Cameron Hough, Charlie Colley, Carman Sine.

At the conclusion of the address to which Mr. Platt made a suitable reply Mr. Bowers called for three cheers for Mr. Platt and all others who are enlisting for service after which refreshments were served and a social time enjoyed by all.

MELROSE WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

On Thursday afternoon, Sept. 28, the Melrose Institute met for their regular meeting at the home of Mrs. Eugene Badgley.

A large number of members and visitors was present to enjoy the interesting program which followed the opening exercises and business period.

The girls' club has accepted an invitation to demonstrate at the Area Convention. No local leader was appointed to conduct the project in "Hospitality" this fall. The members were reminded of the Officers' Rally to be held at Roslin. Mrs. Roy Badgley was appointed delegate to the Area Convention.

The local leader in Vegetable Cookery and her assistant namely Mrs. R Macfarlane and Mrs. F. Jeffrey displayed and explained the cooking of five varieties of vegeafternoon refreshments and were a splendid addition. These leaders urged the serving of more kinds of vegetables and varying ways of serving. Vegetable bulletins were passed and a score chart given each one to be marked for foods served the previous day.

Mrs. Roy Badgley then took charge of the program which followed along Educational lines.

Misses Frances Macfarlane and Evelyn Badgley played a duet which was followed by a humorous reading by Mrs. Grant McLaren.

Mrs. Bates sang, playing her own accompaniment after which Mrs. Badgley gave an interesting thought inspiring paper followed by observations drawn from a cooking demonstration at the C.N.E.

Plans were made regarding the next meeting. A committee was appointed to find what Red Cross work could be undertaken. Quilt blocks were asked for the sewing bee.

Collection amounted to $3.75. The meeting concluded with the National Anthem followed by the serving of delightful refreshments.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage.

Wives State Reactions to "Homebreaker"

Two or three weeks ago this column printed a letter which has brought in a tremendous response, especially from the aggrieved class —wives whose homes have been wrecked by homebreakers.

The Homebreaker who wrote to me, boldly stated her point of view. Said she had been engaged in a prolonged love affair with a married man, for which she expressed no remorse or repentance. Her argument was that a man who has found love outside of marriage wishes to insure himself against losing this love. To which end he tries to keep his wife contented, free of jealousy or suspicion. He gives "more time, consideration and inward thought to her well-being than she would other wise enjoy".

Naturally, the wives differ from the point of view of the Homebreaker and the following are some of their letter.

Answers to "Homebreaker"

"Dear Miss Fairfax

"A woman who suggests that a man gives his wife more attention to keep her contented and free from jealousy is a snake in the grass. A man does these things to keep his wife from knowing that another woman is in the picture. He may go out of his way to be nice to his wife, to lull her suspicions.

"I speak with authority. A friend of mine who came to our home presumably to see me, was carrying on an affair with my husband. And only through a misdirected telephone call did I uncover the truth. It caused our separation and broke up my little children's home.

No Apologist for Snakes"

Case of Wish-Fulfillment

"Dear Miss Fairfax

"A woman who tries to excuse her conduct for stealing another woman's husband and arguing that such clandestine affairs make husbands kinder to their wives is experiencing a case of 'wish-fulfillment.' Her phoney position spurs her into making specious arguments.

Happy Wife".

She Will Have to Answer to God

"Dear Miss Fairfax

"Doesn't the woman who wrote you, that a hole-in-the-corner affair makes husbands kinder to wives, know what men, deep down , in their hearts, think of a 'kept' woman? And has she forgotten that some day she will have to answer to God for breaking his commandments?

Religious Wife".

Homebreaker Will Be Trapped

"Dear Miss Fairfax

"The Homebreaker, who wrote to your column a little while ago, justifying her action in helping herself to another woman's husband, has completely overlooked the fact that wives are more clever than men in sensing these affairs, and that sooner or later husband and homebreaker are trapped.

"Few men, unless they're absolute slaves to their illicit desires, are willing to give up wife, home, children, friends, and often jobs, for the sake of these bargain-counter women.

Woman Who Knows."

These letters are highly interesting as human documents. We'll be glad to publish more of them.

The Stars Say—

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, October 1.

SUNDAY'S horoscope must be read as a particularly lively and stirring one, with rather vital issues at stake in both the business and private relations. It is probable that the latter may be under high stimuli, but social, domestic, romantic or cultural affairs are threatened by deception and peculiar dangers. Young and romantic persons should be especially vigilant and circumspect.

Those whose birthday it is are on the threshold of a year in which all intellectual and cultural expressions may be under particularly high tension. This tension may precipitate lively if not drastic performance. Young people and youthful urges and demands are under clamorous need for "emancipation." Imprudent or reckless pursuit of such objectives may entail sinister involvements or regrettable complications. Use restraint, discretion and forethought before seeking illicit "escapes."

A child born on this day, while being versatile, artistic, musical or literary, may be carried to extremes by youthful urges and impetuosities. Proper training of excellent talents, and the direction of a refined, genial and lovable nature, would fit it for a very successful

For Monday, October 2.

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is for sudden and quite unforeseen developments, which may cause rather revolutionary changes in old and wearying inhibitions or depressions. Limitations, difficulties and delays may give way to new urges, emotions and ambitions, and these may find expression in romance and courtship, or in emotional or artistic adventures.

Those whose birthday it is are under an astral urge to find success, happiness and adventure in artistic, social or domestic affairs. There may be a radical breaking away from old persons, places and circumstances, to find lively events, good fortune and happiness. There may be secrecy or hidden joys to heighten spiritual satisfactions.

A child born on this day may have a rather curious or intriguing character and temperament, with hidden sources of inspiration, ideals or psychological gratifications. Openly radical and venturesome, it may be romantic and pleasure-seeking.

SUPPLY BASE

But the fundamentally short-sighted and highly unsatisfactory embargo law does have a loophole of another sort. It bars only the shipments of certain manufactured war devices and death-dealing chemical products.

There is nothing in the statute to preclude the sale to Canada, or to any other belligerent or neutral, of the iron and steel and copper and other raw materials from which men fashion their implements of war.

Nor is there any prohibition against the use of American capital to build plants in Canada or elsewhere for the manufacture of war material for fighting nations. Thus, Canada—neutral or at war — might well become a supply base for Britain and France.—Washington Star.

Care of a Baby in Its First Year

No. 2

Yesterday, in our series on the mechanics of taking care of infants we got the baby safely born and to bed. The next great worry with mothers seems to be the bath.

Well, no baby should be put into a tub for his bath until the cord falls off and the navel heals. But before this happens, he can be sponged off with lukewarm water. It is just as simple as it sounds, and mothers who do the job correctly can make bathing the baby one of the pleasantest duties of the day.

The trouble is, some mothers get to worrying about the possibility of chilling the baby; they fuss about him and rush the job so that they become confused and have a thoroughly unpleasant time of it. And the worst of it is that under these conditions they do a very bad job of bathing the child.

If the mother prepares the needed things in advance, and then proceeds calmly to do one thing at a time, the whole business of bathing will become a very pleasant duty, and with a minimum of danger of chilling the infant. Of course the room should be warm—at least 72 degrees—and of course there must be no draughts. If there is any danger of these at all, then it is wise to put up a screen to protect the baby. If you don't happen to have a screen, you can drape a sheet or two over a couple of chairs and have a very good substitute.

It is important that before you start, you gather all the articles you will need during the bath. A convenient way is to keep a tray handy and have on it all the baby's things.

Until the baby is about six months old, the water for the bath ought to be kept at a temperature of ninety-eight to a hundred degrees Fahrenheit; after six months, ninety-five degrees is about right, and by the end of his first year he can be bathed in water heated only to ninety degrees.

The bath can be given either on a table, or on your lap. It should be given before the feeding period, and at the same time every day. Other than this, it doesn't matter at what hour it is done.

When everything is ready the mother washes her hands, takes the baby up and gives him, first, a drink of cool, boiled water. Then, using prepared swabs of absorbent cotton, she cleanses the nose and the ears. These swabs are easily made by rolling a bit of cotton around a toothpick and then removing the toothpick. Normally the mouth and eyes won't need attention at all.

Next, remove the baby's dress and petticoat wash his face without soap, and with a soft face cloth. Next wash the head, now using a mild lather of some mild soap. Apply this lather with the hand, and use the same face cloth to rinse it well. When drying, rub well and dry thoroughly.

Next remove the diaper and cleanse the buttocks with cotton dipped in oil. It is a good idea for the mother to hold the baby over the chamber now, before proceeding with the bath any further.

Now the shirt can be removed and the baby is put into the tub. Try to keep him covered as much as possible while soaping the body, for naturally it is important to keep him from getting a chill. Also, when in the tub, it is wise to support the head and shoulders with the left wrist.

When the body is well rinsed with a clean face cloth, lift the baby from the tub, wrap him in a towel and pat him until he is dry. Now moisten the tips of the fingers in oil and rub them over the creases of the body to prevent chafing.

With both girl and boy babies, the genitals should be cleansed carefully. Your doctor will be glad to show you how this should be done.

More Substantial Meals

ARE YOU thinking in terms of more substantial meals now that summer is on the wane? If so, you'll be glad to have these recipes for tasty, nutritious and yet inexpensive dishes.

Curried Crabmeat is an excellent luncheon or supper dish. Recipe calls for two cups hot cooked rice, three tablespoons butter, one and one-half teaspoons minced onion, three tablespoons flour, tablespoon curry powder, one and one-half cups each chicken stock and canned crab-meat, one tablespoon lemon juice and three-fourth teaspoon salt. Cook minced onion with butter for three minutes. Add flour, salt and curry powder, stirring until smooth. Next add chicken stock and cook until thickened. Add canned crabmeat from which bones have been removed, and lemon juice. Heat and serve with hot rice. Chicken bouillon cubes or canned chicken broth may be used as stock.

Here's a recipe which stretches a pair of expensive sweetbreads to four servings. Ingredients include one and one-half cups stock, salt and pepper, few drops onion juice, two eggs, teaspoon onion juice, one-half tablespoon flour, teaspoon minced parsley, dash of ginger, one pair sweetbreads and four cooked puff shells. To cook the sweetbreads, wash in cold water, cover with water to which one-half teaspoon salt and a tablespoon of lemon juice or vinegar have been added, and cook gently for 30 minutes. When done, rinse in cold water, remove Heat stock, season with salt and pepper to taste, and add onion juice, membranes and cut in small pieces. Beat eggs, add lemon juice, flour, parsley and ginger. Mix well, add to stock and cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Add cooked sweetbreads, heat well and serve on the cream puff shells or toast squares.

Brisk buying is the report from the Autumn fur and fur-trimmed cloth coat sales. A smooth black woollen has a mink vestee front and back. The vestee is collarless with the fur built up to points just below the chin, each point held by a furry ball button.

A winner for early autumn is the fine black faille or bengaline suit with a perky back peplum to the jacket and back fullness in the skirt.

It's a pleasure to try on such hats as a toque of red felt with a green feather bird posed in front, nose veil in sheer black lace completes the flattery.

High rating goes to a smart coat promoted for back-to-the-campus. It is of rose colored tweed with beaver revers and wide cuffs.

Making a Pretty Picture

By HELEN FOLLETT

MARY HEALY

Grace of movement emphasizes her trim figure.

TO BE PICTORIALLY charming a woman must have grace of movement. It makes her distinguished, puts her in top class. She stands alone among thousands of slumpers and slouchers, girls who are too lazy to pull up their backbones, tuck in their tummies. A lovely figure has little meaning if it assumes listless, unattractive poses. It is like a face of perfect features that lacks character and intelligence.

Grace is easily acquired. It does not cost a cent. And it is a rare quality of charm.

Keep lifted and forward that portion of the torso where the lower ribs are separated. The fibres below are draw in in, those above are expanded, giving emphasis to the chest, flattening the abdomen.

When standing, place the weight of the body on the ball of the foot so the body will be balanced. Keep the torso tall, but not rigid. Move with ease. Jerky movements are awkward.

Good carriage, which demands flexing of the muscles and alertness of step, is suggestive of vibrant youth. The slouchy pose makes the physical being lumpish and loutish. Strong words these, but somebody has to tell 'em.

The auburn-brunette usually has a skin of ivory whiteness. She may have eyes of brown, grey, blue or hazel. Black is the best color she can wear, bringing out the highlights of her glorious crown, the delicacy of her complexion.

Rich brown tones are becoming but beige hasn't enough character to make her appearance vivid. She can wear bronze-green, even jade, with flattering effect. Navy blue is a good choice as it is for nearly all types. Certain shades of red are becoming, clear strong pinks are good.

She should use a powder slightly darker than her skin ,no rouge at all, a lipstick the color of a deep red rose.

IF YOU'RE a freshman this fall you can plan four years' wear from such sports coats as this Alaska sealskin. It's hardy as well as soft, and popular the country over for campus and stadium.

The model sketched, boxy but not bulky looking was inspired by a skipper's coat and is nautically fastened. The two-thirds' length assures the wearer plenty of warmth as well as giving her a chance to show pretty plaid frocks, vivid tweed skirts and, for that matter, scarlet ski pants. Nothing would be more appropriate for winter week-ends—trekking from ski slope to lodge, bobsledding, spectating. The color's a rich brown bordering on the ruby fox so highly acclaimed this season.

There's One More Thing

There comes the time when all that is left of summer are pleasant memories and snapshots. But if you are a careful person, there should be summer clothes and sports things to be put away, fresh and clean for another year. So let's get busy and see that summer clothes and swim suits are in good condition for storage.

When the time comes to put away your swim suit for the winter, it should receive more than the casual dipping in and out of the water that it usually gets between wearings during the swim season. To prevent rotting during the storage period, the suit should be given a thorough washing to remove salt, sand and grit. If the suit has an underpart of wool, even [illegible] the dress part is in some [illegible] material, the entire garment [illegible] be laundered. That means [illegible] the swim suit should go into [illegible]rm suds, not hot, and that it [illegible]ld be swished around in sev[illegible] waters to make sure that all [illegible] of the beaches has been [illegible]. Three or four rinses in clear water should follow the sudsings. Then remove excess water and hang out-of-doors, if possible, to dry. Before storing the suit it is a good idea to darn all holes and sew on missing buttons and buckles. Then, when the suit is needed again, perhaps, for a southern vacation during the winter, it will be ready for instant use and can be packed at once. Moth preventive in the packing is an excellent notion.

Because skirt lengths change so much from year to year, many women have found it an advantage to take down the hems of all their summer dresses before putting them away. This is best done before the final laundering which precedes the packing, because the washing and the ironing will help eradicate the mark left in the fabric where it has been turned up. Taking down the hem is particularly helpful with clothes belonging to children, because of the inevitable change in height from one summer to the next.

All washable summer clothes should be thoroughly washed and repaired before being put away. Ironing is not necessary. To prevent their getting grimy again during the winter, it is much better to pack the summer things in dust-proof boxes than to hang them up in a closet.

AT THE BELLE

"The Star Maker"

Local lovers of the grand kind of entertainment dispensed by Bing Crosby on screen and radio can look forward to seeing Bing in a picture which really measures up to his talents in Paramount's "The Star Maker," now at the Belle theatre.

The new Crosby vehicle, which might readily be termed a singing cavalcade of show business, gives Bing the best role he has ever had. It casts him as a tin pan alley song writer, a small time hoofer who believes that he can rise to the top in show business by taking talented kids from the sidewalks of New York, and building them into great acts.

Produced by Charles R. Rogers, who has discovered many stars, directed by Roy Del Ruth, who has brought many great musical hits to the screen, "The Star Maker" presents the best cast ever to appear with Bing. It includes Louise Campbell as nis practical-minded wife, Linda Ware, fourteen-year-old singer discovered by Rogers, as a youngster Bing builds into a star, Ned Sparks, as Bing's press agent, Laura Hope Crews, as an ex-opera singer, and Janet Waldo, as Bing's secretary. Walter Damrosch, "Grand old man" of American music, will also be seen in the picture, conducting The Philharmonic Orchestra of Los Angeles. In addition, the largest group of singing and dancing youngsters ever assembled for a motion picture, appear with Bing in the production numbers.

Bing's Song Won't Sell

The story of the picture—suggested by the career of that grand showman, Gus Edwards—starts with Bing trying to persuade Louise Campbell, a girl who assists the matron of an orphanage, to marry him. She finally consents, and they are happy even though Bing writes songs which won't sell and loses job after job.

Watching a group of newsboys sing and dance while on his way to get another job, Bing decides to organize them into the greatest kid act ever to hit the stage. The act gets a tryout, is successful. Bing hires Ned Sparks as press agent, launches kid acts all over the country. Then Laura Hope Crews, brings Linda Ware to him. Bing is enthused about her great talent, decides to make her a star, and presents her in an all-kiddie musical revue on Broadway.

Helps Singer Succeed

When the Gerry Society closes the show by enforcing a law which forbids children to perform after ten o'clock at night, Bing takes Miss Ware to Walter Damrosch, persuades him to present her in a concert. She succeeds, but Bing has [illegible]st out in his kiddie acts, is forced [illegible] seek success in a different field, [illegible]dio.

The picture affords Bing a chance to sing the great Gus Edwards' numbers, "School Days," "In My Merry Oldsmobile," "Jimmy Valentine" and many others. He also sings four new songs by the ace Burke-Monaco team. They are entitled "An Apple for the Teacher," "A Man and His Dreams," "Go Fly a Kite," and "Still the Bluebird Sings," and of course, the talented Miss Ware sings a wide selection of numbers, ranking from "Darktown Strutters' Ball" to Tschaikowsky's "Waltz of the Flowers."

The popular Belle world news events, Popeye in a funny cartoon "Ghosks is the Bunk" and a clever popular science film in technicolor conclude the program.

In the Middle of Night

By JOAN RODGERS

Harriett stirred. She was uncomfortable. She despised this southbound train. Who wanted to live in Okahoma, anyway! Darn it, she did love Bill. If he would only work at something besides oil.

"Sha-a-tuck!" called Conductor Williams. He had two Shatuck passengers, both young ladies. He surmised that they were probably school teachers.

"Station is closed but there is a taxi that meets this train,' he told his two passengers as he lifted their bags to the platform.

"Is there a hotel here?" Harriett asked.

The conductor had swung back up the steps of the moving train. The other passenger, a slender, taller girl, answered her. "There's a sort of a hotel. That's where I'm going. Come along with me it you wish."

The hotel was a wooden structure. There was a drop light with a ghastly green shade hanging above an ugly brown desk. A large ledger marked "Clarion Register" lay open. A small card was tacked beside a bell, it read, "Ring bell for clerk." Harriett pushed the white button. They heard a bell jangling somewhere in the back and the springs of a bed creaked loudly. A baldish man wearing a flannel nightshirt, gray robe and shoes came down the stairs.

They carried their bags up the stairs and were shown into a room on the left of a hallway. Harriett locked the door and dropped onto the closest bed.

"Don't be frightened," the other girl told her. "I've stayed here before. We're perfectly safe. By the way, I'm Polly Graham and I'm on my way down to Pleasant Hill to visit my brother."

Harriett, unpacking her bag, repeated to herself "Graham." She knew. Graham was the friend of Bill who had opened up this terrible job.

"I'm really so excited," Polly went on. "I'm in love with one of the fellows who works with my brother."

"Oh," Harriett's mind and heart were doing somersaults.

"He's a dream really. I've been in love with him since I was eleven years old," Polly went on, not looking at Harriett. Harriett remembered in a flash that this Graham friend he lived in Bill's home town. She wished this girl would shut up. Polly was saying. "He married someone else but that didn't change my feelings."

Harriett turned on the light and got into bed. So her marriage wasn't a success. She had wanted it to last always. She thought Bill had been completely happy. Of course, he had wanted her to come south with him four months ago and he couldn't understand her reluctance to leave her familiar North. Oh, if she only had a chance to do that over. She'd go with him, no matter what the hardships. If she had come South with him, they could have kept their oneness, their sense of being partners. The girl with her beautiful hair; and they were being decent about it.

Harriett crossed to the one window and knelt, flinging her bare arms over the window sill. She finger. She had failed Bill once. She finger. She had failed Bll ince. She had let him go away alone. She wouldn't deprive this girl of her chance. She had had a chance and had failed.

"Oh, say," Polly was sitting up in bed, "are you sick?"

"No-o." Harriett tried frantically to think of an excuse for being there.

"I can't sleep either. These beds are terrible. Say, what is your name?" "Harriett Campbell." She had told the truth and she was going to tell this girl more of the truth.

"Why, you're Bill Campbell's wife, aren't you?"

"Yes." Harriett spoke in a low voice.

"He's a friend of my brother's and Percy thinks he's a grand fellow."

"Percy?"

"Percy is the sweetheart I was telling you about."

Harriett crept back to bed saying little fervent prayers. She had another chance, her singing heart kept telling her.

Polly punched her pillow and buried her head in a deep hollow "Now! Bill Campbell" she confided to her pillow, "Tommy Graham's meddlesome sister has scared your wife into her senses. Oh, Heavens!" she became wide awake; I'll have to dig up a Percy!"

Orders and Orders

By MARTIE RAMSON

Did ya ever run into a guy that lived his life with a system? You know, one of these routine things that maybe to you an' me would be monotonous. Yet, Phil Hayden got a big kick outta life livin' that way.

He had a certain night to a dance; another night to the library an' the rest of the nights he'd stay home an' read.

Had a good job managin' some chain store for thirty-five a week and a bank account that would keep growin' as long as the job held out. He'd always say, "What's the use of havin' three or four suits hangin' in the closet, or three or four pairs a shoes layin' aroun' when ya can only wear one at a time?"

But like I say, he had a good job an' he was proud of it; proud of his bank account, too. Always said it would be a good shelter on a rainy day. But rain or no rain, darned if I'd spend a rainy day in the bank watchin' my account if I had one.

Like all other guys that lived accordin' to Hoyle, Phil had a weakness. He liked to play the horses. On Saturday closin' the store at one o'clock, he'd borrow it from the store's safe till Monday, 'cause at twelve o'clock every Monday the company collector picked up the money.

The story really starts on March 8, 1933. Phil goes up to Toby's place after the store closes an' he's got his pay check with 'im which always comes in the first mail on Saturdays.

Toby's bookin' every track that's so a guy's got plenty a chance to make plenty a bets. Fact is, when Phil walks in the "megaphone" is hollerin' 'They're up there at Chicago, boys. If ya' like 'em, say it with money. That's the only langwidge we talk here."

Phil goes over, an' after lookin' at the entry sheet for a while, makes a bet on some nag that never even comes near the money.

But he don't get discouraged easy and makes another bet on Major Lamshere. If this Major horse is the one I think it is, he won his first race in a chariot for Julius Caesar, so ya can imagine how old the horse can be. But Phil don't know this till after the race is over an' the Major finishes in the also ran' column. He's gettin' a little hot under the collar by this time, but instead of takin' his collar off he sinks the rest of his dough in the next two races, an' for the first time since he had a steady job, he's C.O.D.

Well, never let it be said about Phil Hayden that he's a quitter. He'd stay with 'em till Saint Peter run the Devil outta business, an' accordin' to all the horse players there is in the country that'd take an awful long time.

Phil's bank was closed, but he goes down to the store and borrows fifty bucks from the safe till the bank opened Monday. In ten minutes he's back up at Toby's figgerin' how he can get even.

He bets ten to win an' ten to show on Chuckataw who's in there at three to one an' looks like the top spot of the card. But Phil forgot that there was six other horses in the race an' they all wanted to win as bad as Chuckataw did. An' I don't mind tellin' ya that while tehy all couldn't win they all did beat Chuckataw, which meant twenty bucks less that Phil would have to watch on that rainy day.

Poor kid is in a bad spot an' he's gotta pick one that'll put 'im outta the hole or else . . . He hated to think of diggin' into that bank account.

After lookin' em all over carefully, he finally figgers that there's only one horse that can do him any good. So usin' money instead of conversation, he bets ten to win and twenty to show on John Dee. If ya ask me, I think it was a smart play. If the horse wins he gets a big chunk for the front and an' nice piece for the show money with a twenty-dollar lay on it. If the horse runs second or even drops in the third spot, he's still bound to be ahead on the race. John Dee was four to one on the line, but Phil leaves it open 'cause there's an eight to five shot an' even money shot runnin', so if John Dee beats 'em out he's bound to pay better than four to one. He had the right dope on that race an' it was his only chance of gettin' even. But John Dee don't know anything about Phil's troubles. The horse is got troubles of his own an' he just couldn't leave that barrier.

That is not until the rest of the field was half way around the track. By that time Phil was on his way home talkin' to himself.

It's a funny thing how lucky some guys really can be. Here's Phil, all the time worryin' about havin' to put the money that he borrowed back in the safe, an' when he opens up Monday morning he finds the safe blown open an' all the mo[illegible] gone.

The companion vol[illegible]e to John Gunther's now famou[illegible] classic "Inside Europe" has bee[illegible] added to the library this week. A new collection of poems by Edna St. Vincent Millay is always an event in the literary world. Her latest book "Huntsman, what Quarry?" is no less distinguished in maturity of thought and lyric quality than her previous work. A contemporary American poet has aptly described her style thus, "Going among her lyrics is like going into the woods before the leaves are completely out.....Every breath is timed; every line is true; every curve seems right."

Wrestling Faithful Witness Three Clever Bouts at Arena With First Stealing Show

Epps and Maich in Main Bout Wrestle to a Draw

DANIELS PUGNACIOUS

Griffin Protests Decision and Pair Fight Outside the Ropes

Color, literally and figuratively ushered in the 1939 professional wrestling season at the Hume Arena last night, when a splendid card, witnessed by a fair-sized crowd of the faithful, produced excitement, some splendid wrestling and the usual reaction of the attendant public, when a goodly mixture of their favorite sport is produced. The main bout between Rud Epps, highly touted Columbus, Ohio, grappler and Joe Maich, Brantford heavy failed to reach a decision after the finest exhibition of wrestling seen here in many a moon. While Tiger Daniels eked out a "bloody" victory over Young Griffins of Regina, that included a near-riot.

The initial bout of the evening stole the show as the pugnacious Tiger Daniels of Regina, literally pounded Young Griffins, Niagara Falls, into submission to win a decision that brought the wrath of the fans upon his head. Griffins protested the final decision and subsequently openly attacked Daniels outside of the ring with the general populace taking sides in a general bedlam, but Daniels' victory was still upheld by Referee Cliff Faux, who separated the pugnacious grapplers.

A Gory Scrap

Blood ran freely from Griffins' nose in the second round after Daniels kicked the Niagara Falls' lad squarely in the face. The entire three-fall bout was filled with action as Daniels kicked, punched and gouged his way to a first-round fall with a press in exactly 11 minutes. Daniels continued his rough tactics in the second round to draw blood from Griffins, who later gained a leg-lock and toe-hold to win in jig order. Daniels won the third and final fall with a figure-four leg-lock, but Griffins protested and later attacked Daniels in fisticuffs outside the ring. The patrons of the pastime took sides and a general free-for-all ensued that took the efforts of police and Referee Faux to quell. [illegible] through the bout the contestants had the crowd in an uproar with their pugnacious efforts in [illegible] bloodiest set-to seen in a [illegible]al ring in years.

Main Bout a Honey

Next in line was the main bout between Rudy Epps, of Columbus, Ohio, and Joe March of Brantford. [illegible] the outset the fans were with [illegible] Canadian wrestler, but as [illegible] two lads employed some of [illegible] best wrestling efforts yet seen [illegible] local ring, the patrons were [illegible]ing the bout as it progressed. There was [illegible] a dull moment in the next [illegible]nd as Maich returned to the [illegible] and proved the aggressor de[illegible]te the disadvantage of weight. [illegible]ice Maich seemed to have Epps' [illegible]lders pinned for the count but [illegible] Columbus lad wiggled out. In [illegible]sterly manner Maich finally [illegible]d two rapid flying mares and [illegible] with a press in 19 minutes. Although Maich was the aggressor for the next 17 minutes the bout ended the draw with Epps roughing matters in a last minute effort to eke out a win. It was announced during the bouts that a return bout between Daniels and Griffins had been assured for next week when another popular three-bout card would be presented.

Proved Too Rough

In the preliminary bout Alex [illegible] Boston, proved too rough for [illegible] heavier opponent, Ran Gaz[illegible] of Toledo, and forced Gaz[illegible] to submission with the applic[illegible] of a punishing step-over lock and toe-hold that forced [illegible]aley to cry for mercy and [illegible]de the fall. # PAIR OF BOSSES IN WORLD SERIES SITTING PRETTY

Joe McCarthy and Will McKechnie Pushed Around After Winning Flags

SOMEWHAT SIMILAR

Both Masters of Psychology As Applied to Ball Players

By SID FEDER

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, Sept. 30 (AP)—Among other incidentals, such as base hits, strikeouts, and winning ball games, the boys also will be playing for the meandering manager's championship of the big leagues in their world series get-together next week.

For, in Marse Joe McCarthy, on the one hand, and Will McKechnie, on the other, you have a pair of bosses who really get around.

Marse Joe is the only manager in history to pilot pennant winners in both leagues. Deacon Will is the only guy to lead clubs in three different cities to the big dough.

And they are probably the two most famous examples of baseball's nasty little habit of rewarding pennant winning managers by firing them. Both know all about that one. Marse Joe booted the Cubs home in '29 and was politely knocked out the following year. The good deacon won with Pittsburgh in '25 and got the little pink slip from the Pirates in '27. He repeated with St. Louis in 1928, and was out of a job again the next year.

Both Sitting Pretty.

They're both sitting pretty now, however. The Yankees would as soon sell Joe DiMaggio as move McCarthy's big jaw out of their dugout. And in Cincinnati, the Reds, with their first pennant in twenty years, are thinking of electing mild Mr. McKechnie to the mayor's office.

They're similar in a lot of ways, these two—the short, stocky McCarthy, with a jutting chin and a genial smile, and the slender McKechnie, with a face seamed by the sun of a thousand ball games.

They're both masters of psychology as applied to individual ball players, who arrive in the big time as green as cooking apples and must be moulded into a one-piece pie. They both know how to get the most out of their men with a little pat on the back here, or a cajoling word there.

They're the complete opposite of such fireball bosses as Casey Stengel, Burleigh Grimes and Leo the Lip Durocher. Rarely does either come charging out on an umpire, although they can dish it out with the best when they don't like the color of Mr. umps' hair.

5-YEAR CONTRACT FOR JOE CRONIN

Four Other Players of Boston Red Sox Also Signed for Next Year

Boston, Sept. 30—(AP)— After parrying queries about Joe Cronin's future for more than a year with the reply that "he has nothing to worry about," Tom Yawkey, millionaire owner of Boston Red Sox, more than made good his promise by signing his player-manager to another five-year contract.

When the young magnate made that important announcement in off-hand fashion last night, he also said he had signed up four other outstanding players, Jimmy Foxx, Ted Williams, Bobby Doerr and Jim Tabor for the 1940 season.

Yawkey refused to comment on his shortstop-manager's renewal terms or those for the others. Cronin, purchased from Washington for $150,000,000 and Lyn Lary in 1934, is reputed to have been drawing $27,000 a year since he took the Red Sox helm. As its pilot, he has seen his club finish fourth, sixth, fifth and for this and last season as runners-up to the Yankees.

Joe Cronin can stay with the Red Sox as long as I'm connected with them," Yawkey said, "He's been competent and loyal and maybe he won't be able to play shortstop forever or wish to continue as manager, but there'll always be a place for him in my organization."

Yawkey was asked if he had signed Bob (Lefty) Grove, his most effective pitcher, for next season.

"No, Mosie hasn't signed," he said. "One of these fall days, when we're hunting together, we'll sit down and talk about his contract. He'll say: 'Humph! Bring it out.' And that will be that."

NELSON STEWART, LEADING SCORER HANGS UP SKATES

Famous Member of Great "S" Line Decides He Has Had Enough

14 YEARS IN GAME

Largely Responsible for Fine Showing of Amerks the Last Two Years

Toronto, Sept. 30 (CP)—Hockey's most remarkable player, Nelson R. (Nels) Stewart, has decided to hang up the skates that carried him languidly through National league defences for the league's greatest scoring record.

Stewart took time yesterday from his other great sports interest—the horses—to admit solemnly that he had received his release from New York Americans and wasn't interested in playing minor-league hockey.

After 14 years of ghosting in to baffle the game's greatest goaltenders, Stewart decided simply that he'd had enough. He didn't know what he would do, though a winter in the south with the horses looked attactive. But there were indications he might be willing to manage a hockey club, possibly Montreal Canadiens if he got an offer.

"Managing hockey teams is no picnic at any time and it looks as if the Canadiens will need considerable managing," he said. "But I won't say I would turn down an offer to give the job a try."

Won Scoring Title

The first year he played in the N.H.L., 1925-26, Stewart won the scoring championship with 34 goals and eight assists as a member of the old Montreal Maroons. He kept piling up his total of goals until in 1937-38 he became the first man ever to score 300 in the big league. Before the close of last season, he fired his 317th.

Always "Ole Poison's" tactics were the same—a wait, a quick break past the defence and then a shot that made him more feared by goalies than any other player. No one in the N.H.L. today is near his scoring total and maybe no one ever will be.

His best years were with the Maroons as a member of the "Big S" line with Hooley Smith and the late A. C. (Babe) Siebert. When he seemed to be slowing down at Montreal, he went to Boston and gave the Bruins valuable service. He made another comeback with the Americans and was largely responsible for putting them in the playoffs the last two seasons with important "money" goals.

Atlantic Seagulls Train in Midland

Midland, Ont., Sept. 30 (CP)—Atlantic City Seagulls of the Eastern United States Amateur Hockey League will hold their first practice here Oct. 24, four days after ice goes into the Midland arena, Coach Bert Corbeau said today.

McQueston and Bas Bastien of North Bay juniors will fight for the regular netminding berth. Defencemen signed include Norm Tustin of Owen Sound; Hamilton of Toronto; Stapleford of Watford and Marchant of Saskatoon, Sask.

Among the forwards with the team this season will be Fasino of Sudbury; Livingstone of Barrie, Ont., juniors. Others expected to sign with the Gulls are Bruce Brenchley of Niagara Falls seniors; Dint Scott of Barrie and Lloyd Fitzgerald, last season with Port Colborne Sailors of the Senior "A" O.H.A.

Lastic Grattan Establishes New Track Record at Picton, Clips 1 3-4 Secs. Off Mark

Big Chestnut Negotiates Mile in 2.08 to Better previous Time of Simcoe Harvester

TRACK HEAVY

Wilmer Hillock Presented With Special Award of Seventy-Five Dollars

Picton, Ont.—"Lastic Grattan", handsome chestnut gelding, owned and driven by W. Hillock, prominent local race-horse owner, flashed under the wire in the second heat of the free-for-all class race at the Picton Fair here yesterday, to rip one and three-quarter seconds off the existing track record, and annex for his owner the special prize of $75., offered by T. M. Kinney, to the driver of the horse that accomplished the record-breaking feat.

Legs moving in piston-like motion, the white-faced chestnut, despite the fact that the track was heavy from morning rains, raced into the lead at the start. He negotiated the first half in 1.04 and chased stubbornly by "Bud Wenger", crack Kingston pacer, sped across the finish line two lengths in the lead, in the new record time of 2.08. The former record of 2.09-3-4 was made by Simcoe Harvester in July, 1937.

"Lastic" won the race in three straight heats. He swept around the track in the first heat in 2-11 1-2; the second in his new record time and the third heat in 2-13 3-4. Consensus of opinion of judges and other veteran horsemen present was that the chestnut would have negotiated the mile in 2.06 had track conditions been more favorable.

Comes from Behind

"Molly Hal" driven by H. Caldwell, Cardinal owner, paced the big chestnut in the first heat until they shot into the home stretch when in a beautifully timed burst of speed, "Lastic" pulled out and ahead to win by a length. In the third heat, Bud Wenger raced out in front to lead the chestnut for two thirds of the mile. Then to the roars of excited spectators that stood in their seats, the Picton owned horse with that rhythmic stretching stride, ears pointed straight ahead, veered slightly, took the lead and sped home two lengths in the lead.

The 2.27 and 2.20 classes that attracted some of the finest horses in the province were productive of some splendid races. Only twice were horses called back to "score" before being sent away.

"Rex Grattan", Kingston-owned horse finished strong to annex two firsts in the 2.27 class after trailing "Grace May" in the first heat. George Purvis, driving "Sharkey Belina", Stratford gelding, shoved his horse out in front in the first and third heats but was forced to bow to the speeding hoofs of "Gentry Grattan" in the second.

The races were by far the best held here in years with horses and drivers putting on a spectacular exhibition that was fittingly climaxed by "Lastic Grattan's" outstanding performance.

Raises The Ante

Tom Kinney, Picton's prominent race enthusiast and canning factory magnate formally presented W. Hillock, owner and driver of Lastic Grattan with his special prize of $75 for breaking the record. "I'm glad Lastic won it" Mr. Kinney said over the public-speaking system, "and if he wants to come back next year and beat his own record, I'll give him a hundred dollars."

Exceptionally Strong Team Spirit May Help Reds Trim Yankees

By GAYLE TALBOT

Associated Press Sports Writer

Pittsburgh, Sept. 30 —(AP) — Perhaps the most important weapon Cincinnati Reds will carry into the World Series against the powerful New York Yankees next week is an exceptionally strong team spirit.

This isn't the old salad dressing. This club really is a harmonious unit. The players are fond of each other and of their quiet but strict manager, Bill McKecknie. I don't recall having seen a ball team that appeared to be so totally devoid of personal animosities and jealousies.

The other night, after Paul Derringer had pitched the clinching victory over St. Louis, Bucky Walters grabbed him around the neck and said, sincerely:—

"Boy, all I hope is that I'm as good a pitcher as you are some day."

"Nuts," Derringer replied. "Stop that stuff. You're a greater pitcher right now than I ever was."

So help me, they argued about it for 10 minutes—Walters, who had pitched 27 victories, and Derringer, who had just notched his 25th. They didn't reach a decision, except to agree that Junior Thompson was going to be a better pitcher than either of them.

May Make Them Tough

It's this team spirit and feeling of personal loyalty that is likely to make the Reds a tougher outfit to beat than the odds of 3 to 1 against them would indicate. It doesn't show in the records, but it's there.

In a fairly close acquaintance with the National League champs, I've never heard one of them say anything really detrimental of another. They get along, and that is more unusual than the average student of baseball might think. Though this also is not on the records, McKecknie traded away one player because the fellow had a sour disposition.

Ival Goodman, the club's crack right-fielder, who blasted 30 home runs last year and who led the National League in triples both in 1935 and 1936, confesses he quit trying to hit for distance this season because he thought he could help the club more by punching the ball straight-away.

"I had a nice home run record last year," he explains, "but we finished fourth. All right, we won the pennant this time, and maybe I helped a little in spots.

CINCINNATI REDS INCREASE LEAD OVER THE CARDS

Scrub Team Defeats Pirates 2-1 as Tune-up for World Series

CARDS IDLE

Indians Take Doubleheader from Tigers by 4-3 and 3-0

By JUDSON BAILEY

Associated Press Sports Writer

Amid all the jubilation of Cincinnati Reds, somebody forgot to shut off the ignition because, with the National Baseball League pennant clinched Thursday, the Reds played their scrub team against Pittsburgh Pirates yesterday and won 2-1.

[illegible] Lee Grissom scattered seven [illegible]s and knocked home one of [illegible] Cincinnati runs with a tri[illegible] [illegible] was their sixth straight vic[illegible] in less than a week against the [illegible]ccaneers, but nobody cared.

St. Louis Cardinals had a day of idleness because of rain at Chicago and in the only other National League firing Brooklyn Dodgers and Boston Bees divided a doubleheader, insuring the Dodgers of a berth in the first division.

Tom Earley won the first game for Boston 2-1 on four-hit pitching. Seven-hit hurling by Hugh Casey in the nightcap won 7-1 for the Dodgers, who were helped by four Boston errors.

Cleveland swept a doubleheader from Detroit Tigers 4-3 and 3-0 in the sole American League competition and took a firmer grip on third place.

Mel Harder, who hit a home run in the fourth, got credit for the first victory, although Bob Feller worked the last two innings. Al Milnar pitched the shutout second session, which was abbreviated to five innings because of darkness.

The World Champion Yankees were among the teams idle yesterday. They were billed for doubleheaders today and tomorrow against second place Boston Red Sox as a final tuneup for the World Series.

DIMAGGIO, MIZE LEADING HITTERS

Yankee Finishes With .382 and Mize With a Neat 352

New York, Sept. 30 (AP)—Awarding of the major baseball league hitting championships to Joe DiMaggio of New York Yankees and Johnny Mize of St. Louis Cardinals now is only a formality.

The two sluggers who have led the American and National leagues, respectively, for many weeks coasted into the final week-end of the baseball campaign with insurmountable margins.

DiMaggio's .382, while far beneath his hoped-for .400, still was 24 points better than the mark of Jimmie Foxx of Boston Red Sox, who was removed from competition a month early by an appendicitis operation.

Mize's mark of .352 was 14 points above the .338 figure of his teammate, Joe Medwick, who beat him out for the batting championship in 1937 by a narrow margin.

Between the Lines

with Ken J. Colling

When the Reds gave $47,500 in cash, Al Hollingsworth and Spud Davis for Bucky-Walters, the Giants, Cubs and Pirates all had a chance to get the transformed pitcher, but only Warren Giles and Powell Crosley had the gumption and enough gambling spirit to risk that investment. Now the Reds have won the pennant because a year ago last June they had the foresight and enterprise to take Walters from the Phillies. When Walters was with the Quakers he failed to achieve full respect for his ability. He had been converted from a third baseman, and quite a few folks were sceptical about his having a sufficient repertoire as a hurler. But all the doubters have disappeared.

There are several outstanding feats of baseball, which will be written down in the record books in favor of the Reds. For instance Bill McKechnie is the only National League manager to pilot three separate clubs to a senior loop championship. McKechnie was at the helm of the Pirates in 1925 and later guided the Cardinals to a flag and now heads the Redlegs for his third pennant with different clubs, a feat never before accomplished. In Bucky Walters and Paul Derringer the Reds have two outstanding pitchers who collectively have won 51 games for their club this season, Walters winning 26 and losing 7 to top the league. With the exception of Joe (Yankee Clipper) DiMaggio, the Reds are equally as strong as the Yankees in the outer garden. However, we feel that collectively the Yankees carry too much punch and power and will win the series in five or six games at the outset. One cannot forget the fact that Lefty Gomez has never lost a world series decision, while Red Ruffing was always a good series hurler, and this pair should make a good match for the Walters-Derringer combination.

Bill Walshe, Kingston sports scribe views with alarm the continued migration of Kingston hockey players. Recently he penned this note on the subject: "Kingston's best boys continue to migrate to other places in search of employment and chances to better themselves, and there does not seem any possible way to prevent the great loss to the community. Don Crawford is the latest to go. He left recently for Trenton to join the R.C.A.F. in a clerical position with hopes of taking up physical training in which he specializes. He joins Aymer Burtch, a Kingston teammate, who joined the Air Force about a month ago, and the two Kingston players will be in fact hockey company according to reports of other ice talent checking into Trenton." The Fliers are on the wing.

No doubt the Peterboro scribe will be equally as interested in the Air Force recruits as we are. Recently friend (?) Perdue of Peterboro seemed to be quite concerned regarding opposition for his puck-chasing pets from along the shores of the Otonabee, but we feel he needn't worry too much about that point. Recent news dispatches inform us the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment will winter at Picton and no doubt they'll be at full strength before the new year. All over the Dominion hockey players are flocking to the colors and it is not out of the way to imagine the H. and P.E. Regiment will have their share of pucksters before the O. H. A. campaign begins. The Belleville Redmen, although Eddie Thomas hasn't committed himself as yet, will doubtless function stronger than ever, as will the Air Force. If Picton can unearth a few soldier-hockey players to bolster their native players, goodness knows what the future holds insofar as hockey is concerned, which prompts us to warn the Peterboro scribe not to worry too much about opposition for his puck-chasing pets.

Lastic Grattan, acknowledged as one of Canada's outstanding pacers, broke the Picton track record yesterday before a record race-crowd when his flashing hoofs raced across the line in the fast time of 2.08. "Lastic subtracted one and three-quarter seconds from the former record of 2.09¾ established by Simcoe Harvester in 1937. The handsome chestnut was easily the pick of the field, his beautiful legs moving like pistons in a rhythmic tempo that literally flung distance behind him. He had worthy foemen however in Bud Wenger and Molly Hal, themselves champions in their own right. They gave the champion their best, and the white-stockinged chestnut was forced to come from behind in two of the heats in order to win.

There was more than lots of fun at the Hume Arena last night when professional wrestling returned under a new promotership. In two of the bouts there was blood aplenty, while in the initial main affair the contestants, Tiger Daniels and Young Griffins, addresses unnecessary, finished their ring arguments in a free-for-all fistic scrap that brought officials, police and the general public all into the picture outside the squared circle. After the smoke of the battle had cleared, it was announced that Daniels and Griffins would be rematched in a return bout next week, which alone should double last night's crowd as these boys really went to work on each other in a manner that wasn't exactly cricket. The other bout that stood out was the Epps-Maich scrap. This saw two of the best heavies seen locally in years, but they wrestled to a draw even though Maich was the aggressor. Both boys were willing workers and gave the patrons many wrestling holds never before seen in a Belleville ring. The announcement that four of the contestants would return next week met with popular favor.

During the month of August, 1940 when the Olympic games will be in progress, there will be sixteen hours of daylight in Finland, so that no contest need be called on account of darkness. It is not likely, however, that these extra hours of daylight will be needed since most of the contests will have been completed by seven o'clock in the evening.

SPORT SPICE—It will take more than courage and psychology to beat Yankees in the world series, we're firmly convinced. . . . The Reds are pinning faith on Junior Thompson, their first year pitching sensation and what's more the Reds are trying to convince Thompson he's the chosen person to beat the high and mighty Yankees. . . . We'll wager it will take more than talk to beat the Yankees, however. . . . Nels (Ole Poison) Stewart announced his retirement from hockey yesterday after twelve years of good and faithful service. . . . Stewart wouldn't pass up the management of the Canadiens, he admits.

Lieut.-Gov. A. Matthews Officially Opens Picton Fair

Record Crowd Hears Tribute Paid to Its Fair and County

COLORFUL GATHERING

Splendid Entries, Program, Livestock, Races, etc., Thrill Largest Attendance in Years

Picton, Ont., "The call comes clear to all of us to speed up production of everything within our power if we are to turn back the forces of evil that are threatening us. We, all of us must do our part", the Hon. Albert Matthews, Lieutenant Governor of Ontario, told a record crowd here yesterday when he officially opened the Pr. Edward Agricultural Society's Exhibition.

"The real strength of the country is not in its armies but in the cultivators of the land. We look to you to supply not only the heroic lads at the front but those who must stay at home and keep the wheels of industry running", he said.

"As we face the present ordeal we will need every ounce of what we can produce. The forces of evil are striving to overthrow the principles of British freedom and liberty. Everything is in the balance. We must, each one of us do our part", His Excellency declared.

He paid tribute to rural fairs in general and the Picton Fair in particular. "Rural fairs", he said "are numbered among my valuable institutions. They are the source of information where we gain knowledge of the progress made in and by our own locality. I am much interested in the Prince Edward Agriculaural Society and proud to hear that it is now on a solid financial footing."

"This rich Garden County of Prince Edward is deserving of the finest organization that can be found" Lieut. Governor Matthews said, in tribute to President S. P. Dodds and his capable Board of Directors. His Excellency closed with reference to the speech of David. "If war is come upon us, in this I will be confident". He quoted a verse from the "Battle Hymn of the Republic" ending with "God is Marching On".

Inspects Guard of Honor

Previous to the Lieutenant Governors address, he inspected a guard of honor formed by members of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment. Lieut. Colonel Sherman Young, officer commanding, and other officers of the unit assisted with the inspection.

Present were Mrs. Albert Matthews, Mayor Nesbitt McKibbon, Reeve Roy Ketcheson, Warden of Prince Edward County, George Tustin, M. P., James deC Hepburn, M.P.P., President S. P. Dodds of the Prince Edward Agricultural Society, who read a formal address of welcome to their excellencies, and Alva Bowerman. Captain W. R. Armstrong, aide-de-campe to the Lieutenant-Governor was also present.

Later to the melodies of the scarlet-coated members of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regimental Band, under Bandmaster Sid Lockyer, Lieut.-Governor and Mrs. Matthews retired to the grandstand where in a flag-bedecked space, Mrs. Profes[illegible] [illegible]thews with a presented [illegible] beautiful bouquet of roses. Many prominent Prince Edward people were formally presented to the distinguished visitors.

The Lieut.-Governor's party arrived shortly after three-thirty o'clock, preceded by an escort of Provincial Traffic Officers, Sam Servine, Belleville and John Hatch, Marmora, who escorted the party from Brighton. The Lieut.-Governor broke the journey from Toronto in the morning when he paused at the Trenton base of the Royal Canadian Air Force for an unofficial inspection.

Fair a Success

Claimed to have attracted the largest attendance in years despite the threatening weather of the second day, the fair is said to have been the most successful in nearly a decade. Thousands thronged the colorful grounds yesterday to view the various attractions'

Outstanding in a list of events that were features themselves, was the splendid card of horse-racing, in which the outstanding highlight was the breaking of the track record by Lastic Grattan, Picton-owned horse, and one of Canada's crack pacers. The full story of this event appears on the sports page.

Perfect weather prevailed on Thursday for the opening day. The parade was the biggest and most colorful in years. It extended nearly a mile long, comprising school children from town and country, 150 members of C and D Companies of Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, and Picton Band. Most of the schools carried decorated banners and in addition the pupils wore colored hats and streamers. Prizes for best costumes went to Cherry Valley and Woodrous schools. Warings Corners took the prize fos most pupils in the parade and S.S. 10 South Marysburgh and S.S. 3 North Marysburgh won prizes for best marching.

Excellent Entries

Entries in the fair totalled around 3000, with over 100 head of cattle and 100 horses, a showing representative of the good stock in Prince Edward County to which the Fair is limited.

At night, the Air Force Band, Belleville Citizens Band and Picton Band provided a musical treat with a program in front of the grandstand. Amateurs who entertained were Burton and Lenora Pickering, Picton, with songs; Jack Clarke, Milford, comic song; Jean Wood, Milford, song and dance; Martha Moucke, Picton, song and dance; Beryl Masters Picton, tap dance; Mrs. J. Stewart, Picton, old tyme fiddler; Frank Greeley, Greenbush, mouth organ and guitar.

Ladies took part in a nail driving contest and men in a bucksawing contest. Boys added humor with a pie-eating contest. There was a large parade of pets, the smallest being a snake and the largest a pony.

HOSIERY SHOP ROBBED

Toronto, Sept. 30 (CP)—Two bandits, one armed with a revolver, held up and robbed the Ellis Hosiery Shop in the east end of Toronto last night. The men fled with $22 after locking an employee in a back room.

WEEP FOR LOVE

by RUBY M. AYRES

pose it had the inevitable ending. She begged me not to—leave her—to help her to get a divorce. But I couldn't. I saw the man—a contemptible sort of fellow—she had been paying him to keep away. You see, he knew she had money, and he told me that nothing would induce him to divorce her—not money or—even if I was willing to. But that was out of the question, because—Elizabeth, forgive me if I tell you that I never had any real affection for her. Pity perhaps — and—that was the end. I promised I would never speak of her marriage and I never have spoken of it—until today. I know that, somehow or other, it was said that I had broken the engagement. I know that you have always believed I did. But what I have told you is the truth before God—and if you have heard—anything different—"

There was a pathetic silence before Elizabeth whispered, "Oh — poor Penelope." And for the moment that seemed to be the only thing that mattered. Poor, unhappy Penelope, who still loved this man with all the strength of her strange nature.

It seemed an eternity before Kim Lawless asked in a deeply moved voice.

"And now—is there peace in our camp, Elizabeth?"

INSTALMENT 30

"I thought—she was—married—to you," Elizabeth answered brokenly. "And —that's—why—"

He leaned a little towards her.

"Is there peace in our camp?" he asked again. And then, before she could answer, "Oh, my darling, say that you care for me—just a little?"

She tried to smile, but her lips trembled too much. She tried to answer, but her words would not come, so she just went to the arms which were waiting for her.

It was nearly dark before Elizabeth came back to earth.

"Whatever will Mrs. Selby say?" she asked in happy confusion.

Lawless laughed.

"I shall say that we had a breakdown—two—if necessary—and trust to good luck that I shall be believed."

He opened the door of the car and got out into the wet road, turning to ask:

"You're not still thinking of running away, are you, my sweet?"

She leaned through the open window to kiss him.

"You'll never know how much I love you," she said earnestly. "Ever since that day in the wood when I stole your primroses."

"And my heart with them," he answered. He raised her hand to his lips. "I've got the real Elizabeth who has been hiding away from me."

"That's what Roy said," she answered. And then quickly, "Oh, what will Roy say?"

They looked at each other in silence till Elizabeth said shyly:

"Darling, would you mind very much if we didn't tell them—just yet? You see, there's Penelope, too. Couldn't we wait—just a little while—just till I am home again?"

Lawless frowned.

"And I am to stand by and see Roy appropriating you, and hear you calling him 'darling'?"

Elizabeth smiled.

"It's funny," she said incredulously, "but when I say 'darling' and it means you, it seems quite a different word from when I just say 'darling' and it doesn't mean anything."

She looked at him with shy pleading.

"Then—will you? I mean—will you wait—just a little longer?"

"When you look at me like that, how can I refuse?" He got back into the car.

"Now I suppose we must go back, he said ruefully. "And I also suppose that it is good-bye."

"Only for a few days," she interrupted quickly. "You see, I want to tell Penelope myself. I must tell her myself."

"I'm not a patient man, my beloved. Don't keep me waiting too long."

She gave a little sigh as he turned the car about for home.

"What was that for?" Lawless demanded quickly.

"I was thinking," Elizabeth answered, "that I wish my mother could know how happy I am. You didn't know my mother, Kim. But she was the dearest—loveliest—"

"She was your mother," Lawless answered.

As they turned in at the drive of High Chimneys, he said comically:

"Don't forget that we've had two bad punctures, and, if it's a lie, you've forced it upon me, my angel. And so it's the very whitest lie that was ever told."

But luck was with them, for the family was still out when they arrived. Barbara had rung up to say that she was staying to supper with the Beaseleys—not that she really wished to stay, she might have added, but that she was hoping Kim would be sorry and miss her. And Mrs. Selby had decided at the last moment to go to Bridgelake with her husband and Roy.

"And dinner is put back till eight-thirty, miss," the maid informed them.

"I'll go and change," Elizabeth said at once, but Lawless drew her into the library and took her in his arms.

"This love will never pass away, Elizabeth," he said with deep e[illegible]otion. "Neither with ti[illegible] [illegible]nity."

Elizabeth was to [illegible]

"Why must you go?" Roy as[illegible] miserably, when Elizabeth spo[illegible] about packing. "Betty darlin[illegible] please stay. We've been so happ[illegible]

"I can't," she answered. "[illegible] been a lovely holiday—the [illegible] I've ever had—and—when I [illegible] home—I'll write to you, Roy [illegible] promise I'll write to you."

"To say—?" he asked eagerl[illegible]

"No," she answered. "I can't [illegible] say that—"

"Then let me drive you u[illegible] town," he urged. "Please let m[illegible] don't want to stay here witho[illegible] you. Lawless can go by himse[illegible] Why should that fellow take y[illegible] when I can?"

But she had not the courage to tell him why. It would be so much easier to write.

But there was still Penelope, and Elizabeth could not bear to think what Penelope would say.

And yet she was glad to be going home. The past few days had been too much of a strain for real happiness.

"I shall never be able to pretend as Penelope does," she thought with a sigh, and she wondered that nobody had sensed the alteration in her relationship with Kim.

She had avoided him a little too much perhaps—and yet often she had felt his eyes upon her, and once when they met on the stairs it had been almost a superhuman effort just to pass him as if it did not matter.

"It will be different after tomorrow," she comforted herself, and tried to forget that there was still Penelope.

It was breakfast-time the last morning that Mr. Selby was called to the telephone.

"Why do people ring up at such unearthly hours?" he grumbled, as he rose from the table, but he was gone only a moment or two before he returned and spoke through a half-closed door. "Come here, Lawless, will you."

Mrs. Selby looked faintly surprised.

"There must be a mystery," she said, smiling.

In the hall, Mr. Selby took Kim's arm and drew him into the library.

"A shocking thing has happened", he said in a very moved voice. "I hardly know how to tell you but as you're the most disinterested party—or perhaps I shouldn't say that—anyway, I couldn't tell the women. That telephone call was from Miss Thornley, Elizabeth's aunt. Poor woman, she was [illegible]

West Huntingdon

West Huntingdon, Sept. 29—Sunday was a busy day for the church people of West Huntingdon. In the morning and evening the United church congregation held their annual anniversary services, and in the afternoon the St. Andrew's congregation held a Sunday school rally service.

Large congregations filled the auditorium of United Church for both morning and evening services when the Rev. William Sterling preached two outstanding evangelistic sermons. Mr. Sterling has been living in the community for past two months. But had not the opportunity of conducting a service and those in attendance on Sunday were impressed with the earnestness of this gospel preacher.

In the morning service his theme was our modern churches need the opostolic power of the early church.

In the evening his theme was a "Good Man's Slogan." The choir of fourteen voices gave two anthems. They were assisted in the morning by Mrs. Nelson Welsh of Moira who also gave a delightful solo. In the evening a quartette composed of Mrs. Mac. Sarles, Mrs. Clifford Elliott, Messrs. Clayton Wright and Elmer Post gave an inspiring eslection.

The annual thanksoffering was taken and was liberal amount. Mrs. John Moorcroft presided over the music for both services.

25th Wedding Anniversary

On Saturday evening Sept. 23rd. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Elliott were taken completely by surprise when over seventy five of their friends gathered at their home to celebrate with them the occsion of their 25th wedding anniversary. Mr. Sandy McCurdy was master of seremonies in his usual efficient manner. The programme was off to a good start when Mrs. Morley Haggerty led the gathering in lively community singing.

The Misses Jean and Muriel Thompson contributed a piano duet. Mr. Gerald Clancy of Wellman's delighted with a solo. The Misses Irene and Marguerite Elliott gave a duet. Miss Ruth Clancy gave a solo. Miss Jean Thompson read the following address:

To Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Elliott on the occasion of the twenty-fifth anniversary of their wedding.

Dear friends, may we commence this tribute to you. People with this poem:

When it comes to a question of trusting
Yourself to the risks of the road.
When the thing is the sharing of burdens,
The lifting the helf of the road.
In the hour of peril on trial
In the hour you meet as you can
You may safely depend on the wisdom
And skill of the average man.
'Tis the average man and no other
Who does his plain duty each day
The small thing his wage is for doing
On the common place bit of the way
'Tis the average man may God bless him.
Who pilots us still in the van,
O'er land, over sea as we travel.
Just the plain hardy, average man
So on through the days of existence
All mingling in shadow and shine
We may count on the every day hero,
Whom happily the gods make divine
But who wears the swarthy grime of his calling
And labours and earns as he can
And stands at the last with the noblest
The common place average man.

These sentiments are doubled in this case to include the average man's wife who has for these twenty five years helped her husband to build an average home. And the sum of these homes constitutes that which is so dear to all our hearts, our British democracy. Let us in closing simply say Tom and Helen "you've done it well". We ask you to accept these gifts.

WALL STREET CLOSE

New York, Sept. 30.— (AP)— Buyers pushed shares likely to benefit from a prolonged war higher in today's stock market. Leaders added fractions to 5 points or more. Transfers approximated 800,000 shares.

Domestic news items seemed to be ignored as traders weighed the dispatches from abroad.

Higher all day were U.S. Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown, Chrysler, Santa Fe, New York Central, Pullman, Westinghouse Air Brake, U.S. Rubber, Anaconda, Du Pont, Allied Chemical, Westinghouse Electric, American Can, Briggs Mfg., Electric Auto Lite, Douglas Aircraft, United Aircraft and Caterpillar.

McIntyre Porcu. lost more than a point in the Canadian section but Dome and Hiram Walker edged forward. Dominion 4s were under pressure in the bond market.

Canada to be Source of Supply

While no official announcement has been made regarding the production program it is only logical to assume that Canada will be looked upon as one of the great sources of supply for the allies.

No doubt many farmers are anticipating increasing their hog production. While the future market is rather obscure there is one factor that remains the same and that is that a qualit yproduct is always in demand.

At this time of year there is always a good supply of choice breeding stock available which is the only foundation on which to build future production.

Some good lots of hogs marketed out of the Belleville district during the week of September 29th, 1939, are as follows:

Butter at Toronto Slightly Easier

Toronto, Sept. 30—Quiet trading prevailed for all produce lines at Toronto Friday with a slightly easier butter market showing the only price change.

Trading was staghant on the butter market as buying interest was absent. Offerings were not heavy, but there were more than sufficient supplies available than demand, and the price trend was toward lower levels. Ontario No. 1 creamery solids were quoted nominal at 27 1-4c to 27 1-2c per pound.

A better undertone in afternoon dealings was reported on the egg market, although business still remained on the quiet side. No price changes were recorded. The Department of Agriculture reports 500 cases of grade B large were exported to Britain in the current week .

TORONTO STOCKS CLOSE

Toronto, Sept. 30 (CP)—Prices were marked up moderately in fairly active trading on the Toronto exchange in the final session of the week and the month. Interest was concentrated in a dozen industrials, notably the carrier issues, and in one or two western oils. Mining shares traded quietly with a firm price tone ruling. The turnover in the two-hour session totalled about 225,000 shares.

C.P.R. traded 6000 shares or more and advanced to 8½ for a gain of a point and Canada Steamship Lines common was equally active on a rise of a point to 7½. They closed at the top. Canada Steamship Lines pfd. touched 18½ and closed around 18¼ for a gain of a point. Utilities, including Gatineau, Union Gas and United Fuel A, advanced and closing prices were up for the senior oils, foods, implements and papers.

National Steel Car, Pressed Metals, Dominion Foundries, Eastern Steel, Bathurst Power A, Great Lakes Pfd., Fleet Aircraft and Abitibi Pfd. all advanced ½ to a full point. Canadian Industrial Alcohol A, the only gainer in the distillery group, firmed ¼ to 4⅝.

LARGE QUANTITY CHICKENS OFFERED ON SAT. MARKET

Prices Range from 60c to $1.25 — Egg Prices Are Steady

APPLES PLENTIFUL

A consistent drizzling rain, aftermath of electrical storms that swept the district Friday drove market vendors and shoppers to the comparative dryness and comfort of the inside city market. There was a good offering of all kinds of produce, despite the inclemency of the weather.

Egg quotations were steady, with retail prices to shoppers noting no difference in the main although wholesalers paid from three to four cents less per doen than they did a week ago. "A" selects were quoted generally at35 cents the dozen, although a few vendors dropped prices commensurate with those paid by wholesale dealers. Mediums were offered at 32 cents with pullets offered at 29 and 30 cents the dozen.

The chicken offering was heavier today than it has been for the past three weeks. Choice weighty June birds were quated at from 60 cents to $1.30 the pair. Yearlings were offered at from 70 cents each with good quality six-months-old chickens available at $1.00 to $1.25 each. Fowl moved slowly from 55 cents. A few ducks were offered with former quotations steady at $1.00 each.

Potatoes Plentiful at $1.40 Bag.

Vegetable and fruit offerings were firm, with little change noted over last week's quotations. Potatoes were plentiful and of good quality. Pecklots were offered at 30 and 35 cents each with bushels moving well at $1.25. 75-pound bags could be had at $1.40.

Home-grown tomatoes, still of good quality despite the inroads of canning-factory demands, were firm at 60c the bushel. Basket lots sold at 20c each. Sweet corn, not as good as former offerings, sold at 10c and 15c the dozen, with buying being dull during the early hours.

Beets, carrots and onions could be had in bunch or bushel lots, with the former offered at 5c and the latter ranging between 40c and 50c each. Celery and radishes were popular at 5c and 10c the bunch, with Chinese cabbage, cauliflower and the ordinary variety of cabbage offered at from 5c the head.

"MacIntosh Red" apples headed a variable apple offering, good quality fruit being available at $1. the hamper. Basket lots were priced accordingly. Wolf Rivers, Alexanders, and other popular varieties sold at 20c the peck. Flemish Beauty pears were offered at 40c the basket with Bartletts and Clapps Favorite selling at approximately the same figure.

Blue Damsons were offered at 40c the basket and German prune plums at 10c more. Blue and white grapes were plentiful at prices ranging between 30c and 35c the basket. Peach stocks were down from the usual amount, but prices hovered between 25c and 30c for good quality fruit.

Whitefish, trout and pickerel catered to lovers of this sort of food, with 20c the pound being asked for the former two varieties and 25c for trout, with a slight additional charge for filleting and slicing.

Baby Abandoned On Hospital Steps

Mysterious Phone Call Advises Authorities 'Baby on Ambulance Step'

Memories of the old-time melodrama when kindly folk answered a knocking at the door to find a dimpling baby crowing its discomfort in a basket on the doorstep, were revived here last night when officials of the Belleville General Hospital, upon receipt of a mysterious telephone message to the effect "that a baby would be found at the Ambulance Entrance" found the information correct and today are looking after a handsome baby boy, believed to be from four to six weeks old.

The baby was discovered lying in a basket on the steps near the ambulance entrance, and seemed to be happily oblivious of his plight.

The little fellow was immediately taken into the hospital and given care. "He is a healthy little fellow, was warmly clothed and apparently has received the best of care." Gordon Friesen, hospital administrator said this morning.

Officials immediately traced the telephone call to a Front Street place of business, but up until press time no trace of the mysterious caller had been uncovered.

The baby will be placed in the care of T. D. Ruston, Inspector, Children's Aid Society, hospital officials stated. City police are investigating.

Loaves of Home-Made Bread And Hamper of McIntosh Apples Presented to Lieut.-Governor

Mouth - Watering Exhibits Attract Attention of Distinguished Couple at Picton Fair

Prince Edward County's rural housewives and their genial husbands are holding their heads high in justifiable pride these days. For today golden-crusted white and brown loaves of bread, and the shining scarlet of MacIntosh Red Apples, made and grown respectively, in the "Garden County," will grace the table of Lieutenant Governor and Mrs. Albert Matthews, first gentleman and lady of this fair province, in their home in Toronto.

It was while the distinguished guests, who officially opened Picton's Fair yesterday, were inspecting and admiring the many fine exhibits, that Mrs. Matthews, visibly enthused over two loaves of bread, expressed the wish that she might have them. Not to be outdone, his Excellency, the Lieutenant Governor, showed keen enthusiasm over a hamper of shining apples. He and Mrs. Matthews accordingly had their wishes fulfilled and were formally presented with the exhibits.

The bread was the product of the kitchens of Mrs. A. Loney and Mrs. H. Dulmage of South Bay, while the apples were grown in the orchard of Brian Dodds, Cherry Valley farmer.

Sincere appreciation of the gifts were expressed to the members of the fair board by the Lieutenant Governor and his lady.

ITALY TAXES ALL BUSINESS

Private Property Must Pay Taxes to Meet Country's Deficit

Rome, Sept. 30 (AP)—The Italian cabinet, meeting with Premier Mussolini today, voted new taxes to meet Italy's unbalanced budget and "new military expenses caused by the international situation".

A levy of one-half of one per cent on private property was approved together with a two-per cent tax on general business turnover.

The property tax is to be levied on all real estate, goods and securities of all types, except bank deposits and personal clothing, owned by all persons, companies, corporations and societies over the amount of 10,000 lire (about $500).

Churches and scientific and artistic collections are exempt.

The business turnover tax is a flat two-per cent levy on the gross income from all business transactions and rents and substitutes for the present exchange tax.

The Fascist press spokesman, Virginio Gayda, hailed the higher taxes as a step in Fascism's progress.

"Italian taxpayers understand the necessity," he wrote in a Giornale d'Italia article.

"Exasperating taxes are now common in all states of the world of every latitude and regime. The only difference is in the diversity of their employment and yield. The Italian taxpayer knows his growing tax burden corresponds with the constant ascension of conquests and collective responsibilities."

Dr. Salisbury is a graduate of the University of Toronto and Boston University. Following his graduation from the latter institution, he was sent by the Presbyterian Board of that city as a missionary to China where he served faithfully for a period of seven years.

LINER MANHATTAN DOCKS AT N. Y.

Steamer Has Uneventful Crossing from Southampton and LeVerdon

New York, Sept. 30 (AP)—The United States liner Manhattan, carrying 1,868 passengers, docked today after an uneventful voyage from Southampton and Le Verdon, France.

Daniel Moriarity, representing the Stewards' Union on the Manhattan, said the stewards nearly "mutinied" at Southampton when they were not allowed to go ashore at first to get gas masks. They were afraid of an air raid, he said, and the nearest shelter lay 200 yards away.

Finally, he said, they got word to the military commandant of Southampton and they were allowed ashore.

He also declared the military commandant told him the stewards of the Manhattan, most of whom are German by birth but naturalized Americans, would be interned the next time the ship docks there as Germany has interned British subjects of German birth.

Passengers included Lord Beaverbrook, the publisher, and Arturo Toscanini, orchestra conductor.

Fanny Ward, former actress, said she was not going to be caught in a state of undress if a submarine attacked. So she purchased three one-piece aviation suits with zippers and slept in one of them on deck.

REPORT TURKEY

Saracoglu, it was said, had agreed with Russian leaders that Turkey would close the Dardanelles to warships of all belligerent nations, thus neutralizing the Black Sea.

Bulgaria's Claims

Necessary preliminaries to a Black Sea pact would be some kind of settlement of Bulgaria's claims against Rumania for Dobruja, which Rumania gained from the Bulgars in the Balkan war and first Great War settlements.

(Turkey's pledges to the democracies were made with Britain on May 12 and with France on June 23. They provided for mutual aid "in case of an act of aggression which might lead to war in the Mediterranean area.")

London, Sept. 30 (CP)—A member of the Turkish Embassy staff announced today that a Turkish military mission which visited Great Britain early in June would arrive here next week for further conversations.

In Paris, sources close to the French Foreign Office said final touches are being put on a Franco-Turkish accord.

WANT

Poland Accused.

Pravda accused "ill-starred Polish politicians" of attempting to "turn eastern Europe as well as the entire European continent into a tremendous conflagration" at the provocation of "the instigators of the world war".

"This criminal scheme," it said, "ended in shameful failure. The Polish government proved its complete bankruptcy. The fiasco of the Polish state and its dissolution is, at the same time, the fiasco of the policy of those governments which backed the Polish adventurers, incited them and pushed them into a senseless, criminal war."

Relations Grow Stronger.

The Communist party paper said "yesterday's enemies became good neighbors" in the German-Russian non-aggression treaty signed Aug. 23 and that "good neighborly relations are growing even stronger."

Pravda added:

"There is no justification for war between Germany on one hand and England and France on the other!

"The sword of war is unsheathed and already is bloodstained. It is not yet too late to put it into its scabbard.

"The situation is clear. It now depends only on the governments of Great Britain and France whether or not a war which was commenced despite the will of the nations, a war threatening the world with new slaughter, will be continued.

'And if the efforts of the governments of the U.S.S.R."

RIVAL POWERS

Advices from Bucharest said Turkish Foreign Minister Sukru Saracoglu was expected to stop there on his way to Ankara from Moscow to explain terms of a Black Sea security pact which, it was said, had been advanced by Soviet officials.

Responsible quarters in Ankara said the new Soviet-Turkish pact, reported nearing completion, would in no way impair Turkey's ties with France and Great Britain.

Rumanian Mission.

In Rumania, tension over the diplomatic situation was increased by reports of the impending departure of Prime Minister George Kiosseivanoff of Bulgaria for Moscow. Bulgaria already has made demands for return of territory now held by Rumania.

The German economic mission now in Budapest apparently has been making a tour of what Germany envisages as her "lebensraum" (living space) in an effort to assure uninterrupted supplies of food, oil and other necessities in spite of the British blockade.

The commission came from Bucharest, where conferees termed mutually "satisfactory" a new agreement to increase Rumanian exports of cereals, wood and oil to the Reich.

HITLER WEAKENING

The Times said Britain is ready to accept the full implications of a German-Russian coalition and declared, "There can be no peace with Hitlerism. We have sought no quarrel with the Soviet, and it remains to be seen whether the Soviet desires to fasten a quarrel on us."

Hitler Weakening, Press View

Most papers held the view the Russian understanding showed Hitler is weakening and Sefton Delmer, commentator in the Daily Express, said: "for a peace and friendship pact I think it is a champion document of mutual distrust. It is just made for a new Russian-German war."

W. N. Ewer, in the Daily Herald (Labor) said: "The feeling here is that the whole affair is less a demonstration of strength than evidence of Hitler's anxiety about the war."

The newspaper said the only difficulty in drawing up an answer "will be to express it within the normal vocabulary of diplomacy."

The Daily Mail said Hitler's peace offensive will "neither deceive nor dismay" Britain and France.

"So Hitler wants peace—at his own price," the newspaper said. "We reject his terms. Great Britain and France have known it was coming. It is another shot in the war of nerves. It is properly called a 'peace offensive'—offensive in the highest degree to those who have sworn to fight for free dom."

"The truth is that the pact announced yesterday does not change the situation at all," said the Daily Sketch. "To advance the destruction of Poland as a basis of lasting peace would be the most shocking and immoral proposition in history. We will have nothing to do with peace by blackmail."

"The public would be well advised not to jump to hasty conclusions." The News Chronicle said in a discussion of the Soviet-German agreement, "A military alliance might seriously prolong the war. Even economic assistance may seriously reduce the pressure of the blockade upon Germany.

"But an alliance between these two powers which leaves each free to Nazify or Sovetize territories they have annexed can only be a purely opportunist one."

German Hope Doomed

The Daily Telegraph declared: "The German hope of using Russia to dictate peace is doomed to failure."

The Daily Herald said the Russian-German agreement "does not shake us."

Some diplomatic commentators contended Germany had been brought under Russian domination by the Moscow accord, and they saw in it as many disadvantages for Germany. Russian production and transportation facilities, they argued, would prove insufficient to make up for the loss of supplies caused by the Anglo-French Blockade of Germany.

Commenting along this line, one source said, "Germany is not likely to get any more raw materials from Russia than she would have been able to get under the original non-aggression pact, nor is it likely that Russia will give Germany any more assistance than she would have given under the original pact."

Food Minister W. S. Morrison announced rationing would start in a few weeks, but he assured the nation there would be "no waiting in queues." The Government, he added, has bought 1,000,000 tons of sugar, an adequate supply for one year.

The Press Association reported last night that fire had broken out in the naval training ship Caledonia, but that it was "in no way due to enemy action." Extent of the damage was not announced. The ship, formerly the Cunard-White Star liner Majestic, 56,000 tons, was taken out of commission following the outbreak of war and docked for extensive alterations.

POPE GIVES

"There is first the radiation of their military bravery, which filled their adversaries themselves with admiration.

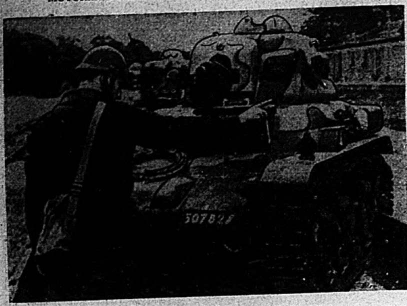
"Then there is their faith, worthy today as it was through the centuries. In its eventful life this people has known hours of agony and periods of apparent death.

"But it also has seen days of revival and resurrection."

Advising the Poles to have confidence in Providence, the Pope said:

"Like those flowers of your country which under a thick blanket of snow await the warm breath of spring, you will know how to wait, prayerfully and with confidence, the hour of celestial consolation."

MOTORIZED FRENCH ARMY ACTIVE ON WESTERN FRONT



This picture, one of the first taken on the western front, was passed by the French censor and was flown to this continent from Foynes, Ireland. The scene shows the arrival of a camouflaged, light French tank in the zone of operations. A French soldier is unloading it from the railroad truck that brought it to the front line.

GERMAN WOMEN TILL THE FIELDS

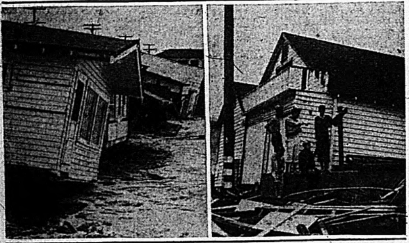
The women of Germany are forced to work in the fields and factories these days while their menfolk are under arms. After working in asparagus fields, LEFT, the German girls form in classes and study German history and a bit of politics, all of which is tempered by the Nazi conception and interpretation of these subjects.

LASHED BY HURRICANE MOUNTAINOUS WAVES WREAK HAVOC



Sweeping in from the south, the tail of a tropical hurricane lashed fishing boats and seashore homes near Long Beach, Calif., causing thousands of dollars worth of damage and killing an undetermined number of persons who were caught aboard small fishing vessels. One of the worst disasters in the marine history of the district, the storm lasted for 18 hours and these beach homes, LEFT, are ready to topple into the sea after being undermined by mountainous waves. Hundreds of homes were reduced to splintered wreckage such as this one shown, RIGHT.

FRANCE TO MEET

Accused of Blackmail.

In a radio address last night, Jean Giraudoux, Commissioner General of Information, accused Germany and Russia of "blackmail" and declared they were trying to force an "eastern peace" upon Europe.

"Perhaps Hitler will propose it to us," Giraudoux said.

"He will give us what he calls peace—that is a short delay which permits Germany to digest its prey and to forge arms to snare its next prey."

Wide publicity was given a note presented to the foreign minister by Polish Ambassador Jules Lukasiwicz, declaring his government would not accept terms of the German-Russian accord.

The note said the Poles were counting upon France and Great Britain to carry the war to final victory.

Further indication that France had no intention of entertaining such a peace proposal was seen by observers in a trip yesterday by President Albert Lebrun to the front line army headquarters.

Air Minister Guy la Chambre and General Joseph Vuillemin, Chief of the Air Force, flew to the front for a ten-hour inspection of air bases.

Semi-official French sources said that Saarbruecken, industrial centre of the Saar basin, was three-fourths encircled.

These sources said the Germans would be forced to abandon the city shortly or risk being cut off from the main westwall defences several miles to the rear.

Military information received in Paris said French troops also were threatening Zweibruecken and Pirmasens farther east through a series of tooth-shaped advances.

Basel, Switzerland, Sept. 30 (AP)—Bitter but localized western front fighting was reported here today as German patrols thrust at a gap in the Moselle-Saar triangle opposite Merzig and in the Wissembourg sector.

French troops at these points were said to have withdrawn from posts they had taken solely for observation purposes, but to have defended positions already consolidated in their lines.

French tactics, it was said, are to give up positions which cannot be consolidated easily. Observers look on this system of warfare as a preparation for defence, rather than offence.

Two British, one French and two German planes were reported shot down yesterday in observation flights, to which most aerial activity has been confined.

The calm in the Strasbourg section was so pronounced that University of Strasbourg students returned yesterday for books. The university was moved in the first week of the war to Clermont-Ferrand, but the library was left behind. During the night students loaded thousands of books into trucks and returned to the new seat of the university.

CANADA TO HOLD FIRST SEAL SKIN AUCTION

Ottawa, Sept. 30 (CP)—Obtained by Canada as part of its share of skins taken on the Pribilof Islands, Alaska, under the Pelagic Sealing Treaty, 3,000 fur seal skins will be sold at Montreal in December and January, it was announced today. It will be the first time seal skin auctions have been held in Canada.

GERMANY CLAIMS

Informed quarters here professed to view the scornful attitude of the British press toward German peace proposals.

As a "snap judgment" that would be changed after the "new situation" had been considered more carefully.

After co-operating with Russia in the partition of Poland, Germany stipulated two primary conditions for peace:—

1. That she and Russia alone decide the fate of Poland.

2. That the "natural development of German interests in the Balkans" be undisturbed.

Affirms Desire For Peace

A German spokesman affirmed Germany's desire for peace now that she has reshaped Eastern Europe to her taste. He added she was prepared equally for war.

"And we'll fight with the realization that it's a battle for Germany's existence," he said.

A big headline in Adolf Hitler's Voelkischer Beobachter declared "Responsibility for war or peace rests on the western powers."

The German attitude is that Poland is now a closed chapter. Whether there would be an autonomous Polish state on the German side of the boundary agreed on at Moscow or whether Germany's share would be swallowed up with the Poles as a German minority remained uncertain.

"For Heaven's sake," exclaimed an official, "we haven't even occupied Warsaw completely and haven't any idea what sort of political leadership remains in Poland."

Occupy Warsaw Oct. 2

Although the first contingents of an estimated 120,000 disarmed Poles had started marching into German captivity from Warsaw, it was believed two or three days might be needed for the whole force to leave. Oct. 2 has been set as a tentative date for formal German occupation.

Field Marshal Herman Goering's Essener National Zeitung raised the point of Germany's position in the Balkans and said the area is a sphere where only Germany, Russia and Italy have legitimate rights.

The Boersen Zeitung, financial newspaper which has close relations with Economics Minister Walther Funk, said Great Britain and France must face the fact that century-old traditions between Germany and Russia have been re-established and "made so strong that there are no hindrances now" which could prevent them from "arriving at an uncompromising alliance."

U. S. Strengthens Hawaiin Isd

Los Angeles, Calif., Sept. 30—(AP)—The Los Angeles Times says a "fully balanced, fast striking" force will be detached from the United States Fleet here Thursday and dispatched to Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, to form a "powerful spear-head of security" in the Pacific.

The Times says the new shift will enhance the Fleet's strategic position in the Pacific.

Slight Decrease in Retail Sales

Ottawa, Sept. 30—(CP)—Dollar volume of retail purchasing in 1938 was $2,404,756,000, a decrease of only two per cent from the 1937 volume of $2,453,7715,000, and a nine-per cent increase over the 1936 figure, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today.

Ontario sales, with 1937 figures in brackets, were $988,698,000, ($1,022,068,000).

BRITAIN'S NEW FIGHTING ARMY ACCEPTS CHALLENGE OF HITLERISM

Answering the challenge of Hitlerism, new soldiers of England's new fighting army are pictured (UPPER LEFT) carrying their belongings in their kit bags as they arrive at a depot to entrain for an undisclosed destination. In this new fighting army, armoured trucks have supplanted the horse-drawn caissons and modern artillerymen ride these swift vehicles (UPPER RIGHT) into action in modern warfare. This is a view of an artillery unit of the British army rolling along a road in England prior to departing for the fighting line in France. As the army, navy and air force answer the call to arms, farewells are the order of the day in all parts of England and here a sailor (LOWER LEFT) is off to join his mates on H.M.S. Drake. Headed toward undisclosed destination, units of the new motorized British army (LOWER RIGHT) are rolling along English highways. Their ultimate destination will be France and the fighting line.

POLISH REFUGEES FLEE AS COUNTRYMEN BECOME PRISONERS

As the defence of Poland collapsed and the Nazi and Soviet armed forces gained full control of their country, hundreds of Polish peasants fled before the conquerors, taking whatever possession they could save, RIGHT, in an effort to cross the Rumanian border. Reports from Rumania state that the highways approaching the border were jammed with fleeing Poles, whose chance to escape into Rumania was cut off by the entry of Soviet troops into Poland. With their mechanized army over-running the country, thousands of Poles were made prisoners and put to work, LEFT, under armed Nazi guards.

Brought to this continent by flying boat, this picture is a new setting of the familiar war scenes of 1914. Women "stay-at-homes" are pictured behind their picket fences waving to a small detachment of new men-at-arms as they march past, enroute to their camp "somewhere in England."
